ONE RED OUTBREAK ALONE BREAKS QUIET OF GERMAN SUNDAY

Two Communists Shot Dead and Seven Wounded in Attempt to Storm Neu-Ruppin Jail.

No Disturbances Are Reported Anywhere in the Occupied Rhineland or Ruhr.

BERLIN, July 29.—All was quiet in Berlin today, and reports available from various parts of Germany show that the Communist demonstrations and meetings have gone off without very serious trouble. Messages in this sense have been received from Hamburg, Stettin and several towns in Saxony and Thuringia.

The only serious incidents so far reported took place at Neu-Ruppin, a small town near Berlin, where Communist demonstrators were incited by an agitator to try and storm the prison. In the course of the struggle with the police shots were fired and two of the demonstrators were killed and seven others injured.

Reds Drink Beer and Keep Quiet.

The demonstrations at Potsdam and Berlin were exceedingly tame affairs, the decision of the Prussian Government not to allow open-air gatherings and processions being respected. The streets in Potsdam this morning wore their usual sleepy Sunday morning air. The Communists needed some looking for. Eventually they were discovered in the back premises of two saloons.

At the largest meeting there were about 1,000 quiet-looking citizens sitting in a large concert hall, drinking mugs of beer and listening to an orator explaining what a big bully the Government was. There was no mention of the baths of blood in which the Rote Fahne was inviting workers to take part about ten days ago.

Twenty-three or more meetings were held in Berlin but the police report that they all passed off without serious trouble. In one or two cases the Communists attempted to form into a procession after the meeting was over but they were dispersed without much difficulty by large forces of police, which were everywhere in readiness.

With this climb-down of the Communists the fear of rioting and bloodshed which had momentarily got hold of large numbers of persons in Berlin has passed. Instead attention is centred on the political crisis which the new collapse of the mark, the sudden food shortage and the Communists' agitation have together helped to produce.

Labor Leaders Foiled Reds.

BERLIN, July 29 (Associated Press).—Much criticism had been leveled against the Cuno Government for permitting the Reds to pursue a campaign of unusual violence in their party organs during the last ten days, in view of the prevailing unrest growing out of the money and food situations. That the Reds were able to recruit only a small portion of their following today was due in no small measure to the veto placed upon their agitation by the United Socialist and the Labor Federation leaders.

Berlin food difficulties are receiving the active attention of the Federal Food Controller, who is in touch with the League of Agriculture with the purpose of securing increased deliveries and also improved methods of distribution at points of delivery. Imperfect organization in connection with the allotment of consignments of cattle, potatoes and dairy products is blamed for much of the food shortage in the markets of the big cities.

The political thermometer, which promptly reacted to the effects of the communistic agitation—food shortage and the spectacular fall in the mark—showed slightly cooler weather today, as the editorial criticism of the Cuno Government during the last week now is being interpreted by the party leaders as a reminder to the Chancellor of his failure to make positive use of the unlimited parliamentary credit voted him when he assumed leadership of the present non-partisan Cabinet.

Criticism Mostly Individual.

The Government's critics may be said to reflect personal rather than party or Reichstag opinion, their censure being based on Chancellor Cuno's failure to devise and put into execution a constructive internal financial, tax and currency program which automatically would have given Germany's foreign situation needed reinforcement.

As the Government's Ruhr and Rhineland policy continues to have the undivided support of the Reichstag, it is now urged that that situation and the conditions in the occupied areas would have constituted themselves considerably more favorable for Germany if the internal situation had not been allowed to drift to the point of chaos, which finds outward expression in the dollar rate of 1,000,000 marks.

The United Socialists decline to participate in any movement for the overthrow of the Cuno Government and are opposed to any change in the Ministry unless assurance is given that any succeeding Cabinet would undertake and guarantee the fulfillment of a constructive program of internal reforms. The Socialists even indicate a willingness to continue their benevolent neutrality toward the present Government if it forthwith proceeds to meet the exigencies of the home situation.

All Quiet in Occupied Areas.

World Parley Called on Work For 10,000,000 Wounded

PARIS, July 29.—The International Labor Bureau at Geneva has issued invitations for an experts' meeting Tuesday to examine the question of the employment of mutilated soldiers of the great war. Recent statistics show that the total number of these is over 10,000,000. Of these over 8,000,000 are potential wage earners who are obliged to seek employment despite the pensions received from their Governments.

The experts will examine the solutions adopted by the various countries, the difficulties encountered and the results obtained. The Labor Bureau has invited the chiefs of Government Administrations dealing with the employment of mutilated soldiers of both the allied and former enemy nations. The French Association of Mutilated Soldiers, presided over by General Maletèrre, this morning held a meeting and decided not to attend at Geneva, owing to the present international situation, thus making it plain that they do not now want to discuss the matter with the Germans. The Labor Bureau was notified that the French consider the moment inopportune for an inquiry of this nature.

BELGIUM'S ANSWER SEEKS A SETTLEMENT

Differs From French Proposals Except in Regard to Ruhr Occupation Policy.

WOULD MEET BRITISH VIEW

Reply of Brussels Cabinet to Baldwin's Plan Is Now in Poincare's Hands.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 29.—Both the French and Belgian replies to England will, it is stated tonight, be in the hands of Lord Curzon tomorrow evening.

Today at noon the text of the Brussels note was communicated to the Quai d'Orsay by the Belgian Ambassador and immediately dispatched over a private wire to Premier Poincaré at his country home at Sampigny. The French Premier is not expected to ask for any modifications of the reply, but should he make any suggestions, they will be examined by the Belgian Government tomorrow and the final text drafted for communication to London.

As has been forecast, this reply is in agreement with that of M. Poincaré in maintaining the decisions of the two Brussels conferences that no negotiations shall be held with Germany until passive resistance has come to an end and that the occupation will be reduced only in the measure of payments made.

Demands For Explanations.

But between the French and Belgian notes there will be a marked difference in treatment of the general question of reparations. The French reply, which is believed to be very long as well as containing criticisms of the British proposals, has a whole section of demands for explanations, especially with regard to payment of the inter-allied debts. M. Poincaré in his desire to safeguard French interests wishes a clear statement about how much England expects to obtain from Germany and how much she is willing to forego of her claims on France if she expects France to forego claims on Germany.

Thus the way is opened for a long series of negotiations, during which the German situation may change very radically and in a manner not altogether unfavorable to French desires.

The Belgians, who are less interested in this question of mutual indebtedness, have, it is understood, dealt with the British proposals in a much larger spirit. In the reply as submitted today to the French Premier there has been incorporated a good part of the proposals which Premier Theunis made to M. Poincaré some months ago.

These "studies" of solution, which included suggestions for the taking over by allied commissions of certain monopolies and revenues of the Reich, were intended by the Belgian Government as the basis for a Franco-Belgian reparations plan which would be presented to the world as an alternative to continued occupation which the two countries would ask Germany and the Allies to accept. M. Poincaré, however, stifled the whole attempt. For a week even the fact that the Belgian proposals had been made was kept secret and when at length the fact was divulged it was hurriedly prevented from leading to any positive end by the French Premier's visit to Brussels, where he agreed to continue discussion of the Belgian proposals and at the same time tied the hands of the Belgian Government with the promise that whatever came of them there would be no dealings with Germany without surrender.

Since then nothing has been heard of any Franco-Belgian reparations plan.

Not for Those Who Elected Him, but for Great-Great-Grandchildren, He Says.

STRESSES PRESENT NEED

Announces That 250 Have Accepted Places on Committee of One Thousand.

NEW ATTACK BY MAYOR

Governor Not to Decide on Extra Session Until He Confers With Senate Head.

The difference between the Citizens' Committee of One Thousand, which is circulating petitions urging the Board of Estimate to begin building new subways at once, and Mayor Hylan is that the Mayor wants to build subways for the great-great-grandchildren of the present residents of the city, while the committee wants to build subways now for the benefit of the people who elected the Mayor.

This was the explanation given yesterday by Frank D. Waterman, Chairman of the Committee of One Thousand, of the vital point of difference between the petitions being circulated by the committee and those which the Mayor will begin to circulate today. Mr. Waterman said the only way to convince the Mayor that the people wanted new subways now was to sign the committee's petitions. He added that he wished the Mayor luck in his bus petition, but that the person who signed the bus petition to get more buses ought to be smart enough to sign the subway petition to get more subways.

Although Mayor Hylan was absent at Saratoga Springs, a statement was issued from his office attacking Mr. Waterman, Lewis E. Pierson, President of the Merchants' Association, which sponsored the subway petition movement, and Louis Marshall, attorney for Edward Schafer, who obtained the bus injunction upheld by the Court of Appeals, as tools of the traction interests and characterized them as new players in the old traction game. The Mayor centred his fire on Mr. Marshall and asserted that the latter was now threatening him with removal from office because he had served the people.

Acceptances have been received from 250 of the men asked to serve on the Committee of One Thousand, and their names were made public. In practically every case the person accepting membership wrote a letter approving the purpose of the committee.

Finds Public Aroused.

"The Mayor is an experienced politician and we on the Committee of One Thousand are only ordinary business men," said Mr. Waterman in commenting upon the situation. "From present indications, however, the Mayor is making a great mistake if he thinks that the people of this city don't want work started at once on new subways.

"The replies which are coming in from the citizens who have been invited to join the Committee of One Thousand show that the town is up in arms against present conditions.

"Every mail is bringing in enthusiastic responses from subway riders who welcome this chance to protest against the unbearable conditions in the subways. The fact that our subway petition merely asks the Mayor to start digging the two new subways—one in Manhattan and one in Brooklyn—appeals to the common sense of the city, because the city wants subways now and not fifty years from now.

"Mayor Hylan's beautiful dream of wonderfully comprehensive subways sometime in the far distant future is fine, but it doesn't help the poor little stenographer who is being mauled and crushed in the subways today.

"The only difference between the Mayor and the Committee of One Thousand is this: The Mayor wants to build the subways for our great-great-grandchildren; we want him to build subways for the people of today who elected him.

"The only way for the people to convince Mayor Hylan that they want subways now and not fifty years from now is to sign the subway petition. I am sure that when the Mayor sees hundreds of thousands of petitions coming in the front door of City Hall asking him to get the new subways started at once he will remember his many promises to faithfully serve the people and get the new routes started.

"Let the Mayor get as many bus petitions signed as he wants. Lord bless him, I wish him luck! But the man who is signing the bus petition to get more buses ought to be smart enough to turn around and sign the subway petition to get more subways."

Business Men Approve Plan.

Mr. Waterman said he believed the Mayor would understand better how the people of the city were feeling if he made public some of the expressions in the thousands of letters he had received.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, July 29.—Premier Mussolini's fortieth birthday, which he celebrated today, furnished the occasion for a remarkable tribute of the nation's loyalty to and confidence in him.

Both his office at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and his private residence were literally flooded with telegrams, letters and missives of all kinds from all classes of citizens, praising him for what he had accomplished, encouraging him on the way he has chosen and expressing the hope that he would long be spared for "the good of Italy and of humanity."

By noon, 30,000 such messages had been received, and they still came pouring in. It was announced that Mussolini, being unable to answer them all personally, would publicly acknowledge them and thank the senders in the press.

This letter is typical of many, sent by Signora Colatei, two of whose three sons were killed at the front and the third was seriously wounded during the war:

"Hail, Chief. By urging Italy to enter the war you placed her foot along the road to glory. By defeating Bolshevism, you removed the last obstacles to the attainment of her high destinies. By your strength and wise policies, you have ensured her future greatness.

"Two of my sons died on the field of battle. I do not mourn for them, for the brave are not afraid to die. My only regret is that they are not alive now to see you bring their sacrifice to fruition.

"May you long be spared, Chief, for the future of our country. Proceed unafraid, for you have us all, true Italians, behind you."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 29.—While the people of the suburban town of La Grange are attempting to reconcile themselves to the shock of his arrest, George O. Hinchliffe, a prominent business man, is being questioned at the Chicago Detective Bureau as the slayer of Policeman Bryon Porter early yesterday morning. The policeman was shot and killed while trying to frustrate the robbery of a dyeing and cleaning establishment.

Bloodhounds caused Hinchliffe's arrest. They trailed him four times to his door. That and the fact that his car has been identified as the one the slayer drove, and that shoes found near the scene of the murder exactly fit him lead the police to think that he committed the crime or knows who did.

But the town can't believe it. Even the twenty men who followed the bloodhounds as they led unerringly to Hinchliffe's home are unwilling to accuse the man whom they have regarded as one of La Grange's most upright citizens.

Hinchliffe faced with a mass of incriminating evidence has never lost his calm. Taken into custody yesterday, freed and then rearrested today, he has continuously maintained his innocence. He denies living a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde existence.

The murder of the policeman occurred at 4 A. M. yesterday. He was patrolling his usually quiet beat when he surprised a lone robber attempting to break into the dyeing and cleaning establishment. The robber turned and fired. The policeman fell mortally wounded. The slayer fled, but trusted to his feet rather than the car in which he arrived.

Apparently he ran across an adjacent field, for searchers on Saturday found a pair of black oxford shoes.

The automobile was quickly traced to Hinchliffe. He readily admitted it.

"But," he explained, "that car was stolen on June 17. I notified the police of the theft at the time."

This was verified.

When the auto clew failed, the citizens demanded bloodhounds. The dogs arrived last night. Chief Matthews chose twenty men to follow the dogs. He armed them with rifles. They took the bloodhounds to the scene of the slaying. The dogs found the scent and a few minutes later they reached the back porch of the Hinchliffe home. The dogs were taken back over the trail. At one spot they were permitted to pick it up. Straight they led to the Hinchliffe home. The police and the posse were still unconvinced. Again the dogs were pulled back, and for a third and then a fourth time the same trip was taken. Always it ended at Hinchliffe's home.

SPLIT OVER FORMING STATE LABOR PARTY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 29.—The attempt to form a State labor party including railroad unions, State Federation of Labor and the Socialists ended tonight in a split, the railroad workers and the representatives of the Federation deciding to meet tomorrow and complete the organization along lines laid down today without the Socialists.

The final break came over the refusal of Morris Hillquit, representing the Socialists, to agree that the new organization should enter the campaign this Fall. A motion that such action should be taken was carried over his protest.

Following the meeting the delegates representing the labor delegates announced that they would meet tomorrow to perfect the organization.

Charges that the Socialist Party was attempting to swallow the State labor organizations were made almost as soon as the conference was opened.

The delegates were divided as to procedure. The first break came on the report of the Committee on Plan of Organization which was presented by Morris Hillquit, New York Socialist leader, Chairman of the committee.

The committee reported in favor of a representation of one delegate for each 1,000 of membership in the unions and for political parties one delegate for each 2,000 votes cast at the last Gubernatorial election.

William E. Fitzsimmons of Albany as attorney for some of the railroad unions charged that the Socialists were attempting to gain control of the organization and would control it on that basis of representation. An amendment was adopted allowing each political party not more than twenty delegates. Railroad unions are to have one delegate for each 1,000 of membership.

The next break came on the question of participating in election. The report favored taking no action until 1924. The railroad men objected to this and wanted to go into the Fall campaign for the election of Assemblymen. An amendment favoring participation this year was offered and Chairman Thomas E. Ryan declared it carried on close decision by a viva voca vote.

Mr. Hillquit appealed from the decision of the Chair and a roll call vote was ordered.

After a conference with the Socialists Mr. Hillquit withdrew his appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Chairman Ryan then said it was evident that the Socialists would support only their own candidate and that they should never have entered the conference.

More than 300 delegates attended the session. They included State labor leaders and officers of the "Big Four" railway brotherhoods. The conference was called to devise plans to obtain the nomination of State officials pledged to the interests of the workingman.

The original call for the gathering was issued to railway workers, and sixteen different railway unions were represented. After a two-hour debate it was decided almost unanimously to admit representatives of all labor organizations that were recognized last year at the Cleveland conference.

William E. Fitzsimmons of Albany, attorney for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, lauded the movement as one that would solve many of the problems of the laboring man and give him a voice in governmental affairs.

"You come here because you are dissatisfied," he said, "and you come from an army that counts for progress. If you go the right way you are going to get what you want. Labor has strength but does not use it to the greatest advantage. Big interests are organized and looking for every advantage. They have a lobby right here in Albany. The freedom of your forefathers came from dissatisfaction and you can obtain the same political freedom. The tendency today is to break down unionism and the big interests are constantly at work, never forgetful of their own progress. You have the strength of an army of giants. Use it with discretion, but use it.

"Agree on a purpose and anything reasonable is within your grasp."

POLICE COMB TAXIS FOR CLUE TO SLAYER

WOMAN WITNESS CAPTIVE

The New York Police Department yesterday made a thorough job of examing a certain type of taxicabs in its effort to discover the identity of the taxicab chauffeur from whose car, last Thursday night, a man shot to death Policemen Frank Romanello and Charles Reynolds, at Second Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street.

By order of Chief Inspector Lahey, hundreds of taxis were held up by policemen all over the city, their drivers questioned as to their whereabouts Thursday night, and in many instances the cars were taken to police stations. Whether this drive developed any clue by the process of elimination the police did not say.

One thing was accomplished, however, of which the police frequently were made cognizant during the day. That was the disturbance of the equanimity of drivers and taxicab owners, and in not a few cases of passengers who left the cabs in disgust. The police insisted, nevertheless, that this measure was a necessary step toward solution of the mystery.

Coupled with this effort was a search for the unknown woman companion of the slayer. Her screams led the doomed policemen to halt the taxicab and question the man beside her. She was apparently so terrified by the man in the cab with her that she pleaded with the policeman to desist, announcing she was the man's wife. The police believe it possible that she is now being kept prisoner by him lest she yield information leading to his arrest.

Run Down False Clues.

In their quest for this woman, detectives yesterday made several exciting trips to various addresses telephoned to headquarters. Two of these addresses were bungalows at Coney Island. In these cases, as in several others, the information proved erroneous, and probably purposefully so. One bungalow proved to be unoccupied. In some cases, too, the police learned they had been hoaxed or misinformed.

Headquarters placed stress on the fact that the police have no charges in mind against either the woman or the taxicab driver, believing that neither of them was aware of the slayer's intent to kill the policemen.

Many of the drivers employed by one taxi corporation complained to the company that their business was badly interfered with by policemen. One man asserted he had been stopped four times by policemen and questioned as to his whereabouts Thursday night and asked for descriptions of his passengers on that date.

One concern is said to have had difficulty in getting its drivers to go out last night. Of eighteen men on its roster eight refused to go to work until the questioning of chauffeurs by policemen had ceased.

One man walked into the East Sixty-seventh Street Station and complained that his ten cars were having a hard time because of the police campaign, and that in several instances passengers had left the machines rather than put up with the delay and embarrassment.

Three Questioned and Freed.

Robert Axelrod of 239 Rivington Street, was questioned about the shooting yesterday, after his arrest at Fourteenth Street and Third Avenue. He was taken with his battered taxicab to Police Headquarters, but was released when detectives of the Homicide Squad found he had no connection with the case.

Detectives canvassing garages found a suspicious-looking taxicab in a garage at Ninetieth Street and First Avenue. It bore a round dent beneath the rear window. They took the driver, Henry Wilmer of 403 East Eighty-seventh Street, to the East Sixty-seventh Street Station. Wilmer said he bought the car last Friday from the York Taxi Company of 38 West 145th Street. Albert H. Sorocki, manager of that company, told the police the dent was caused by a whiffletree. Both men were released.

Several other chauffeurs were taken to police stations to explain holes in their cars, and in all instances they were able to clear themselves.

Police Headquarters had asked all garages in and near the city to scan machines that might answer the description of the murder car and to report

PRESIDENT SUFFERS FROM NEW SYMPTOMS IN PTOMAINE ILLNESS; CONSULTATION HELD; WHOLE CALIFORNIA PROGRAM CANCELLED

New Complications Have Come, Says Sawyer, Announcing the Calling of a Consultation

SAN FRINCISCO, July 29 (Associated Press).—Brigadier General Sawyer, personal physician to President Harding, issued a bulletin late tonight on the President's condition, resulting from the attack of ptomaine poisoning. In it he said that new symptoms has arisen during the day, indicating complications and leading to the calling of a consultation of physicians.

The bulletin, signed by General Sawyer, said:

"Because of new symptoms having arisen during the day indicating complications in the case of the President, a consultation of physicians has been called. After this has been concluded bulletins will be issued regularly for the information of the public."

Immediately after issuing his statement, Dr. Sawyer met with Lieut. Com. Joel T. Boone, his assistant, Secretary Work and one or two others to decide on the physicians to be called into consultation.

4 WOMEN AND A MAN KILLED AT CROSSING

Bodies Strewn Along Long Island Tracks for 1,200 Feet in Rainstorm.

BACK FROM BIRTHDAY PARTY

Merchant, Two Actresses, a Fiction Writer and a Stenographer.

Four women and a man were killed when a Long Island railroad train going forty-five miles an hour tore out of the rain and darkness early yesterday morning and hit their automobile as it was midway across the tracks at the Merrick Road crossover at Rockville Centre, L. I. Six persons were killed and several injured yesterday in automobile accidents elsewhere.

Pending an investigation the watchman at the gates of the crossover was held in $5,000 bail for a hearing today. He said that his gates were down and that the high-powered car hit the gate in the middle and shot through with the wooden "arms" snapping back, unbroken and unmarked, into place. Nassau County officials were investigating a report that the gates were not down. Against this, officials of the railroad quoted the engineer of the train as saying he saw the gates swinging down through the mist as he approached the crossing.

The five killed in the crash were:

LEWIS, MISS MAE E., 30 years old, of 126 Lexington Avenue, formerly of Charlestown, W. Va., a stenographer and dictaphone operator.

MILLER, MISS GLADYS, 20 years old, an actress, of 338 Ninety-eighth Street, Brooklyn.

MILLER, MISS THELMA, 18 years old, sister of Gladys and also an actress.

TOLLEY, Miss Verna, 27 years old, of 126 Lexington Avenue; a writer of short stories and a free lance newspaper writer.

Summoned to Traffic Court.

When the body of Gottlieb was picked up the police found in an inner pocket a summons directing the manufacturer to appear in a Brooklyn court to answer a charge of violating a traffic ordinance. The summons had been issued not quite two hours before the accident and showed that it had been handed to Gottlieb at Clermont and Myrtle Avenues, Brooklyn.

Gottlieb, a member of the firm of Gottlieb & Rabinowitz, makers of women's wear, left his home at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. He had lived for fourteen years in the apartment house in St. Nicholas Avenue, near 145th Street, since shortly after his marriage. His wife left for the country two weeks ago and, according to friends, the party that ended in death had been arranged by Gottlieb to celebrate Miss Gladys Miller's birthday by a trip to visit his wife. Mrs. Gottlieb had not been located late last night. Gottlieb, after leaving his home, went to the C. F. G. Garage at 510 West 145th Street, where he had his Cadillac sedan refueled, washed and supplied with oil. He failed to tell the garage employes his destination, although it was his custom to tell them where he was going.

According to Richard E. Rodgers, brother-in-law of the Miller sisters, Gottlieb called for the sisters during Saturday afternoon. Apparently after that call he went to the Lexington Avenue address and invited Miss Tolley and Miss Lewis to go on the trip. The police were unable to trace the movements of the party after that stop, but ascertained that at the time of the accident Gottlieb was bound for Long Beach.

It was 2:19 A. M. when the machine rounded the sharp curve that brings Bank Street, Rockville Centre, down to the Merrick Road junction crossing. The rainstorm at that hour was at its height, with the pelting rain dimming windshields and diminishing vision. What happened then happened so quickly that all the facts may never be developed.

According to the gateman, Edwin John Scott of Babylon, he had witnessed the approach of the train and heard the usual automatic signal, when the engine with Francis X. Yeager of Babylon at the throttle was from 750 to 1,000 feet down the track. The train, known as No. 80, runs between the Pennsylvania Station and Babylon and is used largely by patrons of Manhattan theatres. Acting on the signals and the dim headlight he saw speeding toward him, Scott said that he had begun to lower the gates. Two red lanterns, one on each gate arm, were dropping through the darkness when Gottlieb's machine with the owner at the wheel came at high

DRY LEAGUE WARNS THE LEGISLATURE

Threatens to Make Proposed Inquiry "as Expensive as Possible."

Members of the Legislature are warned by the Board of Directors of the Anti-Saloon League of New York in a statement issued yesterday that any attempt by the Legislature to investigate the league would be regarded as "an overt act constituting a declaration of war against the 5,000 Protestant churches" in New York. Those in the Legislature who "try to interfere anyhow" are advised by the Anti-Saloon League that it will do all in its power to make "such an outrage as expensive as possible to those responsible for it."

The statement of the Anti-Saloon League is made public under the title of "Rejoinder to the Request of the Additional Grand Jury of New York County That the Legislature of New York State Investigate the Affairs and Activities of the League."

Distinct From Anderson Case.

At the end of the statement is appended an explanation which says:

"This statement was formulated and unanimously adopted by the board on July 24, for publication the following week, in order that it may be understood that this threat against the league raises an issue clearly distinct from the Anderson case." The statement follows:

"The Anti-Saloon League of New York is the working dry enforcement agency of approximately 5,000 churches in the State. Its business is carried on in an honest, straightforward way. Every year its books of account are audited by certified public accountants and a report made to the board. A statement of the amount received and the amount spent for various purposes is furnished to every newspaper in the State. All reports to the contrary notwithstanding, every expenditure of the league is covered by voucher check. It has violated no law.

"That it gives an amazing value in service and results for the money it handles is proved by the admissions of its enemies and the District Attorney's attempts to silence it. While its constituency resents and it will resist to the uttermost any infringement upon its rights, it has nothing to fear from the disclosure of all its activities, and it refuses to be intimidated by the threat of an investigation.

"To the present Legislature, which showed its nullification proclivities by repealing the State Dry Enforcement code, or to the new Legislature which Tammany hopes to elect, whichever receives this Grand Jury request, this agency of the churches through its board says frankly and flatly:

"You know that there is no valid objection to the Anti-Saloon League and its methods, except its uncanny efficiency in defeating the wets and utilizing them to help the dry cause.

"We tell you in advance there is no occasion for any attempted interference with the conduct of this particular business of the large majority of the churches of the State of New York.

"If you try to interfere anyhow we shall not assume responsibility by asking for any vote against such improper and outrageous proposal, though we promise in due time our utmost efforts to make such outrage as expensive as possible to those responsible for it.

"Any such palpably political move started by a legislative body will be accepted at once as an overt act constituting a declaration of war against the approximately 5,000 Protestant churches of this State committed to dry enforcement and represented by this board. We have proposed no such issue as will grow out of any such attempt. But we shall not flinch nor run from it if it is forced upon us. We know the temper of these churches. They have often been hard to arouse. But once aroused they act thoroughly. They have at least as much right to exist, and through an incorporated agency which they created and now maintain for that purpose, to exert an influence for good in governmental affairs as any political organization has to follow its usual pursuits, or as the farmers or laborers of the State have to organize to protect their legitimate interests.

"Further, nothing of this sort started in New York will stay confined within State bounds. If you want to use New York to set the nation on fire with indignation over the attempts of sinister forces working through corrupt political organization to set at naught the will of the majority expressed under the leadership of the dry churches, we are willing to be so used, confident that the God whom we serve, 'who maketh the wrath of man to praise Him,' and who has given this movement its greatest advances through the blunders of its enemies, will take care of the outcome and afford protection to those who are seeking to hasten the coming of His kingdom upon earth."

DECISION LATE AT NIGHT

President's Temperature Was Then 102 and His Pulse 120

HIS ASSOCIATES CONCERNED

Acute Indigestion Reported to Have Affected President's Heart Action.

TO STAY IN SAN FRANCISCO

Dr. Sawyer Now Admits President Had "Violent Case of Ptomaine Poisoning."

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—President Harding is very ill. Announcement was made soon after 11 o'clock tonight [3 A. M. Monday, New York time] that his entire California itinerary had been abandoned. At that hour his temperature was 102 and his pulse 120.

While those with him did not authorize any statement to justify alarm, it was evident that they were greatly concerned.

The following statement was given out by Secretary Christian:

"The President is deeply appreciative of the fact that the people of California and its great cities have planned a series of magnificent demonstrations in honor of his visit.

"He realizes the great inconvenience imposed on public authorities, volunteer committees and the people in general by reason of uncertainty whether the program in which he was to have participated can be carried out. He has been particularly concerned to avoid the possibility that many thousands would travel long distances and then be disappointed.

"Accordingly, after full consideration of all circumstances, he has desired the statement made public that by advice of his physician he will not attempt to carry out the program arranged for him for San Francisco.

"Moreover, the President is reluctantly persuaded that it will be necessary to cancel his entire California program."

Outside of this statement and the bulletin by General Sawyer, his personal physician, no other information was authorized. It is learned, however, that General Sawyer was apprehensive late this afternoon of a turn for the worse in the President's condition. While he was hopeful that a good rest would overcome the violent attack of ptomaine poisoning from which the President is suffering, he was careful to make no predictions. By some of those in the Presidential party this attitude was attributed to professional overcaution, but events tonight appear to have justified General Sawyer's course.

As this dispatch is written (at 5 A. M., New York time) members of the corridor on which the Presidential suite is situated in the Palace Hotel. All of them show signs of being anxious.

The theory of the President's friends is that acute indigestion has affected his heart action. The President is conscious and is much concerned over the serious turn his illness has taken.

Mrs. Harding is at the President's bedside and is greatly helping him by her calm and cheering attitude. She expresses confidence that Dr. Sawyer will be able to bring Mr. Harding back to health.

May Stay in San Francisco 2 Weeks.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29 (Associated Press).—In a formal statement issued at 10:50 o'clock tonight, President Harding announced the cancellation of "his entire California program."

The decision of the President was made known after a conference between the Executive's physicians and some of his advisers, who discussed the condition of the President resulting from the attack of ptomaine poisoning from which he has been suffering for the last few days.

No thought was given at the conference which preceded issuance of the statement, to any substitute for the cancelled California program, and it was said that the Chief Executive would remain in San Francisco until he completely recovered his health.

The statement was made authoritatively just before midnight that it would probably be ten days or two weeks before the President would be able to undertake any long trip, such as would be involved in a return to Washington. General Sawyer, it was said, had decided to take every precaution possible.

Formal notices of the cancellation of the California program and indefinite decision with regard to the water trip to the East coast were sent out by direction of Secretary Christian to the city officials of Los Angeles and San Diego, the two cities which the President planned to visit after leaving San Francisco, and to those in charge of the arrangements at Panama, San Juan, Porto Rico, and St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

The text of this notice was as follows:

"To my profound regret I am compelled in this manner to notify you and your assistants who have been preparing for the entertainment of the President that owing to his illness all arrangements for his further tour have been cancelled.

"The President has expressed his earnest wish that I indicate to you and through you to all who have participated in the arrangements for his reception and entertainment, his deep appreciation and disappointment that this course has been found unavoidable.

"He is acutely appreciative of the honor which the people of California had planned to confer upon him and wishes me to extend his hearty thanks to all of them. The facts regarding the President's illness will, of course, be communicated from time to time through the press. Mrs. Harding desires to have her own expression of appreciation joined with that of the President for all the hospitalities and manifold testimonies of good will that have been extended by the people of California."

It was generally agreed among those in the Presidential party that tonight's decision indicated that Mr. Harding's condition was worse than had been generally believed.

The belief was expressed by some of those close to the President that in addition to cancellation of the California program the water trip to the Atlantic coast by way of the Panama Canal probably would be abandoned also, although the matter was not discussed at tonight's conference.

Participating in the conference at which the decision with respect to the California program was reached were Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, personal physician to the President; Secretary Work of the Interior Department, himself a physician; George B. Christian Jr., Secretary to the President, and Mrs. Harding.

Some members of the President's immediate party indicated that a medical statement, giving the President's condition, would be issued later tonight. This statement [printed on Page 1] was presently issued by General Sawyer.

Two San Francisco physicians, selected by General Sawyer and his advisers, were called into consultation at midnight.

The two physicians called into consultation were Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, President of Stanford University and head of the American Medical Association, and Dr. Charles Cooper of San Francisco, a heart specialist.

Showed Improvement on Arrival.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 29.—Arriving at San Francisco this morning on his special train in which he left Seattle Friday evening, President Harding went immediately to the Palace Hotel, where he was put to bed by orders of his physician, Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer. He was weak and ill but his condition had improved to an encouraging degree.

"The President," said General Sawyer, "is suffering from a violent case of ptomaine poisoning, due we think to eating crabs put aboard the Henderson in Alaska a week ago. His condition has been aggravated by the strenuous activities at Seattle and the heat there and during yesterday's railway journey. While his condition has improved we must keep in mind that it is not Warren G. Harding, but the President of the United States who is ill."

General Sawyer indicated that the President's physical set back may be aggravated by copper poisoning. He explained that crabs in Alaskan waters frequently were tinctured by the heavy copper deposits there and that this phase of ptomaine poisoning from crab meat usually did not assert itself for a week or ten days after the crabs were eaten.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon General Sawyer informed THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the President was in a state of prostration, which he explained was the third stage of exhaustion. He added:

"The first stage comes when one is tired out. The effects of this may pass quickly with a simple rest. The second stage is extreme fatigue. In this the toxic effect of the exhaustion must be combated. In the third stage, which is prostration, we must await developments before we can know if the body is casting off the poison."

General Sawyer said that the President had been sleeping and that his condition was improved. He gave assurance that nothing would be concealed from the newspapers in regard to his condition.

The crabs which are supposed to have been the basic cause of the President's illness were placed aboard the Henderson last Sunday as a present from the citizens of Sitka. They were eaten by the President and the members of his party the next day. Other members of the party including Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, and George B. Christian Jr., Secretary to the President, were made slightly ill but have recovered fully.

The itinerary of President Harding's tour provided for his arrival at San Francisco Tuesday morning. He was to have spent Sunday and part of Monday in Yosemite National Park. On account of his illness and reports that the park area was experiencing an intense heat wave, the program for the Yosemite was abandoned and the Presidential train speeded to San Francisco.

Few at Ferry to Greet Him.

The President's special train arrived over the Southern Pacific Railroad at the Third and Townsend Street Station in San Francisco at 9 o'clock this morning. An arrival three hours earlier would have been possible by coming to San Francisco by way of the Oakland ferry, but it was deemed better not to subject the President to the necessity of getting out of bed at 6 o'clock and taking the ferry ride before he could get to the quarters provided for him at the Palace Hotel.

He was up and dressed as his train came to a standstil in the railway station. A small crowd of people was at hand to greet him there, but there was no cheering as he came out of his private car to the rear platform, from which he made many speeches since leaving Washington on June 20.

The President looked weak but no marked effects of his illness were noticeable. He shook hands with Mayor Rolph, who, with Mrs. Rolph, was waiting to welcome him in behalf of the municipality, and smiled to the people gathered around the rear platform. To members of his party who were there he spoke cheerfully and showed that he was endeavoring to appear in good spirits.

A limousine was waiting at the steps of the train platform. Into this the President climbed without apparent difficulty. Mrs. Harding took her place beside him and the car drove to the Palace Hotel. Going to the rooms known as "the Presidential suite," the President undressed and went to bed.

Mr. Harding, his physicians said, had a fairly comfortable night. He woke at about 2 o'clock this morning with pains in his stomach, which were relieved by medicine administered by Lieut. Commander Joel T. Bone of the Medical Corps of the Navy, Surgeon of the Mayflower and one of the attending physicians at the White House. The pains subsided soon and the President was able to get several more hours of sleep before his train arrived at San Francisco. When he awoke he felt very weak, due in part to the fact that he had not been able to take any food for two days.

To a large group of newspaper men, whom he received in a room of the Palace Hotel, General Sawyer explained that while there was nothing serious in the President's condition, it was necessary that he should have rest. It was essential to his recovery he said that the President should make no engagements outside of the official program for his San Francisco stay, which probably would be considerably curtailed. The program for San Francisco, said General Sawyer, was very strenuous, even for a man in the best of health to undertake, and it was imperative that the President should curtail his activities to a marked degree in order to be assured of a return to health and strength.

Auto Kills Boy in Meriden.

MERIDEN, Conn., July 29.—Morris Reader, 8 years old, 136 Crown Street, was struck by an automobile driven by Philip Strauss, 136 Crown Street, early this evening near his home here. He was taken in Strauss's automobile to the Meriden hospital suffering from a fractured skull. He died a short time later.

the end of their rope" in a political way. They realised they could not progress further, so far as against votes were concerned and could not elect their candidates. That was why the party was ready to join in a movement that would gain control of the Legislature for the laboring men. He was entirely in sympathy with the move made by the conference for progressive political action. A lack of mutual understanding had kept the various labor organizations apart.

"We believe a great task is to be accomplished by the producing people of the State and nation," he said, "but it will require the best that is in us. We who have made this great country have a right to a voice in it. The big interests want political indifference on the part of the working classes. The task is so difficult it will require more than one meeting, but out of this conference will rise a new, tremendous national power. We don't have to ask for favors, we have it in our grasp, we have the power to gain political supremacy. The vision is in our minds. It is not to be accomplished in a year, but it is coming. Let us stick together and fight together until the victory is won."

The name of Senator-elect Magnus Johnson brought forth much applause. The name was mentioned by Arthur E. Holden, National Secretary of the conference for progressive political action, who declared that Johnson's election had "thrilled the hearts and raised the hopes of every toiler in the country."

Mr. Holden spoke on the necessity of unity. The laboring man's right hand held the economic power through the strike and the left hand should hold the political power through the ballot. He said that organizations had been perfected in sixteen States.

J. E. Blaney, representing Grand Chief Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who was unable to attend, said he had never believed the time would arrive when the railroad men could be forced into politics. He urged that the time had arrived and asked the railroad men to get behind the movement with all their power. There were men on the farms and on the railroads, in mines and factories, who were capable of representing the people in legislative halls. He urged the formation of a local committee in every community to take up the work of the organisation.

"You must organize politically to make the big interests understand that you are a part of the Government," Thomas Ryan of the Order of Railway Conductors told the conference. "You get nothing because you are not organized and this is the first step toward organisation."

Asserting that the meeting was the start of the laboring man's political independence, Arthur J. Lovell, Vice President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said the power of the railroad unions was exemplified in 1914 when the whole Delaware & Hudson system was tied up for a day.

"Politics is a business," he declared, "and a lot of men you elect to represent you misrepresent you. They are there to represent the trusts. We have a Government of 'big business,' and it is our own fault.

"Find out what conditions are. When you find a man who will support the laboring man, take off your coat and work for him."

Other speakers were David B. Robertson, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; Charles J. McGowan, William H. Johnson, President of the International Machinists' Union, and J. A. Fox, Chairman of the Legislative Board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen of Pennsylvania.

EMPLOYMENT BOOM LIKELY TO CONTINUE

Federal Survey Indicates No Let-Up in Demand for Workers for Next Sixty Days.

RETAIL TRADE NOT SO BIG

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Employment conditions are expected to remain favorable in practically every part of the country during the next sixty days at least, according to information made available today by the Employment Service of the Department of Labor, of which Francis I. Jones is director.

A special survey of the country was made by the service. The conclusions reached are based upon telegraphic dispatches received from Federal State Directors. It also is shown that, while the shortage of common labor remains in some sections, the situation in that connection is not so acute as it was recently. Shortage of farm labor is indicated in several States.

A report covering New York State declares that "supply and demand of common labor" are about equal. At the present time there is reported a normal supply and demand for semi-skilled and skilled workers, excepting a shortage of bricklayers. The State Director added that "no change in industrial employment conditions is anticipated within the next sixty days."

For New Jersey a shortage of practically all building trades mechanics is reported.

"The supply of common labor," the dispatch adds, "while not yet equal to the demand, is becoming more plentiful than it has been for some time past. There is a shortage of female factory hands and of farm labor. It is predicted that there will not be any change in existing employment conditions throughout the next sixty days. Full employment of all classes of labor is expected to continue."

Considerable interest also was shown in the report concerning conditions in Pennsylvania, where the steel mills have complained of acute shortage of common labor.

Steel Mills in Need of Labor.

"In this State," the report says, "there is a shortage of common and semi-skilled and skilled labor, which will remain practically unchanged during the next sixty days. Building trades labor of every kind is extremely scarce, with no relief in sight. Steel and iron mills throughout the State of Pennsylvania are still somewhat hampered, due to the scarcity of this class of help. Large State and municipal road building projects continue to employ the available supply of common labor."

Ohio reports the supply of common and semi-skilled labor is easily taken care of by the strong demand. A slight shortage of skilled mechanics in the metal and building industries exists and a surplus of clerical and rubber workers prevails. The outlook for the next sixty days, it is stated, indicates that present satisfactory conditions will continue.

The Federal Director in Illinois reported that "it is anticipated that the supply of common labor will be quite equal to the demand for the next sixty days." Semi-skilled labor is well employed throughout the entire State and at the present time there is a shortage in the supply of skilled mechanics and foundry workers.

The survey made of Indiana showed a demand for common and semi-skilled labor which was slightly in excess of the available supply. There is a "tremendous demand" for skilled labor for work on building projects, and in some sections shortages are noted among the building trades, with practically no unemployment existing at the present time. The Director reported, "an optimistic outlook" for the next two months.

Reports On New England States.

In the New England States Connecticut reported that "a healthy demand for all classes of labor exists" and "that there is practically no unemployment in any section of the State, with the outlook favorable." The following report is made about Massachusetts:

"Reports from Massachusetts indicate a slight decrease in unemployment in the principal manufacturing industries of this State, although there is very little unemployment noticeable in any section. The supply of skilled building tradesmen and farm labor is inadequate and a seasonal shortage of hotel help prevails. Curtailment in manufacturing is considered temporary, and the prospects for better employment within the next sixty days are encouraging."

The State of Rhode Island reported a shortage of common labor and of skilled building tradesmen. Demands for farm labor were considerably in excess of supply. Some temporary depression was noted in textile mills and in jewelry manufacturing, but this condition is characterized as seasonal. The outlook for the next sixty days for employment of all classes of labor is considered excellent.

States in the South report conditions as generally favorable to a continuance of full employment. Alabama reported that the demand for common labor exceeded the available supply throughout the State and coal and ore mines are hampered by scarcity of labor. Arizona reported the industrial situation "excellent, with every indication that this condition will continue to exist." A shortage of competent farm labor exists.

Georgia reports a fair demand for common labor, with an adequate supply. The present demand will be greatly augmented within the next sixty days when cotton and other crops must be taken care of. There is a shortage of workers in the building trades.

Kentucky Reports Shortage.

A decided shortage of skilled and semi-skilled labor is reported in Kentucky, with the supply and demand of common labor about equal. Municipal, State and Federal work will employ all common labor with any surplus that might appear for some months to come.

Louisiana faces a scarcity of farm labor, but there is an ample supply of skilled labor and building tradesmen, except brick masons. Full employment of all labor is expected there within the next two months. North Carolina expects full employment within a short time. There has been some slackening in certain lines due to the Summer season and slight temporary unemployment owing to the closing of several mills for ten days.

In Oklahoma, the supply of common and semi-skilled workers is slightly in excess of the demand, which, however, has been gradually increasing since the harvest. Skilled labor is well employed. These conditions are typical of the situations found in most of the Southern States.

Among the States of the Middle West reporting is Michigan. There the demand for common labor on construction work and for farm help is considerably in excess of the supply. The supply of semi-skilled labor is about equal to the demand, with a shortage in skilled labor particularly noted among the metal trades.

Minnesota reports a strong demand for common labor in woods, on farms and for railroad track work, which it is expected, will continue for the next sixty days. A slight reduction in building operations is reported. Nebraska reported that the demand and supply of common labor were about equal. The outlook for full employment of all labor for the next sixty days is reported as "good."

The Northwestern States all report favorable conditions. In North Dakota a shortage of farm labor exists, which will become more acute as the harvesting season advances. Supply and demand of semi-skilled and skilled labor are adequate, with very little unemployment in anuy section of the State.

Oregon reports employment opportunities ample for all skilled and semi-skilled labor. There is a persistent demand for common labor, but no serious shortage was observed. Indications are that satisfactory employment conditions will continue for the rest of the year. Practically no unemployment is reported in Idaho and Washington.

Reports on Retail Trade.

In a review of the condition of retail trade, the Federal Reserve Board announced today that sales of most groups of reporting retailers were slightly smaller in June than in May, although the decline was less than is usual for this season of the year.

Business of the department stores decreased about 4 per cent. because of lower sales in the Southern and Western districts. Business in the large commercial centres continued to be active and was reflected in increased sales in the Boston, Richmond and Chicago districts.

The stocks of merchandise at department stores, the board declares, were curtailed in all reporting districts, and were on the average 7 per cent. lower than at the end of May. The rate of stock turnover increased for the fourth consecutive month.

Sales by chain stores in June were about the same volume as in May, except in the case of grocery and drug stores. Grocery chains reported a decline of 7 per cent., while the sales of drug chains increased 5 per cent. Mail-order sales decreased 11 per cent. during May and reflected a reduction of buying in rural districts.

"June trade was substantially larger than last year for all reporting lines," the board added. "Comparisons of trade with that a year ago are significant, inasmuch as they avoid seasonal influences, but it should be noted that prices are somewhat higher than last year and that chain systems have considerably increased the number of stores operated.

"The largest increases in sales over these in June, 1922, were reported by mail-order houses, five and ten cent stores and drug stores, and amounted to 25 per cent., 22 per cent. and 20 per cent., respectively. Reports from about 500 department stores, located in all parts of the United States, showed that sales in June were 14 per cent. larger than last year. Gains were reported from all Federal Reserve districts, and were particularly large in the Philadelphia and Cleveland districts. The comparison by districts indicates that trade is still relatively better in industrial sections than in agricultural sections."

1 Dead, 8 Overcome in California Fire

STOCKTON, Cal., July 29.—One man was killed, eight persons overcome, and from $800,000 to $1,000,000 worth of property was destroyed by fire in the heart of the business district here today. Homer Felts, aged 31, principal of the Porterville schools, was killed in a leap from the second story of the Philson Hotel.

Train Kills 13 in Autos in Two States; Six Others Die in Crossing Accidents

Special to The New York Times.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., July 29.—A Pennsylvania Railroad flier, speeding eastward between St. Louis and this city today, wiped out the lives of thirteen persons in two grade crossing accidents, in each of which it killed every person in an automobile trapped on the right of way and crushed them like an eggshell.

Only four persons died in the first accident, near Highland, Ill. In the second, at Liggett, Ind., eight miles west of here, the lives of nine were sacrificed in an effort to make up for time lost due to the first crash and bring the train into Terre Haute on schedule.

As a result of their double-death dealing trip and the high human cost of their effort to make speed, the train crew when it arrived there was in a state of nervous collapse. Division railway officails and detectives of the road's staff left here at once to investigate the accidents.

The train, No. 30, is one of the fastest limiteds on the road. It was drawn by two engines. When it reached the scene of the second crash the engineers were doing their utmost, and the heavy train, traveling at least fifty miles an hour, had attained terrific momentum. No. 30 was due at the crossing at 2 o'clock. It did not get there until 4:25.

Probably Raymond Thomasson of Danville, Ill., a young man of 21, thought the road, which was familiar to him, was clear at that hour. He drove his car, in which were eight persons besides himself, to the middle of the crossing before he saw the train thundering down upon him—if he ever did see it.

A fraction of a second later there was the shriek of a whistle, the grinding of brakes and the flier burst by, filling the air with wreckage of the automobile, carrying some of it along on the pilot, and flinging bodies in every direction. Those killed besides Thomasson were:

Mrs. Velta Bostwick, 41 years old, Danville, Ill.; Richard Bostwick, 16 years old, Clarence Bostwick, 18 years old, Trilla Bostwick, 13 years old, Etta Malesea Bostwick, 3 years old, children of Mrs. Bostwick; Mrs. Ethel Slavens, 21 years old, of Central Terre Haute; Leona Slavens, 3 months old, her daughter.

The bodies of the two children were wedged in the pilot bar of the engine and carried three-quarters of a mile beyond the crossing. Mrs. Slaven's small white dog that was in the automobile died soon after the accident, while it was trying to drag itself toward the lifeless body of its mistress.

The victims of the first smash in Highland, Ill., were: John Sezs, 40 years old, Sera Danka, 30 years old, Joe Lengyle, 35 years old, John Sezs Jr., 14 years old, all of Highland.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mo., July 29.—Four persons were killed here today when an automobile in which they were returning from Sunday school was struck by a Missouri Pacific express train. The dead are: Sam Robinson, 65 years old; Mrs. Sam Robinson, 60; Mrs. William Pierson, 48, and the latter's nine-year-old daughter.

WADESBORO, N. C., July 29.—A Seaboard Air Line train struck an automobile here today, killing one person and seriously injuring two others.

CASTLETON CORNERS, Vt., July 29.—One man was killed and another seriously injured when a freight train struck their automobile here today.

DUKE OF ORLEANS ILL; GUARDED NEAR LONDON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, July 30.—According to The Daily Express, Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans and head of the House of Bourbon, is detained at Inverness Lodge, a spacious villa in Roehampton, a suburb of London, male attendants being with him day and night. He is so ill, says that paper, that at times he suffers from delusions and has often been in a wild delirium.

Occasionally he cries: "I am here a prisoner, I, the King of France a prisoner."

He was staying at Oaklea at Wimbledon as the guest of Mrs. Charles Jarrott, formerly Lady Rosslyn, and was taken to Inverness Lodge in an ambulance in order to undergo special treatment. He complains, says The Daily Express, that he was removed to Inverness Lodge by four men against his will. The paper says the following official statement concerning his illness was made yesterday by his chief financial agent in England:

"The Duke contracted an infection of paludeene fever (malaria) during his recent travels in Africa. He was in poor health when he came from Brussels to London three months or so ago, hoping that the change would do him good. When he came to London he stayed at Oaklea, Wimbledon. There he became very much worse. The advice of eminent medical men in London and from Paris was sought and it was agreed among the members of the Duke's family that he should receive special treatment.

"It was impossible for this treatment to be given at Oaklea and for the sake of convenience the house, Inverness Lodge, was taken, furnished, as a suitable place where the Duke could be kept. Everyone of the Duke's relatives knows of his condition and of the steps that were taken. King George was informed, former King Manuel of Portugal making a journey to England for the purpose of telling the King.

"As a matter of fact the Duke did not know where he was coming when he was brought here. He practically was unconscious at the time and was carried out from his bed at Oaklea and removed here in an ambulance. The Duke is under the direct supervision of two leading doctors in London and doctors from Paris also come to see him. In addition, there is his private physician, Dr. Cromie, who is in charge of the house. Male attendants are always with the Duke. I am glad to say that the Duke, under treatment is now very much better. He still gets very tired but his attacks have been fewer. There is every hope that he will be well again in a month or so and be able to return home to Brussels. His sister, Queen Amelia of Portugal, comes frequently to see him."

Fire Alarm in Woolworth Building.

An automatic alarm which was accidentally sounded in the Woolworth Building early yesterday brought out firemen who hunted all through the building for signs of a blaze without finding one. The apparatus brought a large crowd to the scene.

AUTO THIEVES FLEE AFTER 3 COLLISIONS

Run Into Two Other Machines and Finally Crash Into a Trolley Car.

A three-mile chase through the Bronx ended just before midnight last night when the pursued car, having hit another machine earlier, crashed into an automobile, injuring the five occupants, and then bounded off and smashed into a trolley car. Fire started in the badly wrecked fugitive car, and in the excitement of arriving firemen and incipient panic among trolley passengers, three alleged automobile thieves escaped.

The fleeing car, a Hudson sedan, was sighted at Third Avenue and 140th Street, going north at 50 miles an hour, by Sergeant James Hughes and Policeman William Dudley in a police runabout. When Hughes commanded the chauffeur and his two passengers to halt, the machine answered with a burst of speed. Turning into 140th Street the sedan raced three blocks to St. Ann's Avenue and thence up to 161st Street, to the junction of Third Avenue. Hughes had his revolver out but did not fire, due to the danger of striking some one on the sidewalk.

At the junction of St. Ann's Avenue and Third Avenue the pursued automobile hit the rear of a Ford, spinning the lighter machine half around. The occupants of the Ford escaped injury. With speed undiminished the sedan went up Third Avenue and into Boston Road, where it gained steadily on the police machine in a race of one mile to Stebbins Avenue.

The sedan crashed into the automobile owned and driven by John Orr, 29 years old, of 2,770 Decatur Avenue, the Bronx. The injured besides Orr were his son John, 6 years old; his wife Catherine, 29 years old; his mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Hogan, 46 years old, of 1,356 Webster Avenue, the Bronx, and a friend, Robert Paterson, 29 years old, of 4,293 Park Avenue. They were badly cut by flying glass.

The impact of the collision sent the sedan into the trolley car with considerable force. Panes of glass in the surface car fell to the floor about the frightened passengers. The sedan was crumpled up against the side of the surface car. Flames sprang up when the tank of the fugitive machine was broken. Firemen who responded made short work of the fire, but in the excitement the three men in the sedan got away. One of them was said to have been deeply gashed across the face.

Police said that the license plate borne by the sedan had been issued for a Ford touring car. This led them to believe that the sedan might be one that had been stolen last night in Washington Heights.

Later the police traced the ownership of the sedan to Fred Arrigoni, owner of an automobile repair shop at Bergen Avenue and 152d Street, the Bronx. They learned that Carl Mayer Jr., chauffeur for Arrigoni, had taken out a party of his employers' friends for a trip. The party halted at an ice cream store at Broadway and 142d Street, and while they were in there the sedan was stolen.

speed around the turn and over the straight stretch of road to the tracks.

According to the railroad employe, the machine dashed through the partly lowered gates. Yeager saw the big covered car loom on the tracks, but could not check his speed in the short distance. The pilot of the locomotive caught the car squarely and for 1,200 feet the train went on, gradually grinding down to a stop. None of the passengers in the well-filled train was aware of the accident, and officials investigating the accident were of the opinion that this indicated a high rate of speed on the part of the train. Long Island officials, however, estimated the speed at from between thirty and thirty-five miles an hour. Experienced commuters on the train estimated the speed at closer to fifty miles an hour. The train was five minutes late.

Engineer Finds One Girl Still Living.

Engineer Yeager, with his fireman, Richard Hubbs and Conductor Walter Malin climbed out of the engine cabin and ran ahead to discover the extent of the damage. They found a twisted mass of steel and automobile upholstery wedged in the pilot of the locomotive. Tearing part of it away they found Miss Thelma Miller, terribly mangled, but still alive. She was hurried to the Rockville Center Sanitarium, but died five minutes after her arrival.

There was no trace of the other occupants of the car. The train crew and passengers helping them probably would have discontinued the search then and there, had not persons riding in other automobiles that had been halted on the opposite side of the tracks at the crossover informed them that five persons had been riding in the machine when the engine struck it. Armed with lanterns the train crew went back along the tracks and found the bodies of the other three women. It was some time before the body of Gottlieb was discovered. The man had been cut in two.

District Attorney Charles R. Weeks, Justice of the Peace Edward P. Neu and local officials promptly began an investigation. Representatives of the Long Island Railroad also hurried to the scene. District Attorney Weeks announced after an examination of the gates that they bore no signs of having been hit by a speeding automobile, but declined to go further along this line until the inquiry had been completed.

Witness Says Gates Were Hit.

Judge Neu, who is also Coroner, held a preliminary hearing. The first witness was Dr. Arthur Jacques of Lynbrook, Deputy State Health Commissioner and one of those who examined the bodies at the scene of the collision. Dr. Jacques testified that the westbound gates at the crossing were broken when he looked them over and that the eastbound gates were damaged but not broken. He said that he had gone into Scott's shanty at the tracks and had there found two red lanterns, one badly battered and the other twisted. These lanterns, Dr. Jacques testified, had been on the gates, according to Scott's statement to him.

The second witness was William Zeller, son of a Lynbrook restaurant proprietor. He saw the accident. Zeller testified that he had been in an automobile directly back of the Gottlieb machine, about 400 feet away, as nearly as Zeller could judge on the misty night.

"Did you see any red lights on the gates?" asked District Attorney Weeks.

"No," said the witness.

"Were the gates down?"

"No, I do not think so," replied Zeller. "If they had been down, I think I would have seen the red lights."

Police Captain Eyles Bacon of Rockville Centre corroborated Dr. Jacques's testimony as to the condition of the gates. The preliminary hearing was then adjourned until this morning.

For hours after the accident, the only body identified was that of Gottlieb. He was identified through business cards, his watch and the license plate of the wrecked machine. Late in the afternoon a man who admitted that his name was not "John Smith," and who was understood to have been an actor at one time, identified the bodies of Miss Lewis and Miss Tolley. He declared that Miss Tolley was the daughter of a Pittsburgh newspaper man, but declined to give additional facts about the young women or about himself.

Accompanying the man was a woman who said she was Mrs. Fay Brookes of 3,120 Broadway. She told the investigating authorities that until two weeks ago Miss Tolley and Miss Lewis had made their home with her at the Broadway address, but that recently they had accepted the invitation of a friend, leaving town, to share the Lexington Avenue apartment. Mrs. Brookes, who was as uncommunicative about herself and her business as Mr. "Smith" had been, said that Miss Lewis was originally from Charlestown, W. Va., and that her mother, Mrs. A. J. Hall, made her home there. Mrs. Brookes told the police that she would communicate with Mrs. Hall without delay. "Mr. Smith" said that he would make arrangements to claim the body of Miss Lewis from the Rockville Center Morgue.

At the Lexington Avenue address reporters were informed that "Mr. Smith" was "Mr. Jones," and all further information was refused.

Other Automobile Tragedies.

The automobile tragedies elsewhere began with the death of Michael Geisler, 54 years old, of Thornwood, a town near Pleasantville, N. Y. He had been visiting John Schimick, and when Schimick started to drive Geisler home he objected to the slow pace maintained by Schimick. According to the latter, Geisler reached over and jammed the speed higher. The automobile leaped forward suddenly and Schimick lost control. The car overturned, pinning both men beneath it. Geisler died an hour later in the Grassland Hospital from a fracture of the skull. Coroner Snowden of Peekskill exonerated Schimick.

Sylvia Eisenberg, 3 years old, of 2,860 West Twenty-second Street, Coney Island, was struck by an automobile while crossing the street in front of her home. She was dead when she reached the Coney Island Hospital. J. Triggs, owner and operator of the automobile, who lives at 324 Rockaway Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide.

Joseph Carrolo, 11 years old, died yesterday when an automobile operated by Harry Compione, a special policeman, living at 669 North Seventh Street, Newark, injured him in front of the Carrolo home at 398 North Sixth Street. The boy's skull was fractured. Campione, who said that the lights of another car had blinded him, was held on a technical charge of homicide.

Train Kills Two Men.

Two men were killed and a boy badly injured when the motor truck in which they were riding was struck by a Reading Railroad train near Glassboro, N. J. The men killed were Clarence Dubel, 39 years old, a farmer of Bowner, N. J., and William Hazel, 38 years old, of Germantown, Pa. The boy was Raymond Dubel, the [illegible]-year-old son of the dead farmer.

Dubel was taking Hazel, a visitor, on a trip through the country. The motor truck was struck as it was endeavoring to speed over a crossing in front of the approaching train. Mrs. Dubel was in an automobile back of the truck and witnessed the collision. She collapsed when informed that her husband was dead. Blame for the accident was not fixed, pending an investigation by the authorities and the officials of the railroad.

Six firemen and several persons on the street were saved from injury last night when Fireman John Healy, driver of Engine Company 91, drove his truck into an elevated railroad pillar at 108th Street and Third Avenue. The steering gear of the automobile truck had broken and the heavy machine was plunging toward an excited group when Healy acted. Healy was going forty-five miles an hour when the steering apparatus failed, but he managed to shut off the gasoline and crowd on his brakes. The truck was badly damaged, and the firemen went to the fire at Third Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street on another piece of apparatus.

Struck by an automobile as he crossed First Avenue at Sixtieth Street, Andrew C. Serle, 5 years old, of 405 East Sixtieth Street, was taken to Flower Hospital with a compound fracture of the right leg and internal injuries. The automobile was owned and driven by Christine Elmer of 436 East 146th Street, who was not held.

Irwin Brownstein, 7 years old, of 551 Broadway, Brooklyn, riding in a machine owned by his father, Morris Brownstein, was badly cut when the car skidded into a Second Avenue elevated pillar at Seventy-sixth Street. The windshield was shattered, and pieces of the flying glass struck the boy. He was treated at Lenox Hill Hospital.

Car Hits Boy and Speeds Away.

Philip Bergin, 6 years old, of 3,064 West Twenty-fourth Street, Coney Island, was playing in the street in front of his home when he was struck by an automobile which failed to stop. The boy was taken to the Coney Island Hospital, where he was reported to be dying last night from a fractured skull. According to the police, witnesses declared that the license number of the car that failed to stop was 333-342. Detectives said that license had been issued to Frank D. Cary of 347 Van Brunt Street, Brooklyn, and efforts were made to locate him to ascertain if he had been in the car at the time of the accident.

Four were injured when an automobile skidded and crashed into a subway elevated pillar at Westchester Avenue and White Plains Road. They were L. Hall, 35 years old, of 946 Hoe Avenue, the Bronx, and his brothers, Gummak, 33 years old; Harry, 9 years old, and Sonnie, 4 years old.

The Yonkers police began a search for the driver of an automobile which struck a wagon driven by John Zeischner of 136 South Thirteenth Street, Mount Vernon, in Yonkers Avenue, Yonkers, killing the horse and then speeding away. The witnesses to the collision failed to get the fleeing motorist's license number, but in his haste to make off he lost a soft drab cap and the mirror of his car, which had been wrenched loose in the crash.

MISS TOLLEY A DIVORCEE.

Husband Charged Desertion, and She Did Not Contest the Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 29.—Miss Verna Tolley, daughter of C. Edward Tolley of 319 North Beatty Street, attracted nation-wide attention several months ago when she instituted divorce proceedings in Pittsburgh against her former husband, Eugene O'Neill Herron, charging that he attempted to obtain a commission in the army by forcing her to accept the attentions of high army officers.

Unable to substantiate her allegations, Miss Tolley, a former Y. W. C. A. worker, stationed at Camp Lee and Camp Dix during the World War, and a fiction and short story writer for New York newspapers, was unsuccessful in getting a decree.

Mr. Herron denied her charges and introduced evidence at the trial that instead of assisting him in getting a commission, Miss Tolley influenced a Congressman at Washington to procure a commission for a prominent East End physician. Letters, alleged to have been written by Miss Tolley, then Mrs. Herron, to officers in the Eightieth Division, as well as privates, were offered in evidence. Miss Tolley, it was said, confessed writing to other men, but claimed she did so to cheer them.

Mr. Herron accused his wife of making trips to Philadelphia, Washington, Johnstown and Uniontown, Pa., with the East End physician. Miss Tolley, according to claims, admitted meeting the doctor at these places, but denied misconduct.

A few months later Mr. Herron obtained a divorce from Miss Tolley on charges of desertion. Miss Tolley did not contest the case. Mr. Herron testified before the master in the case that his wife refused to live with him when he returned from France.

Rumors were afloat in New York recently that Miss Tolley was engaged to Baron Jean de Saint Mart, French aviator. A story was printed later in New York newspapers saying they were going to be married this Summer and would make their home in France. The reports were dealt a knockout blow when Miss Tolley denied her reported engagement.

Mr. Tolley said he would wire the Chief of Police at New York City to obtain positive identification. Miss Tolley's body will be brought to Pittsburgh for burial. She leaves only her father.

THREE CLAIM HIM AS THEIR HUSBAND

Deserted Woman Starts Hunt That Results in Her Finding Two Others.

FACE PRINTER IN STATION

"I'll Get You Out," Says One; "I'll Keep You In" Says Another as He Goes to Cell.

Having more wives than the law permits was the charge that landed Harry Bernard, 38 years old, of 318 East Eighth Street, in a cell of the Fifth Street Station last night. Bernard, who is a printer, with a business at 15 Moore Street, according to the police, did not deny the accusations of the three Mrs. Bernards, who were all at the police station to tell of their shattered romances.

It developed, the police record shows, that Mrs. Ida Stern of 350 East Fourth Street, who appears in the complaint as wife No. 2, was recently deserted by Bernard and she started an investigation of her own that located another wife, Mrs. Anna Bernard, at 117 Essex Street, who, according to her story, married Bernard thirteen years ago. She said Bernard was the father of her two children. She appears on the record as wife No. 1.

Mrs. Stern, who claims Bernard married her Nov. 6, 1922, in the Municipal Building under the name of Harry Stern, said that wife No. 1 was not at all surprised when she learned that Mrs. Stern had been married to Bernard and suggested to Mrs. Stern that she go to 318 East Eighth Street, where she would find Mrs. Bernard the third.

The three women compared marriage certificates, dates and rings and then hurried to the Fifth Street Station, where they told their stories to Detectives Otto Ransburg and Michael Orlowsky, who went to 318 East Eighth Street and arrested Bernard.

At first the prisoner was indignant, but when he was confronted with the three women he shrugged his shoulders and became quiet. Lieutenant McLaughlin, a married man, looked sympathetically at the prisoner and asked if he had not found one wife enough for him. Again the prisoner shrugged his shoulders, but volunteered: "The last was the best of them all."

He then signified that he was ready to go to a cell or any place else except back home.

As Bernard was led away wife No. 3 said: "I'll get you out, Harry."

Wife No. 2 shouted: "I'll keep you in, Harry."

But wife No. 1 said not a word, as she started homeward to put her two children to bed.

BREAK GROUND FOR CHURCH

Exercises at Woodhaven, Led by Pastor, Attended by 300.

Ground was broken yesterday for a new building of the Emanuel Evangelical Reformed Church, Woodhaven Boulevard and Eighty-ninth Avenue, Woodhaven, Queens. The building will cost $100,000. The Rev. W. Valnata, pastor, who turned the earth, used a gilded shovel. There was music by the Ottilie Orphan Asylum Band of Jamaica. More than 300 persons were present.

Since the consolidation two years ago of the Emanuel Lutheran Church and the German Reformed Church, both of Woodhaven, into the present congregation, services have been held in a small chapel next to the new site.

HELD FOR ROBBING STORE.

Police Say Prisoner Asserts It Was His First Offense.

Abe Kaplan, alias Joe Brown, 41 years old and living at the Penn Hotel, Forty-second Street and Lexington Avenue, was arrested last night, charged with attempting to rob the Assyrian Drug Company, 10 Greenwich Street.

As Patrolman Adolph Selledler of the Old Slip Station was passing the drug store on the opposite side of the Street he saw a dark form crouching in front of the door. Sneaking up from behind he saw a man diligently at work with a fifteen-inch jimmy. According to the police Kaplan told them it was "tough luck being caught on the first job." The police say that he has a record, however, and that his arrest may furnish a lead to the many recent robberies of drug stores for narcotics and liquor.

Boy's Leg Broken by Wagon.

While riding a bicycle at Lexington Avenue and 105th Street yesterday afternoon, Harry Dribble, 16 years old, of 1,444 Park Avenue, was run down by a horse driven by Benjamin Hymowitz of 1,722 Second Avenue. A wheel of the wagon passed over the boy's left leg breaking the hip bone. Dribble was taken to the Fifth Avenue Hospital.

GREW GETS PLEDGE ON TURK MINORITIES

Ismet Pasha Promises Treaty Assurance as to Equitable Treatment of Christians.

BALKS ON PROPERTY CLAIMS

Will Not Agree to Arbitration Until Nature and Extent of American Damages Are Known.

LAUSANNE, July 29 (Associated Press).—Turkey has undertaken to give some kind of assurance concerning equitable treatment of the Christian populations in Turkey. Joseph C. Grew and Ismet Pasha devoted Sunday to a further discussion of the unsettled points of the Turco-American treaty, and Ismet's promise about the minority peoples in Turkey was one of the fruits of the conversation.

On the remaining question, however, of the American claims for damage to property, Ismet, with his customary tenacity, declared that Turkey was entitled to know the nature and extent of the claims. He might accept arbitration, as Mr. Grew advocated, he said, but it should be restricted to definite fields, to be exactly determined.

Mr. Grew explained that the United States was in no position to say just what claims would be filed; they were probably not great in the aggregate, but the United States wanted the principle of just compensation established in the treaty. The day ended with honors even on this question, with some signs that agreement may not be far distant.

The Turks said today that Mustapha Kemal Pasha had ordered Ismet Pasha to leave Lausanne by Wednesday, in which event Ismet might leave the experts behind to conclude the negotations. This project probably would be disastrous, as the Americans undoubtedly would quit Lausanne at the same time as Ismet.

In connection with the American demand for recognition of the claims of American companies and individuals in consequence of war damages, the Turkish spokesman here today said that Turkey and the Allied powers in their treaty mutually renounced all claims for losses suffered during the war by governments or their nationals.

While the American case was somewhat different, he added, the Turks made the point that Turkey under the Allied treaty abandoned her right to £5,000,000 deposited during the war in Berlin and Vienna by the German and Austro-Hungarian Governments as a loan to Turkey to provide a cover for the first issues of Ottoman paper currency. These sums have been transferred to the Allies by Germany and Austria in accordance with the treaties of Versailles and St. Germain.

The spokesman remarked that the American representatives at Lausanne had imposed reservations insisting on the right of the United States to have a voice in the disposition of this sum as one of the powers associated with the Allies in the war, and hence the United States in principle benefited. The question of damages to Americans, it was added, remained one of the disputed topics in the Lausanne treaty negotiations, the Americans holding out for arbitration. The Turks admit that the Turks suffered no losses from the United States during the war. The Turks seem to fear that large claims may be made against them which they will be unable to meet.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 29 (Associated Press).—Ratification of the new peace treaty is not likely before the third week in August owing to the delay in the meeting of the National Assembly. The delay in opening the Assembly is due to the failure to complete the elections in numerous constituencies.

The Government has decided to commence demobilization of the troops. The Angora Assembly is expected to pass a measure of general amnesty. This will be to commemorate the signature of peace.

The Government contemplates nationalizing the Anatolian railways, as foreign control has been found inconvenient. It is reported that English and Swiss banks are offering a loan to enable Turkey to buy the lines.

Sees Russia Biggest Grain Exporter.

MOSCOW, July 29.—America in the near future undoubtedly will lose its priority as a grain exporter to Europe and will cease to be Russia's competitor because Russia is much nearer to Europe, in the opinion of A. Prigerin, Director of the State Grain Export Company, as expressed at the session yesterday of the Moscow Commercial Exchange. The conference discussed the condition of agriculture in America.

BERNE RIVER VICTIM A BAY STATE WOMAN

Miss Eliza Robbins Came From Family That Gave Much to Arlington.

BERNE, July 29.—It was Miss Eliza Robbins who was drowned Friday night when an automobile in which she and her sisters, Ida and Claire, struck a tree in the Valley of Simmen and fell into the Simmen River.

Miss Ida Robbins was badly bruised and was taken to a hospital at Erlenbach. The physicians say she will be able to leave the institution in a few days. Miss Claire Robbins escaped uninjured. The chauffeur suffered slight wounds about the head.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., July 29.—News of the death in Switzerland of Miss Eliza Parker Robbins, member of one of Arlington's wealthiest families, came as a distinct shock to the community.

She was 66 years old, the second of three daughters of Eli and Maria C. Robbins. With her two surviving sisters she practically had lived all her life in the old Robbins mansion on Massachusetts Avenue, that town. The three sisters had been touring Europe for two years.

Nathan Robbins, their grandfather, was President of the Faneuil Hall Bank of Boston, and Director of several Boston corporations.

Winfield Robbins, a cousin, gave to Arlington its Town Hall, erected at a cost of $200,000. At the same time the town was given a memorial fountain, erected by the Misses Robbins in memory of Winfield.

Mrs. Maria C. Robbins, mother of the three sisters, gave Arlington its library.

HEAVY RAINS FLOOD PENNSYLVANIA TOWNS

Six Inches Fall in 34 Hours—Man Drowned—Crops Ruined—Railroads Washed Out.

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., July 29.—A fall of 6.15 inches of rain in thirty-four hours, the heaviest in years, caused serious damage in this section the last two days. The rain ended this morning, but not until railroads had been tied up for the second time in forty-eight hours.

Residents of Benton, twenty miles from here, were called from their beds early today when the town was threatened by the rising waters of West Creek, which came up fifteen feet in an hour. The town itself escaped damage, although four feet of water stood around homes near the creek.

Oats that had been harvested were swept down on the flood, hundreds of sheaves of the grain passing here. The false work of a large bridge under construction over Fishing Creek here was swept away, and cellars in Bloomsburg's business section were flooded.

At the height of the storm 1.49 inches of rain fell in forty-one minutes.

Railroads opened their lines late yesterday, after more than twelve hours delay, only to be tied up again during the night by renewed storms. A steam shovel was used to fill a bad washout along the Bloomsburg Division of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western below Danville, and the section employes of all railroads worked all of last night and today.

Boats were used in Fanville when a considerable portion of that town was flooded by the overflow from Sechler's Run and Mahoning Creek.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., July 29.—A cloudburst up Muncy Creek today sent the creek rapidly up to a higher point than known since the 1889 flood. Fields were covered and badly washed, and thousands of dollars damage done to crops. George E. Lattimere, who was marooned on what became an island, was drowned in attempting to regain the mainland.

MRS. BUZZI GETS STAY.

Sing Sing Officials Served With Notice of Appeal.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, July 29.—Sing Sing officials announced yesterday that they have just been served with a notice of appeal which stays indefinitely the execution of Mrs. Anne Buzzi, convicted of killing Frederick Schneider, contractor, in the Bronx.

The execution was to have taken place the week of Aug. 19, but the appeal will compel Warden Lewis E. Lawes to postpone it until the motion for a new trial can be argued before the Court of Appeals. In the ordinary course of events, a slayer waits four or five months before receiving the decision of the high court. Mrs. Buzzi made no comment when told that the appeal had been filed at the prison office.

ASSAIL JUNKET FUND OF BRITISH AIR FORCE

Criticism of Ministry for Extravagance and Lack of Control.

COMPLAINT ON ALLOWANCES

Attack by Committee on Fund for Entertainment, on Which No Report Is Made.

LONDON, July 29.—A great tendency toward extravagance and lack of financial control is the criticism leveled against the British Air Ministry in the report of the Select Committee on the Air Force, just issued.

The practice of giving entertainment allowances to the higher grade officers without the latter being asked to account for their expenditures, is especially subjected to adverse comment. Thus, it is pointed out, the air attaché in Washington, in addition to his salary, gets £1,800 a year for entertaining without being required to show how it is spent, while the Air Marshall receives a £365 entertainment allowance.

The appropriations under this head in the present year's estimates total £9,200, of which £5,000 are for the air attachés and £4,200 for the senior ranks of the air service.

Complaint is also made in the report that "when men of the air force are serving abroad and exchange is against them, the Government makes up the difference, but in the reverse case there is no corresponding return to the Government."

The committee is further puzzled as to why group captains and chaplains, after 18 years' service, should by rule be entitled to two servants, except that perhaps, "as the officers advance in rank, there is a certain dignity to be kept up which is recognized in all walks of life."

HOPES FOR DEAL WITH JAPAN

By Wireless to The New York Times.

MOSCOW, July 29.—Karahan, the Soviet Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will leave Moscow on Aug. 3 for Peking as Ambassador in place of Joffe, now in Tokio.

The appointment means that the Soviet Government expects negotiations with Japan shortly to enter a practical phase demanding Joffe's presence at Tokio for a considerable period. When he first went to Tokio some months ago it was ostensibly for the sake of his health—to take the Japanese baths or something of the kind. Now that pretense is abandoned and the new move is held here to foreshadow a Russo-Japanese agreement involving Japanese recognition of the Soviet Government in return for valuable facilities to Japanese trade in Siberia.

Karahan's appointment to Peking emphasizes Russian interest in China and the Russian intention no longer to play a subordinate rôle in Chinese events.

ASK FRENCH-BELGIAN BAN.

Bavarian Papers Resent Their Coming to Esperanto Congress.

BERLIN, July 29.—Whether French and Belgian delegates should be welcomed at the Esperanto Congress to be held in Nuremberg on Aug. 2 to 5 is a question the Munich and other Bavarian newspapers are raising.

Why this congress should be strictly international, when the French and Belgian societies of ophthalmologists have resolved not to participate in the International Congress of Ophthalmologists to be held in London on 1925, if the Germans take part in it, is one of the questions that are being asked.

The newspapers remind the population of Nuremberg of the ban established on the Belgians and French because of the Ruhr occupation, and urge their refusal to entertain French or Belgian delegates or to sell them anything.

Accepts Call to Utica Pastorate.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 29.—The Rev. Thomas H. Saunders, who has been pastor of the Universalist Church here since September, 1919, has resigned to take effect Oct. 1. He is to become Pastor of the Church of the Reconsiliation at Utica, which has just celebrated its 100th anniversary. He has been pastor of churches at Meriden, Conn., and Amesbury, Mass.

ONE RED OUTBREAK OF GERMAN SUNDAY

crats on Saturday issued an urgent appeal to the workers not to listen to the Communist suggestion to cause trouble by disobeying the orders of the Police President and British authorities.

Despite this prohibition a large number of Communists came in small groups from the suburbs, strolled to the centre of the city and congregated in the Hohen Casino, but dispersed on the arrival of the police.

Three persons have been arrested by the British military authorities for being in possession of explosives. Three hundred weight of dynamite was found in their houses. It is believed the explosives were stolen from a factory near Schlebusch. The Social Democratic Rheinisch Zietung learns that other arrests in this connection may be expected during the next few days among Nationalists and university students.

In Essen the French prohibited all demonstrations, particularly a march to Bochum where the Communists had decided to concentrate their followers from the whole of the Ruhr. The new "Blue" police of Essen, Oberhesser and Mulheim, the formation of which has been sanctioned by the French, were expected by the latter to frustrate the Communists' plan and French local commanders were instructed to see that they did so.

DUESSELDORF, July 29 (Associated Press).—The much heralded Communist demonstrations against what is called the German Fascisto proved complete failures today, according to reports reaching Düsseldorf.

Although the occupation authorities were ready to put down any attempts at holding meetings, there were indications this evening that no force of any kind was necessary; in fact the day apparently was one of the most uneventful Sundays in many weeks, as far as indicated by reports—or, rather, lack of reports—reaching French headquarters.

NEW MONEY SCHEME HEARTENS GERMANY

Paper Currency Based on Gold Eagerly Awaited—French Plan Ruhr Franc.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, July 29.—"New money's in sight," is the optimistic cry ringing throughout Germany as the result of the announcement by the Reichsbank that the problem of the gold credits for the new currency is almost solved.

The new currency will be paper, but will be based on gold and will be brought into circulation as transitory money until normal monetary values are re-established.

It will be circulated simultaneously with the present paper marks, thus facilitating the transition from a paper to a gold basis, it is said. Herr Ravenstein, President of the Reichsbank in Berlin, is working on the plan.

Plan to Relieve Ruhr Money Crisis.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, July 29.—In view of the grave situation which has arisen in the Ruhr through the mark's headlong tumble into what appears to be a bottomless pit, the French are thinking that the moment is opportune to take matters into their own hands to save at least that part of Germany which they occupy from falling into a state of utter chaos, whatever may happen to the rest of the Reich.

The time may have come, it is thought, to take the step which has long been advocated in certain quarters—but which from various reasons hitherto has been considered inexpedient—namely, to institute a new monetary system on a franc basis. This franc will not, of course, be guaranteed by the Bank of France. To do that would mean further inflation of French currency at the very moment when France is straining every nerve to achieve further reduction.

The plan elaborated by the experts who have been examining the problem is to guarantee the issue of Ruhr francs by earmarking a certain percentage of Ruhr riches for redemption. These, according to the latest French estimates, amount to from 110,000,000,000 to 120,000,000,000 gold francs.

The position would, therefore, be somewhat similar to that existing today in the Sarre, where the special franc is also in circulation, although the application plan would provide considerably greater difficulties in the Ruhr than in the Sarre. The Sarre is under control of the League of Nations, while in the case of the Ruhr and other parts of occupied Germany the French alone would control matters.

Circulation Through French Banks.

Among the chief problems to be faced should the measure be applied, as seems likely, is that of getting the new money into circulation. It is learned, however, that preparations have long been made and that everything is practically ready today, and that an important Alsatian banking concern would undertake the issue. The fact that the French may themselves soon take over the working of a large number of mines in the Ruhr and also various other industrial concerns should considerably facilitate the matter, as the labor there would naturally be paid in the new currency, which would act as a means of rapidly getting the Ruhr franc into circulation among the inhabitants. It would probably prove necessary—as in the Sarre—to maintain both the new franc and the old mark as legal tender for a considerable period.

Whatever the attitude of the German Government and the rest of Germany may be, there can be little doubt that a large majority of the population in the occupied territory would welcome this or any other measure bringing relief from the present situation, which is daily becoming more unbearable.

All reports received show the position to be lamentable enough. Despite the high pressure at which the printing presses are working everywhere—nearly all the municipalities are now issuing local marks—they cannot supply the needs. And when perchance the people do obtain marks, they are deploring the fact that those marks cannot buy anything because the purchasing power has dwindled to nothing at all.

Should, therefore, the French supply a sort of currency in which the people can place a greater amount of faith than in the mark, there seems to be little reason why its introduction should not be generally welcomed. That is the way in which those advocating the immediate adoption of the plan argue today.

Ruhrites Go Shopping for Marks.

DUESSELDORF, July 29 (Associated Press).—Despite the impossibility of obtaining marks from the mushroom banks which for the last few days have been keeping open night and day and on Sundays in order to cash every piece of available foreign currency for paper marks, at tremendous profit, the people of Duesseldorf promenaded along Duesseldorf's Fifth Avenue or had their swims in the Rhine as usual, apparently unconcerned with reparations affairs.

The business of these banks was greatly checked Saturday because of their inability to obtain marks.

Although the official quotation today was 75,000 marks to the franc, these exchange peddlers were giving only 53,000, and then only in large lots. But the inhabitants apparently took the stand that no marks were required to promenade or to swim; at any rate, they did not become frantic because of any lack in marks. They seem fast to be adopting the adage, Sufficient unto the day are the marks thereof, because apparently there is no use to buy more marks than are needed today, as they may be almost worthless tomorrow.

The people now are getting the habit of marketing daily for marks, as for potatoes, carrots and other vegetables.

MISSISSIPPI NEGRO IS BURNED AS STAKE

YAZOO CITY, Miss., July 29.—Willie Minnifield, a negro, was burned at the stake in a swamp near here this morning, by a mob which accused him of attacking a white woman 20 miles southeast of here with an axe early last night, inflicting wounds which physicians believe will prove fatal.

Minnifield and another negro were captured by a posse in a swamp near here at 10 o'clock this morning. According to members of the posse, the other negro, who escaped, confessed that he stood outside the woman's home while Minnifield went in to attack her.

Minnifield was taken from the posse by the mob, tied to a stake and burned to death. The posse took up the pursuit of the negro who escaped.

FRENCH CALL FOR HALT ON OBJECTIONABLE FILM

PARIS, July 29.—The filming of "La Garconne," which has just been completed, has reopened the controversy which last Spring caused the author, Victor Margueritte, to be expelled from the Legion of Honor, of which he was a Commander.

The original charge against "La Garconne" was that it presented a false and slanderous picture of modern French womanhood. For this reason there was a cry against its being filmed. The producers of the film, however, claim they have censored the work severely and have cut from it all scenes that were indecent or detrimental to the character of French women.

When French police investigated complaints against the film they were shown by the producers a motion picture moral beyond criticism. Now it is charged that the producers secretly filmed all the particularly objectionable scenes, which will be interpolated in the copies sent to South America and Germany.

It is realized that if the charge is true there is no way of the police checking it, and certain members of the French press are demanding that customs officials be instructed to take measures to see that the photographic scenes which are alleged to exist be prevented from passing the borders into other countries, where they would form a very harmful propaganda against France.

FIGHT UNDESIRABLE FILMS.

International Child Welfare Association to Create Movie Bureau.

GENEVA, July 29.—The protection of children from undesirable moving pictures is the object of a resolution adopted at the annual meeting of the International Child Welfare Association. The association decided to create an official central bureau for control of world moving pictures, with a clearing house of information from all countries concerning films, good or bad, for children.

The convention, at which the United States is represented, also has proposed an international agreement for the repatriation of abandoned or lost children, at the expense of the country where they are found.

Jobless Youth Says Martin Showed Him Art of "Frisking" Victims.

Francis White, 19 years old, with no home, had been sleeping at night in Bryant Park. Last Tuesday an elderly man seated himself on the same bench and got White's story. He volunteered after a while to show the youth how to make some easy money. White fell in with the idea and under the elderly man's tutelage practised picking pockets.

Their first haul was to have been made last night, but it fell short of success when the pair came under the eye of Detective Coy of the pickpocket squad at Ninth Avenue and Forty-second Street, for Coy recognized White's companion as Thomas Martin, 50 years old, of 304 West Thirty-eighth Street, one of the most accomplished pickpockets known to the police.

Coy saw White block a man as he was about to board an east bound Forty-second Street crosstown car. Martin, he said, was about to "frisk" the man when the latter decided to wait for the next car. When the second car reached the corner White again repeated the blocking movement and Martin, according to Coy, slipped deft fingers into the man's pocket and withdrew them with a small roll of notes.

Coy, who had boarded the car along with Martin, White and their victim, seized the two alleged pickpockets and asked the victim whether he had lost anything. The latter, who said he was George Morgan, a guest at the Hotel Commodore, discovered that he was $13 short. The money was found on the floor of the car. Coy took Martin and White to Police Headquarters where White, the detective said, told how Martin had been his "Fagin"; how he had followed the lead of the older man because he was broke and jobless.

J. EADS HOWE SEIZED.

Called Philadelphia Law Tyranny—"Hobo" Chairman Praises Wilson.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—J. Eads Howe, "millionaire hobo," who is attending the "Hobo" Convention here was arrested this afternoon on a charge of littering Franklin Square with leaflets.

Howe, who was distributing pamphlets to passersby, was told by a guard that it was against the law and that he would have to recover those he had given out. Howe asked the guard to accompany him. The guard assented. To every one from whom he recovered a leaflet he made a short speech on the tyranny of not being allowed to distribute the pamphlets. The guard arrested him. He was released pending a hearing before a Magistrate tomorrow morning.

At the first session of the convention addresses were made by Howe, Nicholas Kline, of Indianapolis, and Gerald Geraldson of New York. George E. Bonner, of this city, Chairman of the conference, praised the recent pronouncement of Woodrow Wilson urging spiritual regeneration of the world.

"We respect the utterances of such a son as Woodrow Wilson when he gives expression to our innermost wishes and thoughts. It matters nothing to us whether he is Republican, Democrat, or Socialist," he said.

But now the Belgians have presented their ideas, which have already received warm support in some quarters in France and England, and have incorporated them in their reply to England with the avowed intention of seeking an Anglo-Belgian plan in place of the Franco-Belgian plan which failed.

Between the French and English attitudes on the problem the Belgians in this way seem well placed to form a bridge. They are at one, with the French as to Ruhr occupation and at one with the English in a genuine desire to have a reparations settlement, which will be really a reparations settlement and not a forced arrangement as ransom for the Rhur.

BRUSSELS, July 29.—The draft reply of the Belgian Government to the British note was dispatched today to Paris after being approved by the Council of Ministers.

The Belgian Government considered yesterday the draft of the reply to be sent by the French Government. There is no complete agreement between the two documents. The French note, though adopting some of the Belgian suggestions, is much less precise than that of Belgium. The latter is more constructive in character, and includes reference to the manner in which payments from Germany might be assured.

Notwithstanding the divergencies in the two notes, there is complete community of views between Paris and Brussels with regard to occupation of the Ruhr. Belgium adheres to her previous declarations on the subject. There will be no change of régime in the Ruhr until Germany has renounced passive resistance. Both the French and Belgian notes insist on this point. If Germany abandons passive resistance, then the régime of Jan. 10 will be reverted to, namely, that of "invisible" occupation.

According to information from a very good source, neither Paris, Brussels nor Rome will agree purely and simply to the British draft reply to Germany. The Italian Government makes certain reservations, but hopes, as moreover does the Belgian Government, that it will be possible to send to the Reich a collective interallied reply.

The French and Belgian replies leave open the door to further negotiations, and the Belgian Government does not despair of an interallied agreement being reached. It will neglect nothing it can do to bring together the opposing points of view.

Nothing has been decided with regard to an interview between the British, French and Belgian Ministers. It is probable that negotiations will be suspended for a short time.

Commons Likely to Defer Debate.

LONDON, July 29.—Prime Minister Baldwin, who is spending the week end at Chequers, returns to London tomorrow morning for a meeting of the Cabinet which will have to discuss many pressing questions needing attention before Parliament adjourns on Thursday.

The international situation of course exceeds everything else in importance. According to present arrangements there is be a debate on foreign affairs on the second reading of the Consolidated Fund Bill on Tuesday and the Government is very anxious that the House of Commons should have the latest information at its disposal, but it is doubtful whether even if the French and Belgian replies have been given it will be possible for the Cabinet to go fully into the matter by Tuesday afternoon.

It may therefore be that the debate will be taken on Thursday on the motion of adjournment of the House instead of on Tuesday.

The London Times's financial correspondent writes:

"It is not improbable that the next phase of the negotiation between this country and France dealing with the urgent question of reparations will cover the interrelated problem of interallied debts. This, is course, is a very thorny subject, because, unlike reparations, the Allies are scarcely competent to deal with it fully except in conjunction with America.

"All of the Allies are indebted to the United States and the latter, no matter what the opinion of enlightened folks on the other side of the Atlantic may be, is, for the moment, at any rate, not to agree to the scaling down of the capital liability.

"In January last Bonar Law vainly offered to write off over £1,000,000,000 of war debts owing to this country provided France would accept his scheme or some modification of it for reaching a final and definite settlement of reparations, which included a form of control over German industry and finances. France asked for more, but we were unable to give it to her in view of our own liabilities.

"France has intimated her readiness to accept a reduction of German liabilities to 26,000,000,000 gold marks provided she is relieved of all her debts. It is not in our power to agree to this, because America is also a creditor. Incidentally, we may note that any sacrifice we might make of our claims against the Continent must under existing conditions benefit America as the chief remaining creditor of the Continent."

DUESSELDORF, July 29 (Associated Press).—German newspapers report that Major Zormack and Lieutenants Keller and Knuth, all former policemen in Essen, have been sentenced to death by a French court-martial at Werden, for espionage. The three men are said to have been found guilty of operating a dictograph near a French officer's villa on the outside of Essen.

French headquarters announced today that M. Schreiber, a Swiss citizen and Director of the Dortmund Verein, who was arrested a few days ago, has been provisionally released.

PARIS, July 29.—The Rhineland Separatists at Coblenz had "a great mass meeting on the anniversary of the declaration of war protesting against Prussian militarism and proclaiming the necessity of their separation from Germany," according to French Government newspapers today. The Matin gives the total Rhineland republicans present as 6,000. The Havas Agency states that 3,000 were present.

All accounts, however, agree that Dr. Dortf, the Separatist chief, who has just returned to the Rhineland from Paris, where he conferred with the French Government leaders, met with a great reception.

LONDON, July 29.—Lord Carnarvon in his will bequeathed one object, to be decided upon later, to the British Museum and another to the Metropolitan Museum of New York. The London Times understands that the object intended for the New York museum is a portion of a very wonderful glass vessel made in the eighteenth Egyptian dynasty about 1500 B. C.

The object for the British Museum arrived at the museum a few days ago. It is a very beautiful portrait figure in wood of a high official who was connected with the services performed in the chapels of the Pyramids at Ghizeh about 3500 B. C.

It is regarded as one of the finest specimens of portraiture in wood that is known of Egyptian workmanship, and Lord Carnarvon when he acquired it had to face considerable opposition from amateurs and experts who offered considerable sums for the figure.

HEN THIEVES USING GAS.

Jersey State Police Investigating Thefts in Hunterdon County.

TRENTON, N. J., July 29.—The State police, who are investigating the disappearance of 3,000 chickens from farms in Hunterdon County, believe that poultry thieves are using gas along the lines followed in war in making their raids on the hen coops.

Farmers along the main roads have been puzzled for some time as to how intruders have been carrying on their operations despite traps and alarms set for them. The police found an odor of gas about the premises where chicken thieves had attempted a raid recently. The fowls on one farm were paralyzed for several days from gas.

How Credit Has Transformed The Export Trade

"A Tower of Strength"

HE would be an old-fashioned exporter who today would buy commodities with his own money, send them abroad and wait for his capital to come back with a profit.

Thanks to commercial banking, the exporter of today first sells goods abroad, buys them on credit, ships them, obtains advances from his bank on the shipping documents and uses the proceeds to pay for the goods.

PRACTICALLY all large business is transacted today with credit, money being employed to settle differences only.

Numbered among the world's commercial banks which make such credit uses possible for imports and exports is the Bankers Trust Company, with three offices in New York and a Continental office in Paris working to promote sound business locally, nationally and internationally.

WORLD WAR IS NEAR, DECLARES KESSLER

German Who Is to Lecture at Politics Institute Says German Break-Up Will Start It.

CALLS CUNO HELPLESS NOW

Predicts Red Rule in North, Monarchy in South and French Invasion Fought by Russians.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 29.—Discussing cabled reports of expected communist disturbances in Germany, Count Harry Kessler, German economist and diplomat and the first of his nationality who has been invited to lecture at the Institute of Politics since its organization two years ago, predicted today that a red revolution in the north of Germany and a monarchical uprising in the south were both imminent.

He also asserted that the Cuno Government would be powerless to suppress the revolts, and that the north would go red, while the south of Germany would become a monarchy. He doubted that Germany could survive the coming Winter.

The establishment of Soviet rule in the north of Germany, Count Kessler continued, would inevitably lead to a new world war, starting between "Imperialist" France and Red Russia, and continuing with so much more savagery than the last war as to mean the end of European civilization.

Count Kessler, who arrived here late last night from New York and will deliver the first lecture tomorrow night in his course on "Germany and the European Tangle," gave an interview to reporters this afternoon in the D. K. E. fraternity house on the Williams College campus.

Asked about the reports of smoldering trouble in Germany, Count Kessler said:

"The situation in Germany brought about by the French occupation of the Ruhr has reached a crisis. The French Government is doing its best to provoke active resistance and foment insurrection against the German Government. It has subsidized monarchist plots in Bavaria, as was proven at the Tuchs trial in Munich six weeks ago. This expelling, shooting and flogging of German workmen is a determined effort to overcome the passive resistance which has resulted from the anti-militarist attitude of the German workmen in the Ruhr.

Foresees French Invasion of Germany.

"The inevitable result of the French policy must be social breakdown and social anarchy throughout Germany, resulting in revolution. I am afraid that this is bound to come within a very short time, and that it will be followed by another world war, a war that will be even more savage than the last war.

"When the revolution comes, the Cuno Government will hardly be strong enough to put it down, despite the strong measures now being taken. The whole country is likely to go Bolshevist at first, but within a short time I expect to see the southern part of Germany separate from the north and establish a monarchical form of government. The north of Germany probably will retain Soviet rule.

"The social breakdown of Germany is exactly what France desires and what all her actions tend to show that she has been planning. She has been unable, because of British opposition, to extend her occupation of the Ruhr into the rest of Germany.

"Once Germany is torn by a red revolution, however, France will have the excuse to do what she wishes. Under the pretext of restoring order, she will send her troops into all of Northern Germany with the sole purpose of realizing her dreams of world empire and the suppression of the German nation.

"But that is not all. Russia will not stand by while imperialist France throttles the young Communist rebellion in the north of Germany. Answering the call for aid from the German Communists, the Russian Red Army will strike at France by an invasion of Poland.

"That, of course, will be the spark that will set off another European conflagration. We wil lthen see the magnificently trained and equipped French Army thrown into the field against Trotzky's red hordes.

Envisions Destruction of Europe.

"There can be but one result. France could never defeat the Russians on their own soil, but the French army, with its superior training and equipment, should have no difficulty in overcoming the new Red Army on foreign soil.

"This will be the last chapter in disintegration of Europe because it will mean another world war of the great nations, and it is bound to come unless something is done soon to forestall it.

"When it comes no man can prophesy the result. All one can say is that the drains on the man power and the industry of Europe, made by the last war, render her impotent to fight another great war without destroying her civilization."

Count Kessler said that England would try to keep out of the new war, because "the masses of the English people are absolutely opposed to a new war," but England, he said, could not avoid being seriously affected, would certainly extend economic aid to France in a war against Russia, and might be drawn into the conflict eventually, just as the United States was drawn into the last war.

Had the United States not entered the war in 1917, Count Kessler said, there would have been a different kind of a peace in 1918. This would have been "peace by compromise," he explained, which would not have been followed by the present critical condition in European affairs. It would have been a peace lasting several generations at least, he said.

Wants America in Reparations Body.

If the United States were only to abandon her isolation policy again, and help Europe unravel the present tangle, he said the débâcle he feared might be avoided. He thought that the United States could do this without running the risk of a new war, or of joining the League of Nations.

By joining the Reparations Commission, he added, America could accomplish everything. The Reparations Commission would then become what the Germans had expected it would be. It would be dominated by the United States, England and Italy, holding three of the five votes, and these countries, he said, could solve the whole European problem by exerting their moral and economic pressure to overcome "the dreams of world empire held by the French Government."

Count Kessler made a special point of differentiating between the French Government and the French people. He said that he had many friends in France and that he had lectured in France on frequent occasions since the war. At the time of the occupation of the Ruhr, he was about to begin a lecture tour in that section. In all his speeches to the French, he said, he criticised rFench policy adversely, but said that he did not blame the French people.

Charging that the French Government was deliberately instigating trouble in the Ruhr, Count Kessler said that he feared it might provoke the killing of French soldiers by some of the German population, whereupon disturbances leading to the most serious consequences might occur.

Fears Economic Collapse.

The shortage of food, the collapse of the mark, and the general breaking down of social and economic life in Germany, Count Kessler declared, had created a situation that needed only a slight spark to start a great conflagration. About 30 per cent. of the German children, he said, were tubercular chiefly because of malnutrition.

The milk shortage in Germany was almost beyond endurance. Before the war Berlin alone consumed 1,200,000 litres of milk daily. The very lowest requirements for the city at the present time are about 600,000 litres, but the daily receipts are only 300,000.

Count Kessler, though he is in comparatively comfortable circumstances, said that he had no milk on his own table for months, and that he had not seen any at the homes of his friends.

The lecturer also commented on the disappearance of the old German middle class. Since the war, he said, there has been a gradual absorption of the old middle class into the ranks of labor. professional men, educators, students and so on, have had to take any work they could get to support themselves. These classes are non-revolutionists, but Count Kessler pointed out that the real laboring class, its ranks swelled by the white collar men, making jobs scarcer and scarcer, is beginning to feel the pinch worse than ever before.

Economically, Count Kessler said, the collapse of Germany is now practically complete. The lack of foreign credit and the increasing difficulty of importing raw materials for her industries were the beginning of the end.

There must be some settlement of the reparations question, he said, that would leave Germany enough working capital to go on with. Eventually, he thought, Germany would have to redeem the paper marks at some arbitrary figure or buy them up in the open market.

Count Kessler was a Captain in the German army on the Russian front during the war. After the war he was the first Minister of the German Republic to Poland. He returned to Germany when diplomatic relations with Poland were broken off and took a leading part in organizing the "No More War" demonstration in Berlin. He is editor-in-chief of the principal monthly organ of the German Democratic Party and is a Director of the Peace Society. He has co-operated with various French Liberal organizations since the war.

Institute's Support Assured.

Harry A. Garfield, President of Williams College, was asked today to discuss reports that the Institute of Politics would be discontinued after this year's session was concluded. These reports had arisen from the fact that the support of the institute was guaranteed by Bernard M. Baruch for three years, and that this is the third year.

Dr. Garfield replied that further support for the continuance of the institute next year was assured, except in the remote contingency that he and his Board of Advisers felt that it was not fulfilling its objects and serving a useful purpose. In such an event, he said, further support would not be asked for.

He said he would wait until after the present session is concluded, about a month from now, before making up his mind. He declined to say whether Mr. Baruch would continue to supply the funds, or whether they would come from some one else.

All the reactions he had received from outside sources up to the present, Dr. Garfield said had been favorable. He had found strong interest in its work everywhere. On a visit to Geneva he found that the officials at the League of Nations meeting were thoroughly familiar with the institute.

People he met in London were keen to hear about the way in which it conducted its courses in international relations. Washington also was interested, and he pointed out that men from the State, War and Navy Departments had come each year to attend the lectures and participate in the round table discussions of foreign affairs.

Through the newspaper reports of the lectures and conferences, the official reports of the institute's proceedings and the spread of ideas and facts by members of the institute on their return to their college classes, diplomatic posts, newspaper offices, or wherever else they might come from, he said, the institute is fulfilling its purpose of spreading knowledge about international relations, and helping to guide public opinion by supplying it with the facts about the great problems of the day.

Complimenting Mr. Baruch on the generosity he has shown, Dr. Garfield said that the institute could not have accomplished what it has unless its director had been given a free hand.

He said that he had never met with any interference in his choice of lectures or in any other phase of his administration of the institute, and had never met with any attempt to influence its policies.

SHOT AS INTRUDER.

Realty Dealer Wounds Man After Getting Threatening Letter.

Peter Spenelli of 376 Eighteenth Street, Brooklyn, a real estate dealer, was held in $500 bail yesterday in the Fifth Avenue Court by Magistrate O'Neill for examination Friday on a charge of felonious assault, on a short affidavit signed by Patrolman Otto Anderson of the Fifth Avenue Station.

Anderson said that early yesterday he heard a shot, and ran to 378 Eighteenth Street, where he saw Frank Garmes of 442 Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, lying on the pavement with a bullet in his right leg, and Spenelli standing over him with a revolver in his hand. Patrolman Anderson said he called an ambulance from the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, and had Garmes removed to the Kings County Hospital. Spenelli showed a permit to carry the revolver, and showed the police also three letters which he said he had received in the past three months, each threatening his life. He said that Garmes early yesterday morning came to the door of Spenelli's apartment and tried to force it open, whereupon Spenelli chased him into the street, and shot him in the leg.

Sick Man Shot Himself and Took Iodine.

A man registering as Benjamin Kalowsky at the Hotel Theresa, Seventh Avenue and 126th Street, early yesterday was found unconscious in his room several hours later, with a self-inflicted wound in the mouth and his throat seared with iodine, he had swallowed.

A maid tried the door of the room at 11 A. M. and found it locked. As the man had not turned in his key to the clerk she called in Patrolman McGrath, who forced the door. Kalowsky was taken to Harlem Hospital in a serious condition.

A search of the room disclosed a message, instructing the finder to notify M. Kalowsky of 1,475 Amsterdam Avenue. Other letters indicated the man lived in Fleishmann, N. Y., and had applied for treatment at several hospitals here.

OCEAN CITY, N. J., July 29.—Ocean City's fifth candyless Sunday since the enforcement of Lord's Day regulations was ameliorated today by the free distribution of 1,000 boxes of salt water taffy to confectionery-hungry excursionists. The situation was further relieved when William F. Shriver and J. Frank Shellenberger, Philadelphia Boardwalk merchants here, dispensed ice cream and soda water for the first time on Sunday since the blue ordinance was enforced. Since that time they had kept their places closed on Sunday.

CALL O'NEILL TO AID WARD PROSECUTION

DEFENSE TO ACT FRIDAY

Mills to Ask Permit to See Grand Jury Minutes—Told to Disregard Report of Noxon.

Thomas J. O'Neill, an attorney, of 258 Broadway, yesterday confirmed the report that he is to help in the prosecution of Walter S. Ward when the accused slayer of Clarence M. Peters is brought to trial at White Plains on Sept. 4. Attorney General Carl Sherman will personally have charge of the prosecution.

"I've been appointed a Special Deputy Attorney General," said Mr. O'Neill, at his Yonkers home, "to assist in the case. The Attorney General called me up before he went away and asked me to become associated with him. There are a lot of preliminary matters to be taken care of, such as meeting motions to inspect the Grand Jury minutes and motions to dismiss the indictment. He asked me to take care of these, and then we are to confer further."

Mr. O'Neill has built up a reputation as an exceptionally skillful cross-examiner. He has chiefly appeared for the defense in actions growing out of accidents, and is regarded as an authority on negligence law. He also has appeared in many criminal actions.

The status of Charles H. Noxon of New Rochelle, reported as likely to appear as trial counsel for Ward, remains in doubt. Mr. Noxon said that he had conferred during the day with representatives of the Ward family, but said that final decision had been put over until this morning. Mr. Noxon said that the only hitch to his entry in the case had been his demand that he have sole charge of the defense. This, he pointed out, did not mean the elimination of the attorneys, but that it would leave him free to accept or reject their advice when the court battle began. Mr. Noxon declared that he was in possession of "information important to the defense," but refused to disclose its nature.

Former Justice Isaac N. Mills of Mount Vernon said last night that he had heard nothing of the reported negotiations to bring the New Rochelle lawyer into the case. He said, in fact, that he had received a message through a third person from Ralph D. Ward, brother of the accused, "to disregard the stories in the newspapers about Noxon because there is nothing to the report."

Judge Mills said that the motion by the defense for permission to examine the minutes of the Extraordinary Grand Jury which returned a first degree murder indictment against Ward at White Plains last week would be made on Friday. He explained that the present plans of the defense were to appear before Supreme Court Justice A. F. H. Seeger at Newburgh in special term. Judge Mills indicated that the defense would contend, in asking for permission to inspect, that the State had not produced any fresh evidence.

"The attorneys for the defense," he said, "have been investigating the witnesses who appeared before the Extraordinary Grand Jury, and we are of the opinion that the so-called new evidence is merely cumulative. Many of the so-called new witnesses merely testified to the same things that other witnesses had told about, and others merely corroborated, in many cases only in part, evidence already on the Extraordinary Grand Jury records.

"For instance, when the Westchester County Grand Jury was considering the case against Mr. Ward, the then District Attorney, Colonel Frederick E. Weeks, put only two of the truckload of electric lighting employes before the jurors. These were the men who discovered the body of Peters. The Attorney General, however, saw fit to have all of these witnesses appear before the Grand Jury. This merely swelled the number of witnesses, but not the evidence. We think the present case is really not as strong as the first—it is, in fact, much weaker."

Ward spent a quiet day at the White Plains jail. He did not receive any visitors and again declined to be interviewed.

ROBBED OF RING AND SHOT.

Jack Feisler, 30 years old, 2,950 West Twenty-ninth Street, Coney Island, was shot in the right shoulder while walking in the street near his home late last night. Feisler is a confectioner at Norfolk and Delancy Streets.

He told the police two men halted him as he was going home. One of them commanded him to "fork over" a diamond ring, which Feisler valued at $1,000. Feisler refused and one of the men shot him and escaped.

Detectives found witnesses who said that Feisler had met two men and two women in West Twenty-ninth Street and that a shot had been fired while he was talking with the two couples.

Feisler was taken to Coney Island Hospital by Dr. Bloch, who said that his wound was not serious.

LEAPS OFF BRIDGE TO DEATH

Negro Drops Just as Train Is About to Run Him Down.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 29.—Under dramatic circumstances John W. Scott, 65 years old, a negro, of 416 North Indiana Avenue, committed suicide today after he had said he was "dependent on charity and in the way."

Scott walked out on the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge crossing the Thoroughfare as a train was approaching. He disregarded all warning shouts, but stood calmly on the rails as the train, with brakes screeching, came up slowly. Just as the train was about to strike him, he climbed down through the bridge pilings, hung for a few minutes by his hands and dropped into the water just as the train was passing overhead.

Shot While Cleaning Gun.

Joseph Convano, 22, of 314 Belmont Avenue, Newark, was cleaning his shotgun yesterday, when it was accidentally discharged, according to the police. The charge entered his chest and right forearm. He was taken to the City Hospital, where an operation was decided on in hope of saving his life.

immediately the discovery of a car of suspicious appearance.

Though the police believe it possible the taxicab driver was aware of the identity of his fares, they believe he was compelled at revolver point by his male passenger to speed across the Queensboro Bridge.

It was learned last night that the police placed much significance on a request received during the day by the Bureau of Missing Persons that a confidential alarm be sent out for a taxicab driver who has not been seen by his family for the last few days. No information was given by the police on this request, the authorities refusing even to say what day the man disappeared.

Funeral services for the slain policemen will be held today with full police honors. Services for Reynolds will be held at St. Monica's Roman Catholic Church, Second Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street, and for Romanello at his home at 32 Horton Street, Elmhurst.

A Man That Blackens Another Man's Character

does not whiten his own. Better for us to have our house or office broken into than to have our minds and hearts and friendships broken into by tale-bearers or gossipers.

It is a saying all the world around in every language under the sun that "an idle brain is the devil's workshop."

Not a few men and women of good dispositions appear to have a genius for filling up their time with hearsay things that hurt by the doubts they cast.

SILZER PROTESTS GARBAGE DUMPING

SUGGESTS A CONFERENCE

In Letter to Asbury Park Mayor Governor Outlines a Plan to Clean Up the Beaches.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 29.—His attention having been called to the matter by editorials in THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Newark Sunday Call, Governor Silzer has investigated pollution of the New Jersey sea coast. He made this known in a letter addressed yesterday to Mayor C. F. Hetrick of Asbury Park and presented six recommendations for action to remedy the situation. The letter follows:

"Some time ago I learned of the efforts of the municipalities along the Jersey Coast to clear our beaches of the refuse that has drifted upon them during the Summer.

"My attention was also called to this matter by editorials in THE NEW YORK TIMES and Newark Sunday Call.

"I also saw a reference to your letter to Mayor Hylan of New York, and the reply, regarding the dumping of scows with New York City garbage.

"After the Street Commissioner of New York, in his letter to Mayor Hylan, assured the Mayor that the garbage was being dumped, as required, twenty-five miles at sea, under Federal inspection, I became convinced that the solution of the whole matter depended upon the ascertainment of the facts.

"If New York City dumped its garbage twenty-five miles at sea, under proper inspection, then the littering of our beaches did not come from that source. On the other hand, if they were dumping near shore, it must have come from that source.

"I have therefore, had the dumping of these scows containing New York City garbage watched, and find that dumping takes place within five miles of our shore. It is not surprising then, that some of the refuse and garbage reaches our beaches and those of New York.

"I believe that if this matter is properly handled, the menace to the New Jersey beaches and to Rockaway, Long Island and other New York beaches can be stopped.

"I would therefore suggest:

"1. That you call a meeting of the authorities of all the municipalities along the New Jersey coast affected by this condition; that you organize them into a protective association and have definite records made of what is found on the beaches, when found, and in what quantities, this information to be used as the basis for action, if necessary.

"2. That you arrange for a meeting with the authorities of Rockaway, Long Beach and other New York State beach resorts for the purpose of co-operation.

"3. That joint action be taken to see that the garbage scows of New York are dumped at sea and not within easy reach of the beaches. I am sure that if Mayor Hylan and the city authorities know that their orders are being disobeyed, they will see that it does not occur again. If it does, and the inspectors fail to perform their duties, then joint action should be taken in the courts to prevent a continuance of the practice.

"4. That joint request be made to the Federal authorities for a more rigid enforcement of the orders by the inspectors, and if the present inspectors fail to perform their duties, to see that they are dismissed.

"5. That joint action be taken requesting the various steamship lines coming in and out of the port of New York to dump their garbage at sea. I have no doubt they will be glad to aid.

"6. That a similar request be made of the steamship companies not to dump their refuse from their oil burners within reach of our shore, and asking them to adopt a method similar to that employed in other places for the disposal of this oil refuse after they dock their ships.

"I believe that if these or similar steps are taken, the difficulties now encountered will readily be overcome.

"Very truly yours,

"GEORGE S. SILZER."

STOWAWAY COUPLE HERE.

Austrians Found in Coal Bunker Say They Came to Be Wed.

When the German freighter Grete arrived in Quarantine yesterday from Hamburg the captain reported that he had two stowaways on board—Wilhelmina Strieglitz and Gustav Schmidt, natives of Austria. They were sent to Ellis Island and will be deported.

The couple were discovered three days after the ship left Hamburg hiding in the starboard coal bunker. Both Schmidt and his female companion were so begrimed with coal dust when they were dug out that they had to be scrubbed with sooje-mooge before their features could be discerned. They told the officers of the Grete that they had stowed away with the idea of coming to America to get married and settle down. The captain had the two put to work for the rest of the voyage. The young woman had a paper bearing the name of William Hartning of Philadelphia, whom she said was a relative.

MISS SMITH TO DRIVE MULE.

Governor's Daughter Asks Dutchess County Fair for "Nice Tame One."

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 29.—Miss Emily Smith, daughter of Governor Smith, will drive a mule, a "nice tame one" she hopes, in the mule race which will be held at the Dutchess County Fair in Staatsburgh.

Miss Smith, writing to the authorities says:

"Please pick me out a nice tame mule, one that can keep going a little better than a jog and will not stop to put up an argument in the middle of the race."

Competing with Miss Smith will be Mrs. Griswold Webb, wife of Senator Webb and daughter of Colonel Archibald Rogers of Hyde Park, neighbor of Frederick W. Vanderbilt.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, who has raced in former years, has not as yet been entered in the race, which will be run on the afternoon of Aug. 31.

SPANKED HIS FIANCEE.

"How About Her Black Eye?" Asks Judge Who Holds Cave Man.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 29.—"I love her, Judge; we're engaged. She disobeyed me, so I spanked her. That's all right, ain't it?"

That was the defense made by Edward Lewis of 209 North South Carolin. Avenue when arraigned today in the Atlantic City court on a charge of assault and battery made against him by Evelyn Johnson of 1,521 Baltic Avenue, who appeared in court with a black eye.

"That's the first time I ever saw anybody get a black eye from a spanking. You'll have to dig up $500 bail and tell it to the Grand Jury," ruled the court.

RUSSIAN PARENTS OF WAR DEAD SUFFER

DUE TO DIPLOMATIC TANGLE

Jewish Welfare Board to Take Up a Hardship Due to Our Having No Consuls in Russia.

A post-war situation has arisen with reference to the payment of compensation and insurance to the parents of American soldiers and sailors, which the Jewish Welfare Board will take up at once.

Immediate action was decided upon yesterday at a conference of army and navy welfare workers of the board, at the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Lexington Avenue and Ninety-second Street, when they were apprised of the facts by George G. Cohen, the board's representative in Washington. Dr. Cyrus Adler, Chairman of the organization's Army and Navy Committee, who presided at the meeting, said he was greatly surprised that the conditions, as described by Mr. Cohen, should have been permitted to exist so long.

Mr. Cohen explained that several hundred men in the army and navy during the World War, had named as their beneficiaries for Government insurance their parents, living in Russia.

The Veterans' Bureau, Mr. Cohen pointed out, is unable to pay this insurance because authentication is necessarily lacking. According to the bureau's regulations, the seal of an American consul in foreign cities must be affixed to the demand for the money, the welfare representative declared.

"The families of these soldiers who died for their country are probably starving in Soviet Russia, despite the fact that fortunes are awaiting them," Mr. Cohen said. "But there is little we can do."

"We ought to make an immediate effort to remedy that situation," declared Dr. Adler. "One suggestion that comes to my mind is for a number of parents in one city to send a representative to an American consul at Riga, or some other near-by city in Poland or Latvia, and have the papers authenticated. Another suggestion, which may be more practicable, is that we ask the Joint Distribution Committee, which is represented in Russia by Dr. Boris Bogen, to co-operate with us. If we secured the names and addresses of these people and forwarded them to Dr. Bogen, perhaps he could secure the necessary papers and have them authenticated by the nearest American consul.

"This is a very serious question and must be given immediate attention. I would never have allowed this situation to continue if I had known the facts."

FIFTH AVENUE CHURCH TO HAVE FIRE-ESCAPE

Trustees Appropriate $10,000 for Improvements to First Presbyterian Edifice.

Work of installing a fire-escape on the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue, Eleventh to Twelfth Street, is scheduled to begin this week. So far as known, this will be the only church in the city to have a fire-escape.

The installation was not ordered by the Fire Department, but is being done voluntarily by the trustees. Arthur Curtiss James, President of the First Church Corporation, completed the arrangements on Saturday. The trustees appropriated $10,000 for this and other improvements.

The reason for the fire-escape is the crowd that flocks each Sunday to hear the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Baptist and special preacher. The attendance has steadily increased since the recent "checking up" of the Presbytery of New York by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church for permitting Dr. Fosdick to preach there.

The Assembly, which is the highest court of the denomination, handed down a deliverance last May cautioning that only doctrine which conformed to the Westminster Confession of Faith should be proclaimed there. Dr. Fosdick's theology has long been under fire.

The fire-escape will be an iron stairway and it will extend down the side of the edifice toward Twelfth Street into the church yard. A stained glass window will be hinged where the stairway reaches the gallery. The architect said he would try not to mar the Gothic façade.

Another change to be made because of the Fosdick crowds is the enlarging about six times of the only door from the ground floor of the parish house into the auditorium.

Enlargement of this door will necessitate removal of the organ and the platform in the lecture room. The organ will be moved to the extreme back and the platform to the western end, necessitating a reseating of the lecture hall.

BIBLE INSTITUTE MOVES.

Holds Farewell Service Before Going to Fifty-fifth Street Home.

The farewell service was held yesterday afternoon in the old headquarters of the National Bible Institute, 212-216 West Thirty-sixth Street. Don O. Shelton, President of the organization, delivered an address on "Christianity or Paganism."

The institute will open in its new quarters at 330-348 West Fifty-fifth Street next Sunday. On Oct. 1 work will start on a thirteen-story building adjoining the new home which will house 300 students. The West Thirty-sixth Street property, where the institute has been for about a decade, has been sold.

OLD VIENNA BANK CLOSES.

Institution Famous For 107 Years Ends Its Existence.

VIENNA, July 29 (Associated Press).—The Austro-Hungarian Bank, which had been the foremost Central European financial institution for 107 years, ceased its existence Friday, when a final general meeting of the stockholders was held to wind up its affairs under the peace treaty decision.

The stockholders will get $5.25 for shares which were valued in prewar times at about $1,200. All trace has been lost of 30,000 shares, and that proportion of the redemption fund will be taken by the Government, but stockholders hope that it will be divided among them.

FIND FRICK JEWELRY.

Two Caddies Pick Up $3,000 Pin, Get $100.

Special to The New York Times.

PRIDES CROSSING, Mass., July 29.—A bar pin mounted with a horse's head in diamonds, which was lost two weeks ago by Miss Helen Frick, daughter of the late Henry Clay Frick, was found by two boys yesterday in Woodland Road, near the Frick Summer estate here. The pin, valued at $3,000, had been kicked about in the dust and dirt for two weeks, but was undamaged.

Henry Roberts and Edwin Andrews, caddies at the Essex Country Club, found the pin and returned it to its owner, receiving $100 to share between them.

KICKED POLICEMAN'S NOSE.

Sailor, Aided by Officer, Is Fined $5 for Disorderly Conduct.

Because he kicked Patrolman Michael Mulcahey of the Charles Street Station, in the nose when the officer was trying to befriend him, Patrick Roach, a sailor, of 67 Greenwich Street, was arraigned before Magistrate James M. Barrett in Night Court last night on a charge of disorderly conduct, found guilty and fined $5.

The police say that Roach recently left his ship in Boston and came to New York for a visit. Patrolman Mulcahey found him lying on the steps of the Abingdon Hotel, 7 Abingdon Square, apparently ill. Mulcahey tried to arouse Roach and as he leaned over him, Roach kicked him in the nose.

SAYS NATION NEEDS ANCESTORS' SPIRIT

Visiting Minister Declares Forefathers of Many Should Have Stayed at Home.

PRAISES THE COVENANTERS

Lauds Troops Who Marched Into Battle Singing Forty Sixth Psalm.

"There are those in our country today whose ancestors came over on the Mayflower of whom we might properly say that we wish their ancestors had stayed at home," declared the Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge of Philadelphia, in a sermon yesterday morning in the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street.

Dr. Mudge was preaching on "The Contribution of the Church to the Nation," and declared that this contribution to the nation included its form of government, its system of education and its spiritual inspiration. He stated that the Church had given the nation the right idea of God and the right idea of manhood and womanhood.

"It is not true," said Dr. Mudge, "that the Church has not spoken out on all the great moral issues of the day. She has spoken on slavery, on prohibition, on a living wage and war.

"God was everything to the old Covenanters under Cromwell, who marched into batle singing the Forty-sixth Psalm, 'God is a very present help in trouble'," he declared.

SLAIN IN FRONT OF HOME.

Victim's Brother-in-Law Is Also Stabbed by Assassin, Who Escapes.

As he was sitting on the stoop of his home at 146 Cherry Street yesterday morning Angelo Pino, 26 years old, saw one of two unknown men settle a quarrel with his brother-in-law, Salvatore Puma, 26 years old, a shoemaker, living at 144 Cherry Street, by stabbing him in the right side.

When Puma sank to the sidewalk Pino ran to his aid, and in the scuffle which followed he, too, was slashed in the right arm before the assailants fled. Patrolman Fred Norman of the Oak Street Station, hearing the shouts of Pino, hastened to the scene and called an ambulance, which took the shoemaker to Gouverneur Hospital, where he died a few hours later.

After Pino's wounds had been treated he was questioned by detectives of the Oak Street Station, but was unable to explain why his brother-in-law had been killed.

Hunts $675 Up-State Loot Here.

Alleged to have twice broken into the home of Joseph Styno in Watervliet, N. Y., John Barbaro, 30, a laborer in the Ludlum Steel Works there, was brought here last night by Detective Captain Frederick Broderick, who is searching for two suitcases containing $675 in cash and jewelry, which Barbaro is charged with stealing from Styno's home and with bringing here for disposal.

President

We are a nation of builders. From the rough hewn stockade of the pioneers to the latest towering marvel of steel and cement, the need for better materials has increased with the growth of our Country.

To supply these materials hundreds of factories were built and expensive sales forces were organized, each with its own standard of production and system of distribution—many with little or no standard or system.

Waste was inevitable; quality uncertain; price a matter of barter—so that buyers of the previous generation might well heed the old Latin warning caveat emptor—"let the buyer beware."

But within twenty-five years a peaceful revolution has relieved the buyer of all uncertainty and placed the responsibility squarely on the shoulders of the manufacturer.

Certain-teed fully accepted this responsibility. Today, over one hundred products of usefulness and beauty are made in the sixteen plants you see on this page; each product uniform in its enduring quality; each made by the most modern and economical process, each reaching you over the shortest possible distance with the least possible expense.

Each and all are united under one policy, one sales organization and one brand—the brand that means—Certain satisfaction—Quality guaranteed, the brand known everywhere as Certain-teed.

SMITH TO GO SLOW ON EXTRA SESSION

FEARS POLITICAL PITFALLS

Marshall Buries Himself in the Woods—Likely to See Governor Late in the Week.

Special to The New York Times.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., July 29.—All chance of an immediate conference between Governor Alfred E. Smith and Louis Marshall on the bus situation in New York City was ended today when Mr. Marshall announced that he would make no attempt to see the Governor but intended to bury himself in the woods for a couple of days out of the reach of a telephone. The Governor arranged to leave for Schroon Lake tomorrow to play golf.

It is possible, however, that Mr. Marshall will meet the Governor in Albany late in the week when he returns to New York. The Governor will be in Albany on Tuesday and he said that he would be pleased to talk over the bus situation and a special session of the Legislature with any one. Mr. Marshall believes he can quickly convince the Governor that there is no need for a special session.

As a matter of fact the Governor is not at all keen to bring the Legislature into special session.

The Governor will do nothing unitl he has consulted Senator James J. Walker, majority leader of the upper house. Walker is somewhere in California and he will have to come East and assure the Governor that the twenty-six Democratic Senators can be counted on to a man. It will also be necessary for Mr. Walker to get in touch with every Democratic Senator, and as Senator Cotillo is now in Italy and Senator Russell had just sailed for Europe, this is going to take time.

There is a possibility that the Democrats will have not only the twenty-six Senators of their party if a Hylan bill is voted upon, but that the leaders may pick up a Republican Assemblyman or two because of the traction situation in two up-State cities—Schenectady and Buffalo. Local conditions in these two towns have brought about a situation similar to that in New York City, in that the local authorities have petitioned the Governor to call a special session to consider a bill authorizing the operation of buses by the municipality. The demand for such legislation may be such that the up-State Republican Assemblymen will be forced to vote for the measure. It is this situation that the Governor would also like to discuss with Senator Walker.

The Governor has given little thought to New York's traction troubles on his present trip, but he intends to get the views of competent advisers before he returns to Albany. One of these advisers will be Supreme Court Justice Edward J. McGoldrick, who invited the Governor to a few days' recreation in the Adirondacks. The two have done little since the Governor's arrival here but play golf, but the Governor admitted today that he would have a serious talk with Judge McGoldrick within the next twenty-four hours. There are several legal points which the Governor would like to have explained.

"It is the counsel of desperation," commented Louis Marshall today, when he was informed at his Summer camp at Saranac Lake that Mayor Hylan had instigated a series of petitions for an extra session of the Legislature as a back-fire to the petition of the Merchants' Association for more subways.

"His action is in keeping with his statement that might be interpreted to mean that the people will rise in their might destroy any one who opposes buses. The only way to get buses is to beat Hylan. Getting petitions means nothing. One can get petitions for anything. Once there was a man who on a bet got 2,000 signatures to a petition that the leading clergyman of Oswego be hung."

Since his sojourn in the Adirondacks Governor Smith has received many pledges of support for his Presidential boom. A number of Republicans have assured him they will vote for him if he is a candidate for President. The Governor was a visitor at Paul Smith's today and was enthusiastically received by the natives.

CALLS HYLAN PLAN A FAR-AWAY DREAM

William C. Redfield, former Secretary of Commerce: "Cordially approve formation of citizens' committee. Add my name to petition. City requires deeds, not talk."

Percy S. Straus, R. H. Macy & Co.: "Although my time is so completely filled that I find it difficult to meet my present obligations, I can nevertheless not refuse to accept your invitation to serve in this most important matter. I trust the result of the action of the committee will crystallize public opinion to such an extent that the authorities will be forced to take steps for the relief of the present impossible conditions."

Henry W. Heller, President Heller-Hardt Hartband company, hatband manufacturers: "I am with you, so far as this matter is concerned, and today have signed a petition, as I am a user of the transit lines of this great city and certainly want to see some provision made for the future, and, as you aptly put it in the last paragraph, we want less debate and more subways, fewer words and more action."

Joseph P. Day, real estate: "Your letter of the 25th is received and I will be glad to join with the thousand citizens in the matter of more subways."

John J. Gregan, President, J. H. Bunnell & Co., electric supplies: "I shall do all I ca nto assist the work the importance of which cannot be overestimated."

G. H. Tomes, Secretary Cross & Beguelin, incorporated wholesale jewelers: "I am heartily in favor of the proposed action on the part of your committee and hope it will be productive of results."

F. W. Wilson, Blake, Moffit & Towne, paper: "Any steps that will result in less talk by our city officials and more action with the pick and shovel would be appreciated by a large number of long-suffering citizens."

Dr. Albert Shaw, editor The American Review of Reviews: "Of course I am ready to have my name included with your large committee that is demanding the construction of new subways."

Oscar Riess, silk fabrics, &c.: "I shall be glad to join you in your propaganda to relieve this intolerable condition."

Herbert M. Kaufman, Vice President Mutual Chemical Company of America: "I am in entire sympathy with the object for the promotion of which the committee is to be organized."

Edward Kaufmann, Kaufmann & Kaufmann, counselors at law: "Your letter of the 25th inst., inviting me to become a member of the committee of one thousand citizens to relieve the great emergency which has arisen because of the procrastination of the building of transit facilities, was received, and I will be pleased to serve as a member of this committee and assist in any way that I can, and feel that it is important that this matter should receive public attention at once."

Offers to Push Petitions.

Charles G. Edwards, President Real Estate Board of New York: "I am honored by the thought which prompts you to ask me to become a member, and accept with pleasure. What is more, if the committee will furnish me with copies of the petition that is to be circulated, I shall be glad to use the machinery of this board to secure as many signatures as is possible."

Louis Carreau, real estate and insurance: "I am heartily in sympathy with all that you say in your letter and cannot but feel sure that it certainly should have the endorsement of all honest, free-thinking citizens of this city, who have no interest in the transit situation other than that of personal convenience, public necessity and community interest. I would be very glad to be one of the 'one thousand citizens' to launch this matter before the public in such a way that the public can be truly represented, and if I can be of any small service in co-operating with you, I would be only too happy to do so."

Eugene E. Mapes, Brooks Brothers, clothiers: "I fully appreciate the deplorable transit situation in this city and am willing to lend such aid as may be in my power."

Alfred J. S. Holton, Clinton and Russell, architects: "I shall be very glad indeed to serve on this committee, although unfortunately I am going out of town next week and expect to be away for some time. I thoroughly appreciate the importance of the work which you are undertaking and the necessity of some non-participant organization such as The Merchants' Association of New York, stepping into the breech and trying to get some action by both the city officials and the Transit Commission. As you say, we want less debate and more subways, fewer words and more action."

I. S. Vought, Vought & Williams, Inc., iron, steel and blacksmiths' supplies: "You can rest assured that I will, in my feeble way, do what I can to help the Board of Estimate of New York City to obtain clear glasses so that they can see, so to speak, beyond the political horizon that seems to have astigmatized their vison for quite a long time past. I sincerely trust that the move you have outlined will help to move the powers that have obstructed the building of additional subways to see the error of their ways."

Willing to Help Stir Mayor.

James N. Slee, Second Vice President, Three-in-One Oil Company: "If we can do anything to shake Mayor Hylan out of his inertia it would be a very good thing."

Richard Young, President, Richard Young Company, leather: "I accept membership on the Committee of One Thousand for the object of securing some action in rapid transit conditions in New York. I think this suggestion of the Merchants' Association of New York is timely and indicative of progress and I hope will result in bringing about the conditions which we all desire. I accept the appointment and will do what I can to co-operate."

Ralph Trier, President, New York Theatre Program Corporation: "To any one using the subways it is quite apparent how hopeless the present situation is and any means which might be used by your committee to relieve the situation or start relief at this time which may come to pass in a few years to come would be a God-send to the community if it could be accomplished. I sincerely hope that the very able effort which you have personally shown in this matter, together with the assistance of so many others, will bear fruit."

Thomas Jacka, President and Treasurer, Holbrook Brothers, Inc., imported and American plate window and car glass: "We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor the 25th and note what you say about the crowded condition of the transit lines in this city. We fully agree with you about the unsatisfatcory conditions of the same, and feel that it is very unfortunate that politics have so much to do with the public utilities in the best and greatest city in the world."

Edward Epstean, the Walker Engraving Company: "I shall be glad to join you in bringing home to the powers that be, that we must dig, not squabble, in order to relieve the intolerable situation that confronts the wage-earner in trying to reach his place of business."

Applauds Committee Plan.

Richard G. Hollaman, rPesident General Expositions Company, Inc.: "To my mind the transportation question in New York City is of most vital public interest, and God knows where we will all stand if something is not done soon to relieve the present and coming congestion from lack of proper traffic distribution. Awaiting your further communication in the matter."

Brice P. Disque, President Johnson-Cowdin-Emmerich, Inc.: "I shall be very happy to serve as a member of the Committee of Citizens to act in connection with the transit problems of this city. For one, I am very glad that you are taking the initiative in this matter, and sincerely hope that some reasonable solution may be found."

M. B. Schmidt, B. Illfelder & Co., import and commission: "I have your favor of the 25th instant, and will be glad to serve on the committee in question. You have correctly summed up the entire matter in the last paragraph of your letter, wherein you state 'in the presence of a great city emergency, people want less debate and more subways, fewer words and more action,' and I am sure all members of the Association will back you up in this proposition."

Morris Rosenwasser, President, Rosenwasser Brothers, Inc., manufacturers: "I have your letter of the 25th, and note your reference to transit lines of the city, which are now hopelessly overcrowded. Due to the official deadlock, no relief is in sight, or will be in sight, unless public opinion will make these gentlemen get together and do something. In reply would state that I deem it a duty, and also a pleasure, to serve on the committee, and therefore accept, with thanks."

Franklin Simon, President, Franklin Simon & Co.: "I am pleased to accept and will gladly do what I can to obtain relief from the present subway crisis."

Hylan Attacks Opponents.

Mayor Hylan's statement follows:

"I note that Mr. Marshall, the traction bond-holder attorney for a traction bond-holder client, is again threatening the Governor, if he is quoted correctly in the press, in which he says that if there is a special session called he will serve the order instantly.

"He means the order stopping all municipal buses in the city.

"If a special session is called and Mr. Marshall carried out his threat, certainly some action should be taken. The traction bond-holder Marshall is now threatening me with removal from office because I have dared to live up to my oath of office and serve the people and not the bond and stock holders of the traction companies. Marshall hates to see the people ride in an automobile bus for five cents, because he sees so many nickels diverted from the profits to the bond and stockholders, of whom he is one. Of course, he can ride in his own automobile and he does not worry what happens to the thousands of people on the east side and other parts of New York City who will be deprived of transportation if he serves his injunction order.

"The traction interests, who have been herding the people into the cars in a most disgraceful manner and grabbing large profits, with the aid of Mr. Marshall, want to force the Mayor and the other members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to give the $50,000,000 bus franchise privileges to their friends so that they may make millions of dollars more out of the public and live in luxury. The traction interests have plenty of money. They get it out of the people. They pay big fees to lawyers like Marshall. They control many newspapers. They control organizations like the Merchants' Association, and it is amazing how men like Marshall, Pierson of the Merchants' Association and Waterman, the pen man, will take up the cudgels for this brazen gang and have the temerity to state that they are doing this for the public good, when they know in their own hearts they are insincere and that they represent interests inimical to the benefit of the general public.

"There is but one question, and that is, the people must have and are entitled to buses at a five-cent fare, with the profits going to the taxpayers; and all the Marshalls, Piersons and Watermans cannot stop it by their threats, jobbery and misleading propaganda about public officials who dare to point out their insincerity. The traction interests have had their Almirall Grand Jury and overshadowing crome, they have had their notirious Meyer investigating committee, and now they have their Marshall, Pierson and Waterman—the same old game with new players."

YANKS BREAK EVEN WITH THE WHITE SOX

League Leaders Lose First Game by 3-2, but Capture Second Easily by 8-2.

ERROR BY SCOTT COSTLY

Allows Visitors to Take Opener—Smith and Ward Hit Homers in Final Contest.

The Yankees won, the Yankees lost and so likewise did the White Sox. There, in a nutshell, is the story of yesterday's double-header at the Yankee Stadium, which 40,000 persons saw. Chicago won the first game, 3 to 2, and lost the second, 8 to 2. Thus, there was a close game and a one-sided one, a pitcher's battle interlaid with brilliant fielding and a free-hitting contest in which fielding played no great part. There were errors, steals, double plays, bases on balls, strikeouts, great catches, great throws, extra base hits, including two home runs, withal that he came for everybody.

No, Babe Ruth did not get one of the two home runs, withal that he can pretty close to being the whole show. All that Babe did was to hit a triple, three doubles and a single, draw a base on balls, score two runs, make four great catches in the field and throw out a runner at second base—a quiet Sunday.

An even break was the fairest thing under the circumstances. It would have looked bad not to give the visitors anything out of a long afternoon's work and the Yankees can afford to be hospitable with a fourteen-game lead. After all, a 50-50 split for New York butters no pennant parsnips for Cleveland or St. Louis. But the home boys came mighty close to a clean sweep for the afternoon, notwithstanding, only an unlucky bobble by Everett Scott, which should have been turned into the third out, enabled the invading team to squeeze through with one victory.

Bush and Faber in Duel.

Until Scottie turned in his misplay Bullet Joe Bush and Urban-the-Red Faber had been locked in a pitching duel, which promised to run on until the already leaden skies were black. But Scott did make the error, and as a consequence the first game was decided in favor of the opposition. That made two straight defeats for the Yankees since their return to home pastures, and it riled the New York boys. No team can beat Ruth and his cohorts twice in a row and not suffer the consequences, and so far as the White Sox were concerned, the consequences were close at hand.

Huggins's hirelings jumped on poor Mike Cvengros at the beginning of that second game in a manner which might have led one to believe that that guiltless gentleman was the cause of all their discomfiture. They made one run in the first inning, three in the second, two in the third, one in the fifth and one in the seventh. They might have made more, but by the time this octet had counted they were leg weary, footsore, hungry and ready to go home.

Two of these eight New York runs were homers, one by Elmer Smith in the third inning and the other by Aaron Ward in the fifth. The two drives took opposite directions, Smith's landing high up in the right-field bleachers and Ward's way down in the left; but they counted a like amount, for there was not a runner on base either time.

Outside these two blows the Yankees counted in the first on a pass to Witt, Ruth's single to left and Pipp's infield roller, which forced Babe at second but permitted Witt to score. The home team added two in the second on singles by Scott, Hofmann and Witt, and Dugan's double to right.

Then in the third, after Smith, batting for Meusel, had hit for the circuit, the locals scored again on Scott's single to left and Hofmann's triple. Ward came along with his four-base blow in the fifth, and in the seventh Ruth doubled, went to third on Pipp's hit and walked home on Smith's long sacrifice fly.

Shawkey Allows Only Three Hits.

Shawkey pitched this game for Huggins and was scored on only in the second and fifth. Elsh's single following a pass to Mostil and Sheely's out produced the run in the second, and a pass to Collins, two passed balls and Mostil's double brought over the final one in the fifth.

Shawkey allowed only three hits in this game, but killed his own chances of a shut-out with passes. The Yankees piled up twelve hits off Cvengros and Thurston, who relieved Mike at the beginning of the third.

The first game was as interesting as a ball game has any right to be. Added to the fact that two veteran and master pitchers opposed each other, with every trick and wile of their trade, there was a series of fielding plays as brilliant as any seen on this or any other diamond this season. Moreover, after the Sox had jumped into the lead in the eighth, the Yanks kept threatening to rise in their might and snatch the game back.

Not until Wallie Schang had rolled an inoffensive grounder squarely up to first base for the final out, was the game decided. Even as Sheely touched the bag, retiring Schang, Bob Meusel was still scurrying toward the plate from second base, in the vain but commendatory hope that Sheely would drop the ball after it was in his hands.

Schang couldn't deliver the desperately needed hit which would have tied the game and probably returned the Yanks as ultimate winners, but he prolonged the hope of the fans through a seemingly endless period. First he struck at one. Then Faber followed with a ball. There was another ball, and this one rolled through Schalk's legs while Meusel was making his way to second. A second strike followed, a third ball, a foul and then the end, and not a very fitting end for such a good game, either, as the ball just rolled up to first and waited for Sheely to pick it up.

Lumbering, old Harry Hooper, won the game for the pale-hosed invaders in the eighth inning. Harry and his big black bat were aided by lapses in the Yanks' inner defense, but it was Hooper's sharp double to left which made hay for Chicago out of these mistakes.

Roy Elsh began the inning with one of the seven hits which the Sox coined from Bush's pitching, and reached second when Elmer Smith fell down fielding the ball. Willie Kamm, who is just as valuable as he was expensive, tried to sacrifice, but Schang netted his bunt on the wing in front of the plate. Gleason then sent Elsh down to third, Roy arriving there to find the ball ahead of him.

With two out and Schalk and Faber to come Bush looked to be on Easy Street. But how deceiving are appearances! Jumping Joe Dugan allowed Schalk's grounder to roll through his legs untouched and Deacon Scott went Dugan one better by getting Faber's hopper in his hands and then obligingly dropping it. Hooper then hove on the scene and smashed a double to left on which Schalk scored the winning run.

The Yanks did their scoring in the first inning and got it over for the remainder of the game, unfortunately. Witt was easy for Faber, but Dugan singled to left and Ruth rammed the first run over with his marathon triple to right centre. Pipp passed out peacefully on a roller to Faber, but Smith's single to right shunted Ruth home with the last of the home team's runs.

The Yanks might have gotten more, but Huggins was overzealous and when Ward singled to centre he sent Smith home to certain death, the relay from Mostil to Schalk coming by way of Collins.

Bush pitched perfectly for the first three innings, not a ball getting past the Yankee infield. That was too good to last and in the fourth, after Hooper had filed to Witt, McClellan and Collins singled to centre in succession. Both runners advanced on Mostil's out and Sheely scored them with a single to left. Bush was lucky to get by Sheely even that well, for the big, blond first baseman missed a homer into the left field bleachers only by inches, Owens calling one, which looked to be right on the line, "foul."

Young and Zimmer Battery For Veterans at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, July 29.—Cy Young, the only pitcher to win 500 games, showed today that he had lost none of his cunning when, pitching for a team of old-timers of the Cleveland major league clubs of yester-year against the old sandlotters of this city, he struck out two men and allowed only one hit in the two innings he was on the mound. He also got one of his side's five hits. Chief Zimmer, who caught Young more than a decade ago, did the receiving. The game, a five-inning exhibition for the benefit of the Medical Protective Fund of the Cleveland Amateur Baseball and Athletic Association, was attended by approximately 20,000 persons. The sandlotters won, 6 to 4. Nap Lajoie and Bill Schwartz got two-baggers. Others participating included Earl Moore, Charley Smith, Homer Davidson, Larry Twitchell, Charley Hickman, Red Carney, Nick Altrock and Jack Graney. The youngest player was 42 and the oldest 62.

SENATORS TRIM TIGERS.

Drive Pillette From Box, Pound Cole and Triumph, 11 to 1.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—The Washington Senators won an easy victory over the Detroit Tigers today, 11 to 1, driving Pillette from the box and hitting Cole hard. Mogridge pitched a good game, and in addition was the hitting star, getting a triple, double and single out of four trips to the plate.

Caught at the Plate.

Ruth ruled the roost. He made no home runs, but he did everything else a ball player could. He is a different Ruth from the sullen, quarrel-picking Babe of 1922.

Eddie Bennet, the Yankees' mascot, changed sweaters between games. There you have the real inside story, showing why the fortunes shifted in that brief interval.

Hervey McClellan, who does the short stopping for the Sox, retired in the third inning of the second game because he wasn't feeling well. It was a fine time for Hervey to leave. Seeing what the Yankees did to the pale-hosed warriors in the next few innings wouldn't have helped a sick man from Chicago.

Happenny played short after McClellan retired. "Hap" is well named for a second-string man.

The umpires had a peaceful afternoon. Except for a dissenting vote from Kid Gleason against the ruling on Sheely's smash into the bleachers, there wasn't a kick during the whole long afternoon.

Shawkey is a smart pitcher. So smart that he caught even his own team mates asleep once and almost outguessed himself. In the fourth inning the White Sox had men on first and second with one out. Shawkey was watching Mostil at second and apparently paying no heed to Sheely, who was on first. Consequently, Sheely took a long lead and promptly fell asleep on the base paths. The first thing he and everyone else knew, Shawkey had dashed over and cut off his retreat to first. Sheely, having nothing else to do, broke for second base and Mostil perforce started toward third. The Yankees themselves were so surprised that they were in no position to help Bob, but Dugan woke up just in time to dash over and take the throw which retired Mostil. A shrewd play, which came near being too shrewd.

The score board said that the same teams play today.

33,000 FANS SEE CONTEST

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 29.—With Travis Jackson in the van, the Giants clubbed their way to a lopsided victory over the Cubs today, the score being 15 to 3. Bill Ryan, in fine form, held the Cubs to eight scattered hits, one of which was a home run by Arnold Statz, and the Giants slammed steadily at the ball, beginning their attack on Toney Kaufmann, switching to Nick Dumovich and finishing up on Fred Fussell. Four of the seventeen hits they made were contributed by Jackson in five times at bat. The youngster making a triple, a double and two singles. Frank Frisch tossed a home run into the barrage.

The crowd of 33,000 overflowed the stand and some of the fans were parked behind a rope stretched in right field. In the second inning Clifford Heathcote fell over the rope as he darted back under a slam by Frisch. He was badly shaken up and retired from the game.

The Cubs were clinging to a one-run lead when the Giants loosed the attack that got them seven tallies in the second inning. Chicago's run came about through an infield hit by Adams, a pass to Grantham and a single by Friberg.

Meusel started the champions on the way in the second inning with a single to left. Stengel's smack to right centre went into the crowd for two bases. Kelly walked, and the bases were filled. Meusel and Stengel scored when Jackson doubled to left centre, Kelly stopping at third. Snyder walked and again the bases were filled.

Kaufmann Fails to Stem Tide.

Here Kaufmann gave way to Dumovich, but the Giants kept on. Ryan singled to right, scoring Kelly and Jackson, Snyder romping to third. Young hit to Elliott and Ryan was forced at second, but Snyder crossed the plate. Dumovich tossed out Groh, but Frisch plastered the ball into the crowd in right field, scoring Young. Meusel came to the plate again and singled, this hit to centre field scored Frisch. Cunningham batted for Stengel because there was a left-hander on the mound for the Cubs and also singled to centre, but Kelly was thrown out by Grantham.

The Cubs got to Ryan for two runs in their half of this inning. Vogel walked and following the retirement of Elliott and Dumovich, Statz rapped the ball into the left field bleachers.

Cunningham led off for the Giants in the fifth with a single, and Kelly sent him around to third with a double to left centre. Jackson singled to right, scoring Cunningham, Kelly getting to third. Snyder hit into a double play, but while it was in progress Kelly cantered home.

Friberg's Error Proves Costly.

A fumble by Friberg showed the way to two runs for the Giants in the seventh inning after two were out. Barney let Kelly's high hopper get away from him and Jackson followed the bobble with a double to left, the ball just failing to clear the screen at the end of the left field bleachers. Snyder smacked the ball into left centre for a single and Jackson jogged home.

The Cubs tried to make trouble for Ryan in their half of this inning but didn't succeed. Kelleher, who batted for Dumovich, was safe on a fumble by Jackson. After Statz had lined to Young, Adams forced Kelleher and then got around to third on Grantham's single to right. Ryan then closed down on the attack and Grantham was forced by O'Farrell.

LUQUE'S HIT HELPS REDS BEAT BRAVES

Triple Results in Cincinnati Pitcher's 17th Victory of Season—Score, 2-1.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 29.—The Cincinnati Reds won a pitchers' battle from the Boston Braves today by a score of 2 to 1. It was the seventeenth victory of the season for Luque, who not only pitched great ball, but won his own game with a triple in the eighth inning, scoring on a single by Burns.

The Braves escaped a shut-out in the second when Earl Smith doubled and came home on a single by Ford.

Manager Mitchell and Centrefielder Powell of the Braves were put off the field in the eighth inning for disputing a decision on a called strike by Umpire Moran.

PRINTERS TO HOLD BASEBALL TOURNEY

Fourteen Teams Will Compete for Title—Play Begins at Polo Grounds Sunday.

The annual tournament of the Union Printers' International Baseball League will open at the Polo Grounds next Sunday afternoon. Two games will be played on that day, and the final contest is scheduled for Friday, Aug. 10. There are now fourteen teams in the league. The organization was established in 1908 with eight clubs. A tournament has been held annually ever since then with the exception of the years during the war.

A championship will be decided through an elimination tourney. Thousands of printers and their families from various sections of the United States and Canada will be on hand for the games. All of the contests will be staged at the home of the Giants, with the exception of two, which will be played at Manhattan Beach on Wednesday, Aug. 8.

The first tournament, that of 1908, was played at the old Yankee grounds in this city. Last year's tournament was played in Cleveland, and the championship was won by the Washington team.

The gate receipts of this year's tournament will go to the Mayor's committee of women to assist in establishing a milk station in conjunction with the open-air clinic of Dr. Monaghan of the Department of Health at Coney Island.

A week from today the printers will hold a parade through the financial district to City Hall, where Mayor Hylan will make a short address.

LITTLE MEN BOX TONIGHT.

Flyweights and Featherweights to Feature Oakland A. A. Card.

Flyweights and featherweights will furnish the action tonight in the bouts scheduled for the Oakland A. A., an outdoor arena in Jersey City. Three flyweight bouts will be as follows: Johnny Clark vs. Jackie Feldman, Bobby Burns vs. Joe Jackson, and Dodo Jackson vs. Danny Lewis. In two featherweight battles Skelly Lewis will oppose Mike Herns and Joey Baker will tackle Walter Brooks.

Walsh's Double Starts Rally That Gives Groves 4-3 Victory Over Zellars.

BALTIMORE, July 29.—It took the league-leading Orioles eleven innings to defeat the Jersey City Skeeters here this afternoon, by score of 4 to 3. Walsh's double, Boley's bunt, a pass and a sacrifice fly by Styles turned the tide to Baltimore.

It was a pitching duel between Groves and Zellars, left-handers, with the former having much the better of the argument. Groves struck out eleven and did not allow a hit through the last six innings.

POLO CLUB TO HOLD FOUR CUP TOURNEYS

Thousand Islands Play, Starting Aug. 11, Expected to Attract Leading Teams.

Four cup tournaments will be conducted by the Thousand Islands Polo Club at Wellesley Island, Alexandria Bay, N. Y., the first starting on Aug. 11 and the schedules of the contests being so arranged that play will continue steadily until Aug. 25. The Commodore's cups will be the first of the tournaments staged. These matches will be open to teams of four whose aggregate handicap does not exceed ten goals. Commodore James H. Hammond has offered individual prizes to the members of the winning combination. The Wellesley Island cups, which have been offered by Mrs. A. Graham Miles, will be open to teams of four whose aggregate handicap does not exceed seventeen goals. However, in this tournament no player with a handicap exceeding five goals will be allowed to take part.

The Hill Cup will be the big trophy of the meeting. The award which has been presented by Mrs. L. C. Hill will be open to teams of unlimited handicap, the club winning it three times on the grounds of the Thousand Islands Polo Club to become the permanent owner. This competition will undoubtedly bring forth the entries of some of the leading organizations in the country. In 1919 and 1920 it was won by Miami Valley, which will probably be represented again in the effort to obtain permanent possession by its third victory. The Montreal four captured the Hill Cup in 1921 and last year it was taken by the Myopia combination.

The Governors of the Thousand Islands Yacht Club have presented individual prizes to be known as the Governors' Cups, to be competed for in a special match between the two best teams selected from the players in the other tournaments. This match should bring together some of the leading individual players of the East.

TUNNEY TO BOX TOMORROW.

Will Have Leonard in His Corner in Bout With O'Dowd.

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, will act as second to Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, in the latter's bout against Dan O'Dowd of Boston tomorrow night at the Queensboro A. C., Long Island City, according to an announcement made yesterday by Billy Gibson. Tunney and O'Dowd are scheduled for twelve rounds.

The bout will witness Tunney's first local ring appearance since he gained the title formerly held by Harry Greb. The Greenwich Village boxer is said to be in superb shape and confident of victory.

Another twelve-round bout will be between Silent Puryear, negro heavyweight, and Joe White of Alabama.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 29.—The Brooklyn Robins today defeated the North Dayton Merchants, 11 to 5, in an exhibition game.

WILLS TO PROTEST PERMIT FOR MATCH

Negro Heavyweight Insists Dempsey Should Meet Him Before Boxing Firpo.

CHALLENGE LONG ON FILE

Manager Mullins Says Commission Has Had Papers for a Year—Not to Take Court Action.

Aroused over the announcement of the world's heavyweight championship bout between Jack Dempsey and Luis Firpo scheduled by Tex Rickard for the Polo Grounds on Sept. 14, Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, negro challenger for the title, yesterday announced he would appear before the State Athletic Commission meeting tomorrow afternoon to protest against the board issuing a permit for the bout.

Mullins said he regards the projected Dempsey-Firpo bout as an effort on the part of Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, to dodge a bout between the champion and Wills. The New Orleans negro has had a challenge to Dempsey on file with the State Athletic Commission for more than a year, Mullins said, and he added he intended to make every effort to have the commission compel Dempsey to box Wills before the champion engages Firpo.

Mullins, however, denied emphatically that he would consult with legal talent to determine if there was not some way to prevent the Dempsey-Firpo bout if the commission's action was unfavorable to the case of Wills. The denial came from Mullins when reports reached him that he would seek legal redress.

"I know nothing about seeing any lawyers in the interests of Wills," said Mullins at his home in Brooklyn yesterday. "Reports that I contemplate such action are ridiculous. I hesitate to dignify the reports with a denial. The only action I plan is with the State Athletic Commission. I intend to be present at the meeting Tuesday, when I will attempt to press Wills's bona fide challenge, which has been in the commission's possession for more than a year.

Will Have to Wait.

"I don't know whether the commission will sanction a bout between Dempsey and Firpo in view of Wills's challenge. I am hopeful they will force Dempsey to meet Wills before the champion defends his title against Firpo. But if the commission sanctions the Dempsey-Firpo contest there is nothing I can do except resume my waiting for Dempsey to give Wills his chance.

"I have been patiently waiting for this now for more than two years. Jack Kearns promised me before he left for Montana that Wills would get his chance at the title after Dempsey finished with Tom Gibbons. When indications pointed to a further delay in a Dempsey-Wills bout I attempted to sign Wills with Firpo, the winner to meet Dempsey. I even tried to arrange a match between Wills and Willard. But I could get neither bout. Now I intend to press the matter and see if I can't get some action."

Unless William Muldoon, Chairman of the State Athletic Commission, is outvoted at tomorrow's meeting of the board, Mullins will be informed by the sport governing authorities that the Dempsey-Firpo match has the sanction of the commission. Muldoon expressed approval of the proposed bout last Saturday when announcement was made by Promoter Rickard that he had completed arrangements for the match. At that time Muldoon declared that he thought Firpo was big and strong enough to give Dempsey a battle for the title and added that the State Athletic Commission would recommend that Dempsey receive a boxing license in this State when the champion made application. Dempsey at present has no license to box in this State.

Reports have been circulated that the Cromwell A. C., which has Wills's signature to a contract for a Dempsey bout, would throw its influence back of the protest of Mullins on the Dempsey-Firpo battle, but these reports could not be verified yesterday. One boxing follower, who professes to be in close touch with the situation, expressed doubt as to whether the Dempsey-Firpo bout would be held as scheduled, indicating that a concerted propaganda drive is to be undertaken in Wills's behalf, with the object of preventing the bout. Mullins declared he knew nothing of such a plan.

Rickard Takes Rest.

Satisfied with his completed task and relieved in the knowledge that the work of actually signing and "placing" the bout and selecting a date has been accomplished, Promoter Rickard yesterday enjoyed a day away from all business cares. At Madison Square Garden, where he was sought in his office, Rickard was said to be on a motor trip in the suburbs. Unsuccessful efforts were made to reach Rickard at his home.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, remained in Saratoga Springs yesterday, making arrangements there for Dempsey's training activities. The champion's manager is expected back in town today to enlist the services of several sparring partners. It is understood Floyd Johnson, Iowa heavyweight, will be one of Dempsey's sparring partners when the titleholder starts preparing for Firpo. Bermondsey Billy Wells, English welterweight, who assisted materially in preparing Dempsey for the Shelby match, is also slated to work as a sparring partner of the champion. Wells returned yesterday from the Middle West and has an appointment with Manager Kearns today, when he expects to receive instructions for reporting to Dempsey's camp.

Dempsey is expected here tomorrow or Wednesday, according to latest information. The champion, last heard of on a fishing expedition near his birthplace, Manassa, Col., has been advised by Kearns to hurry East for the training campaign which confronts him. Whether Dempsey will repair immediately to Saratoga Springs will not be known until Kearns this afternoon divulges the champion's plans. It is understood, however, that Dempsey contemplates only a month of training. Under this arrangement it is possible the titleholder will spend about a week here.

FIRPO WOULD RATHER MEET DEMPSEY LATER

Tells Chicago Reporters That He Thinks Bout Is Scheduled Year Too Soon.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Luis Angel Firpo, matched to meet Champion Jack Dempsey in New York on Sept. 14, came to see Chicago today because he "hates the country and the small town," he told newspapermen through an interpreter. He also said, "I would rather have waited a year before meeting Dempsey, but Tex Rickard, the promoter, seemed to think the time is ripe now."

Before establishing a training camp to prepare for his match with Dempsey, Firpo said he expected to have five fights within a period of ten days. Following is the schedule he announced: Omaha, Aug. 3, ten rounds against Homer Smith; St. Louis, Aug. 6, ten rounds against Tommy Cowar; Indianapolis, Aug. 8, ten rounds against Joe Downing; Kansas City, Aug. 9, six-round exhibition; Philadelphia, Aug. 13, eight rounds against Charles Weinert.

"After these fights," Firpo said, "I shall take up my training quarters for the Dempsey match. I haven't decided where it will be, but I have had my eye on Atlantic City. I haven't picked any sparring partners as yet as I won't need them until I get these other bouts off my hands."

"Pretty warm, isn't it!"
"Why no, I haven't found it so."
"How do you get that way!"
"At any one of the 'four corners'!
"They've got a Summer weight Tuxedo this season that's the finest I've ever seen. Quarter lined. Cool and comfortable. Beautifully tailored. My idea of a perfect dinner suit for any season. Indoors, it's always Summer. So it's no extravagance; rather a safe year-round investment. Don't you agree?"

The savings to be found among our sack suits now will pay for a mighty good dinner, with trimmings, for two, or three, or four.

ROBERT KINSEY WINS MET. TENNIS TITLE

Repeats 1921 Victory by Defeating Griffin on Crescent A. C. Courts, 6-3, 6-1, 11-9.

ALSO SCORES IN DOUBLES

Paired With Brother, He Beats White and Anderson—Johnson-Griffin Team Reaches Final.

Robert Kinsey of California, sixth ranking player in the country, won the metropolitan lawn tennis championship for the second time yesterday when he defeated Clarence Griffin of the same State in the final round of the tournament at the Crescent A. C. Kinsey had previously won the title in 1921. Griffin, who ranked sixth in 1920 on his last appearance in the East, failed to make the showing that was expected and was defeated in three straight sets at 6—3, 6—1, 11—9.

In the semi-final round of the Manhattan doubles Kinsey and his brother Howard, holders of the Pacific Coast title, defeated Lewis N. White of Texas and Fred C. Anderson of Brooklyn, 6—2, 6—3, 2—6, 6—3, and William M. Johnston and Griffin defeated Philip Neer and James Davies of Leland Stanford at 8—6, 6—0, 6—4. The final round will be played on Sunday, Aug. 5, along with a number of exhibition matches to be announced later. Before the playing of the doubles semi-finals yesterday Frank T. Anderson defeated Wallace Bates of California in a one-set exhibition of singles, 8—6.

In only one set did Griffin meet Kinsey on even terms. This was the third. In spite of the fact that the two have played together on the Coast any number of times, with Griffin usually the winner, Griffin did not seem to be able to fathom Kinsey's puzzling chop strokes in the first and second sets. The winner used this one stroke almost exclusively.

Kinsey's Control Excellent.

Kinsey's control was marvelous. He seemed to be able to put the ball on almost any spot in the court he desired. His headwork was equally fine. So craftily did he shorten and lengthen his strokes and direct them to the alternating corners of the playing surface that Griffin was always on the defensive, running to make his strokes and getting into difficulties. It was mainly because of his inability to get his racquet on the ball squarely that the Californian made so many errors. The recapitulation of the stroke analysis shows that he was guilty of ninety-five errors, to sixty-one by Kinsey. In the matter of earned points, Griffin made thirty-one, to twenty-seven by Kinsey. The loser played fast, aggressive tennis, never hesitating to shoot boldly for the point, even at the most crucial stages of the play.

In the tenth game of the third set, when Kinsey was within a point of the match, Griffin returned the other's service with a fast forehand drive down the line that missed going out by an inch. It took nerve to play this shot. It also took nerve for Griffin to play up as he did throughout the third frame. He was dead tired at the end of the second—in fact, long before the end of the second. It was exhausting work to attempt to keep within striking distance of Kinsey's low-bounding chops, which hardly ever seemed to go out and which were hitting in every section of the opposite court. So indefatigable was the winner on the defense that it was almost impossible for Griffin to get anything past him unless he came forward and played his volleying game.

Griffin realized this in the third set, and, tired as he was, he set himself to the task. Hitting hard and following his forcing shots and service forward, he completely outplayed his opponent at the beginning of the set and took four games in a row. Almost every point he won in these four games was cleanly earned on fast forehand drives, which he shot down the side lines or across court. Kinsey sought to break up this net attack by returning the ball wide of the other's racquet or overhead. But Griffin steeled himself to the effort and leaped for the ball, making his volley shots from the most difficult positions, and making them with precision and decisiveness. The gallery was so sympathetic and enthusiastic over this fine exhibition of playing on nerve that it could hardly restrain its applause until the end of the rallies. But the effort was too much.

Griffin Loses Five in Row.

Hard as he tried, Griffin could not sustain this flight of brilliant tennis in the face of Kinsey's clever position play. He dropped the next five games in a row, getting but three points in the five, and twice was within a point of losing the tenth game and the match. Kinsey played his steadiest and most aggressive tennis in these five games. He chopped the ball from every position on the court, making the most difficult returns of Griffin's beautifully placed strokes. This relentless coming back of the ball disturbed Griffin and must have made him realize that it was hopeless to try to beat a man who would let nothing get past him and who was almost flawless in his stroking.

After saving himself from defeat in the tenth game, however, Griffin took new hope and for ten more games battled with his opponent on even terms. The rallies were short but brilliant, with Griffin furnishing most of the spectacular play at the net, and also doing most of the work. Kinsey mixed up his length and pace in a fashion that put his opponent completely at sea at times. Griffin refused to give up, though, and kept fighting. Not only did he have to run to get his racquet on the ball, but a weakness that developed in his backhand added to his difficulties and made it necessary for him to run around the ball when it was directed to the left of him to take it on the forehand. Kinsey broke through the other's service in the nineteenth at 4—1 and then brought the match to an end in the twentieth, which he won at the same score.

English Athletes Beat French In Annual Games by 69 to 42

PARIS, July 29.—The annual athletic competition between British and French athletes ended today in a victory for the British by 69 points against 42. The competition was first held two years ago. The British won each of the previous meets. The French, however, had great hopes of winning this year, and the British feared defeat because several of their best men were unable to participate, one of them, a divinity student, a champion sprinter, who declined to race on Sunday. The British team won the 100, 200, 400, 800, 1,500 and 5,000 metre races, and also the hammer throw, the hurdles and the relay race. The Frenchmen took the broad and high jumps and the weight throwing and discus events. The Frenchmen led in several of the races, but invariably were beaten in the last few yards. Special interest was taken in the competition because of the coming Olympic games.

SPAIN TIES FRANCE IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

Flaquer-De Gomar Win Doubles After Lacoste Completes Singles Victory.

DEAUVILLE, France, July 29 (Associated Press).—Lacoste of France and Count De Gomar of Spain resumed their match today in the European finals for the Davis Cup which was interrupted yesterday by rain. When the match was postponed Lacoste had won the first and second sets. De Gomar had taken the third, and the score in the fourth set was 4—1 in favor of the French player.

Today Lacoste at the beginning of the play lost his service without scoring a point. He finally won the set, however. The final results were 6—3, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4, which gave France the first point.

Brugnon and Cochet of France then started in the doubles against Flaquer and De Gomar of Spain. The Spaniards won the match, 6—4, 8—6, 11—13, 1—6, 6—4. Rain stopped the play after two sets, but the storm ceased sufficiently after a short time to allow the match to continue.

In his contest against Count De Gomar, Lacoste always played well within himself, after winning the first set 29 points to 21. Saturday's play consisted exclusively of baseline play and long rallies, neither player venturing near the net. Today, with the Frenchman leading 4—1 in the fourth set, De Gomar changed his tactics entirely. Rushing up to the net he succeeded in bringing the score to 4—3, but the Frenchman also came to the net, and the last three games were a continuous exchange of volleying, Lacoste having much the better of the spectacular finish.

WOMEN TO ARRIVE LATE.

But English Tennis Stars Will Not Miss Seabright Play.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 29.—The British Women's Tennis Team, scheduled to play in the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club's annual invitation tournament, opening tomorrow, will not miss the tournament because of the tardines of the steamship Franconia, on which they are passengers. The Franconia will not dock before Wednesday morning.

Bernon S. Prentice, Chairman of the tournament committee, said tonight that although the British women players were scheduled to play Tuesday afternoon, that match could easily be postponed until early Wednesday. He said they would come to the club directly after the Franconia docked.

AUSTRALIA WINNER OF DAVIS CUP TIE

Defeats Hawaii in Doubles, 6-0, 8-6, 7-5, and Earns Right to Meet Japan.

ANDERSON'S PLAY ERRATIC

Is Brilliant in First Set, but Hawkes Bears Burden in Second and Third—Dietrick Stars for Losers.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNTAIN STATION, N. J., July 29.—Australia won the right to meet Japan in the final round of the American zone Davis Cup play today when James O. Anderson and J. B. Hawkes of the Antipodeans defeated William A. Eklund and Bowie Dietrick of Hawaii in doubles, 6—0, 8—6, 7—5. This victory, with the two gained in singles on Friday, gave Australia the three out of five necessary to decide the tie. For a while it looked as though the match, which was scheduled originally for Saturday, would have to be postponed again on account of the weather, but the skies cleared and toward the end of the third set the sun was shining.

Australia won the toss, and Anderson began the service. The Antipodeans so completely outplayed their opponents in the opening set that it seemed there would be no struggle at all. Their flashing service and decisive work at the net kept the Hawaiians on the defensive throughout the frame, without any chance of breaking up their attack. Anderson was in particularly good form, and his forehand drives were going over the net so fast and with so little rise to the ball that it was almost impossible for the opposing pair to get to it in time to make a clean return. The Australian captain seemed to be able to place the ball at will, and on a number of occasions sent it back for a passing shot through the centre of the opposing court.

Dietrick Is Steady.

Dietrick was the stronger member of the Hawaiian team. His shots did not carry the pace that did the Australians, but he was steady in his stroking and used good judgment in working for position. Eklund's errors contributed largely to the one-sidedness of the score of the first set. The territorialists made their best showing in this frame in the fourth and fifth games, which they carried to deuce. They were unable to make the most of their opportunities, however and lost the games when Anderson let loose a succession of forehand drives, and Hawkes drove them to cover with his smashes overhead.

The second set saw a lapse from form on the part of Anderson. The Australian captain seemed to lose the range of the baseline and net and timed his strokes poorly. This let-down, together with a fine exhibition of volleying by Dietrick, who took the ball out of the air both from the right and left and angled it back in the neatest possible fashion, enabled the Hawaiians to gain a lead of 3—1. They carried this lead to 5—3, playing the ball to Anderson, who drove outside and into the net so persistently that his partner was led to poach upon his territory. It was mainly through the brilliant all-around play of Hawkes that the Antipodeans ran three straight games in a row, to go into the lead at 6—5. Dietrick evened the score at 6—all with another hit of sound volleying, and that was the last game the Hawaiians got in the set. Hawkes's aggressive playing enabled the Australians to win the thirteenth game, and they broke through in the fourteenth for the set at 8—6.

Anderson Plays Poorly.

Anderson was hardly any better in the third set. He continued to drive into the net incessantly, but made up for some of these errors by sending across an occasional beautiful passing shot that neither of the opposing pair could get his racquet on. Hawkes was not as steady in this set as he was in the first, but it was mainly through his efforts that his team went into a lead of 3—0. At this stage Dietrick came to the fore and dominated the play for the next seven games. The Hawaiian's work at the net during this stretch compared favorably with the best shown by either of the opposing pair, and, almost single-handed, he brought the score to deuce at 5—all, speeding up his pace as the set progressed and cross-courting his shots with admirable judgment. However, this fine effort was doomed to go for nought. It needed only this threat to make Anderson and Hawkes steady down and in spite of the continued brilliant play of Dietrick, the Australians took the next two games for the set at 7—5, bringing the match to a close.

Following the play in the cup tie, Francis T. Hunter, runner-up at Wimbledon, defeated Harvey Snodgrass of California in an exhibition of singles, 6—4, 6—8, 6—3. Hunter's terrific forehand drives and service, backed up by clean-cut work at the net gave him the slight advantage over Snodgrass, whose play at close quarters was of the same high character as his opponent's.

Tomorrow afternoon the program calls for the playing of the two final Davis Cup singles matches, the first of which, between Anderson and Eklund, will start at 3 o'clock, and an exhibition between Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., sixth ranking player in the country, and Miss Eleanor Goss, of the West Side Tennis Club, both of whom returned recently from Europe.

Match Is Important.

The form shown in this match by the two players will determine largely the chances of their being named on the American team that will play the English in the new stadium at Forest Hills Friday and Saturday of next week.

BADGER WINS RACE FOR U-CLASS YACHTS

Defeats Tern and Junior in Third of Harlem Y. C. Events at City Island.

William Luthy's yacht, Badger, was the winner of the race for sonder or U-Class yachts sailed yesterday under the auspices of the Harlem Yacht Club at City Island. The race, which was the third of the club's 1923 series of nautical competitions, was sailed from the clubhouse at City Island to Fort Slocum and return.

The field of four entrants got away to a good start at 4:10, and the Badger was the first to pass the judges' boat at 5:31. Closely following in the wake of the Badger was J. Slavin's Tern, which finished at 5:32:40, while the Junior, the property of Frank Muhlseld, was the third yacht to cross the line, finishing at 5:33:22. J. Garret's Eel appeared to find the going unsatisfactory and did not finish.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

BOXING

If any testimonial was needed of the popularity of professional boxing under well regulated conditions, then this testimonial was furnished during the last week. Two world's championship contests were conducted in local arenas without mishap or dissatisfaction, without confusion or unpleasant aftermath. Over half a million dollars was paid by followers of boxing to see the contests. More than 90,000 people attended the two bouts. No greater indication of boxing's popularity is needed. The sport, once booted around in the mire, figuratively a football for unscrupulous promoters, officials and politicians, seems now to be established as to popularity and desirability. Under proper conditions boxing has proved itself a worthy sport. For this thanks is due to the expert hands which guided the sport, with diplomacy and tact, through the many threatening situations which at one time or another since boxing was legalized indicated a return of old evils. Boxing should survive in the future, as it has up to the present, if the same strict discipline and regard for ordinary decencies are observed and enforced.

At the present time, however, there are ominous rumblings portending trouble ahead for boxing. The announcement of the Dempsey-Firpo bout for Sept. 14 is the cause. This bout has aroused jealousies and, to some extent, ill-feeling among promoters, which, unless checked, may work serious harm. Antagonism to a Dempsey-Firpo bout is promised because this match practically precludes the possibility of a Dempsey-Wills bout, which was expected this year. Open warfare is threatened among promoters, and this can bring about an abolition of boxing quicker than any other condition. Perhaps too late promoters will wake up to the realization that no matter how popular it is, boxing is tolerated—not encouraged.

Returning to the recent championship battles, one is struck not alone with the drawing power of the contests as proving boxing's popular hold, but with the brilliance of the struggles for the crowns. It is true that both contests were won in hollow fashion. Leonard beat Tendler with consummate ease. The same was true of Dundee's triumph over Criqui. Nevertheless, paradoxical though it may seem, each contest held brilliant competitive interest. Leonard showed himself the master in beating Tendler, a master at a time when it was getting to be the general belief that Leonard was deteriorating. One could not help but be impressed with the superb boxing skill and all-around ability of the successful champion. Dundee stamped himself as one of the most remarkable boxers known to ring history. His victory over Criqui and the quality of that victory, achieved after thirteen years of ring endeavor and as he nears the thirty-year mark, proved Dundee a pugilistic marvel.

It is lamentable that Dundee's triumph should have been sullied by thousands of his adherents who put the hallmark of shame on themselves by booing and blackguarding Criqui, the gamest of the game in the ring that night, a visitor to this country, a wounded veteran of Verdun, a genuine fighting man.

BASEBALL

After starting their important trip through the West by breaking even in a series of four games with the Cubs, the Giants now face their most crucial test of the season. The results of the champions' efforts during the next nine days will undoubtedly determine to a great extent whether McGraw's team will win its third successive pennant. The Giants are scheduled to play five games with the Pirates, starting with a double-header today, and then they are due for five contests with the Reds, the first of which will be played on Friday. As the teams now stand, the champions are three games ahead of the Pirates and three and a half in front of the Reds. With the pitching staff going rather poorly and with Dave Bancroft still out of the line-up, the Giants' prospects of maintaining their lead during the present week are none too bright. A double defeat at the hands of the Pirates today, combined with two victories for the Reds over the hopeless Phillies, would put the Pittsburgh club only one full game behind the champions and the Cincinnati team only a game and a half to the rear of the local club.

Much interest throughout the National League circuit is being manifested in the coming series in Cincinnati, with the fans in practically every city but New York hoping for the success of the Reds. Extra bleacher seats are being built at Redland Field for the games with McGraw's team, and reports from Cincinnati state that all reserved seats have been disposed of for the five games. The great showing made by the Reds this season has been due in great measure to the splendid work of Adolfo Luque, the Cuban pitcher, who at the present time is just about the best twirler in the National League. Luque seems to have shaken off the jinx that pursued him through other pennant campaigns and is now breezing along at a great rate. He has lost only three games this year, and yesterday he won his seventeenth of the season. If the Reds manage to get out in front during the coming series, the Giants will have a mightly hard time in trying to overhaul them.

While the Giants are being hard pressed to maintain their position at the head of the pack, the Yankees are still moving steadily toward another championship. The American League champions are now fourteen and a half games ahead of the Indians, who are in second place. The Athletics, who performed so well early in the season, are in sixth place, twenty and a half games behind the Hugmen.

Not only are followers of baseball centring their attention on the National League race, but they are also watching with keen interest the battle for home-run honors of the season between Babe Ruth of the Yankees and Cy Williams of the Phillies. The Phillies' slugger slammed out two circuit drives yesterday and brought his total up to 27, which is three more than the number made by Ruth.

A total of 73,000 fans saw the two local teams perform yesterday afternoon, 40,000 being on hand at the Yankee Stadium and 33,000 watching the Giants in Chicago. These figures are imposing enough, but are all the more remarkable in view of the Yankees' tremendous lead in the American League race and the fact that the Cubs are far behind in the National League battle.

TURF

The end of July marks the close of thoroughbred racing for the Summer season on the tracks in the metropolitan district, and it also is the half-way post for the season in the East. Tomorrow the sport will get under way at Saratoga Springs, the most attractive racing plant in the country, and it is expected that there will be even greater interest in the last half of the season than the first.

The season to date in the East has been exceedingly prosperous, that at Empire City just closed having been reported as the most successful in its history. This is in spite of the absence of the stars of the early racing through sickness and the casualties incident to training and racing. But there is the promise that most of the topnotchers will be back under colors during the month of racing at the Spa, wth the exception of Exterminator and one or two others. In addition Morvich is to face the barrier once more early in the meeting, first as a sprinter and later over a distance of ground if he makes good the promise he has shown in his work since his return from stud service in Kentucky. In addition to these reappearances there will will be the pick of the Western stables to dispute supremacy with the leaders that have shown in the front rank all season hereabouts. If Zeb comes back to his best form there can be little doubt that he will close the year of 1923 as the undisputed three-year-old king. Possibly he will go on and be crowned as the leader of the handicap division as well, and for these honors he will have plenty of opportunity at Saratoga.

The two-year-old situation has not been cleared. It is not at all unlikely that the leader of the ranks of the juveniles will be chosen as a result of the racing during the next four weeks. There are still many youngsters that have not as yet gone to the post. John E. Madden uncovered a colt in the very last race of the last day at Empire City that may dispute a little later the claims of the half-dozen or more at the top of the list as the result of the racing for the first half of the season. There are others just beginning their racing careers and more that will make a début at Saratoga.

There is one other side of the racing at the Spa that has come to be of tremendous importance in the thoroughbred world. That is the annual yearlings sales, which will start next Friday evening. It is not improbable that new records will be established this Summer, as some five hundred prospective race horses will come under the hammer, and the prediction is ventured by horsemen that they will realize in the vicinity of a million and a half dollars.

An interesting announcement during the week was that Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Carnegie Phipps are soon to set up important racing establishments. More and more are persons of wealth attracted to the sport of breeding and racing of thoroughbreds, and while the latest additions to the ranks will devote most of their attention at first to cross-country sport, it is expected that they will make yearling purchases in preparation for the season of 1924. The first of their representatives to wear silks will come by purchase in the subscription plan, so it is unlikely that their colors will be seen this year. The Syndicate Stable, composed of a number of sportswomen who were quite successful last year, won ts first race of the current season on the closing day at Empire City, when Kilbowie came home in front of six other juveniles in the Arbutus Purse.

SWIMMING

Duke Kahanamoku is swimming faster than ever he did. At the age of 33, after a period of inactivity during which every one thought his career as a competitor was closed for good, the noted Hawaiian waterman, world's sprinting champion and record holder for a decade, again has stepped to the fore and he is making better times for the dashes than he returned in the days of his international supremacy. Within the last few weeks Duke has placed to his credit a 50-yard swim in 0:22 3-5 and has won two 100-yard races under different conditions in 0:53 2-5 and 0:52 3-5, respectively. The best marks he attained previous to this Summer were 0:23 for the shorter distance and 0:53 for the longer.

The sudden return to form of the Honolulu veteran is particularly gratifying because it comes at a time when America's greatest hope for the Olympic free style events of 1924; John Weissmuller, the peerless swimmer of the Illinois A. C. of Chicago has suffered a complete breakdown and fear is expressed by medical authorities that he may be out of the sport for months, may perhaps never regain the speed which earned him the distinction of being the foremost all-around swimmer ever developed.

That Duke is confident in his new-found power and eager to try again for world's leadership was shown shortly before Weissmuller's breakdown. The speedy Hawaiian, now wearing the colors of the Los Angeles A. C., had made arrangements to undertake an Eastern trip, to the end that he might try conclusions with the man who deprived him of his international crown. The unfortunate disablement of the Chicago marvel prevented the clash, looked forward to with keen anticipation, but Duke is determined that he will wear the American shield at another Olympiad and he proposes to train for the games in Paris as he never did before. If he succeeds in retaining his present speed, and there is every reason to believe he will, his chances for victory appear excellent. None but Weissmuller has touched his latest figures for the sprints so far, and the latter's prospects now look problematical. It is not beyond the possibilities that we will see an old-timer, who will then be 34, crowned Olympic champion in the 100-meter free style swim at the coming games.

GOLF

In winning the Western amateur golf championship for the eighth time, Chick Evans has done something that no other golfer has ever been able to do. His recent victory at Cleveland, gained despite the opposition of perhaps the most brilliant field that ever took part in the event, unquestionably stamps him as the greatest golfer that America has ever produced. When Bobby Jones, now national open champion, attains Evans's age, he may have built up a record that will surpass Chick's, although that is very doubtful.

There were many who witnessed Evans's downfall at the hands of Jess Sweetser in the final of the national amateur at Brookline last year who declared that the Edgewater star's reign was over, that he could not hope to hold his own any longer because of the limitations of his hitting ability. Evans is not a long driver in any sense of the word. Of course he has tempered down his hitting to quite an appreciable extent, figuring that straightness is better than distance. At Mayfield Chick was up against one of the longest hitters playing golf today—Dexter Cummings, the Yale youngster who holds the intercollegiate title—yet he won rather handily. Then, too, Evans's semi-final opponent, Jess Sweetser, is not a short hitter, but Evans beat him. It was a narrow victory, to be sure, 1 up after thirty-eight holes, but it was a victory just the same. So, evidently, there isn't so much in length off the tee after all. The ability to keep the ball straight, avoiding as much trouble as possible, that's the secret. Many golfers, beginners, would rather get one 300-yard wallop than a dozen hole-dead pitches. And therein lies the difference. Evans is deadly in playing his second shots. And his accuracy in playing them is what has made him what he is, one of the greatest golfers that the world has seen. His record proves it—former open, twice amateur champion, and semi-finalist in the amateur on numerous occasions.

The goddess who decides the fortunes of golfers is a fickle old lady at times, but in one instance, at least, she rewarded the deserving. That was in the invitation tournament of the Rockaway Hunting Club. The winner, John Stearns, present Long Island amateur champion, played winning golf throughout and in defeating such worthies as White, Tippett and Knapp earned his honors. In his last two matches Stearns played almost faultless golf. Against Tippett he was 37 to the turn, despite a 6 at the first hole. Against Knapp he was a stroke less. Coasting along close to par over the Rockaway Club links is not easily accomplished. It is a great test of real golf. Stearns came through the test with flying colors.

The other invitation event of the week was that of the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, in which Harry Scharff was victorious. It was unfortunate that some of the carded stars, men like Ouimet and Guilford, did not put in an appearance. But as things developed, the field narrowed down to four fine players, Scharff, Dick Jones, Worthington and Sandy Armour. The winner, in defeating Armour and Jones on the same day richly deserved his trophy.

Seabright, N. J., becomes the Wimbledon of tennis today, when leading players from the world over gather there to compete in the annual invitation tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club. Australia, Hawaii, South Africa, England, India and the Pacific Coast are represented among the contenders in the men's and women's singles and doubles. With William M. Johnston of California, recent winner of the world's championship; Vincent Richards, B. I. C. Norton and Francis T. Hunter, runner-up at Wimbledon, listed in the draw, the American fixture lacks only the official designation to vie with the English classic as a world's title event.

Without Mlle. Lenglen no women's tournament can make any pretensions toward world's status, but the Seabright club is fortunate in that the women's team which is on its way here from England will make its first appearance on the New Jersey courts. Much interest will be centred in the play of Miss Kathleen McKane, the leading player of her sex in the British Isles, who has beaten Mrs. Mallory on a number of occasions in English tournaments. With the American champion in the draw there is the prospect of a meeting between the two in the tournament, which would be of particular interest, as showing how much women players are affected in their game by foreign conditions.

A victory for Mrs. Mallory over Miss McKane would do much to vindicate American women's tennis. When one remembers how absolutely the champion has dominated the play in this country, and then contracts this showing with her failures abroad, it does not reflect well on the standard of women's tennis in the United States. Mrs. Mallory defeated Mlle. Lenglen, under unfortunate conditions, in 1921 at Forest Hills, although she never has been able to give the French star any real opposition abroad. A victory by her over Miss McKane would lead to the conclusion that Mrs. Mallory's play in Europe was not her best, and therefore did not furnish a fair criterion for judging the standard of American women's tennis.

It will be interesting, also, to watch the work of Miss Helen Wills against the English stars. The California girl plays an entirely different type of game from Mrs. Mallory—the masculine, attacking style, which, Europen critics declare, is the only style that can ever cope successfully with Mlle. Lenglen. Miss Wills is generally looked upon as the most promising player of her sex in this country and as the probable successor to the French girl's crown. Her showing this week at Seabright against the English players will help to determine just how great the probability is.

CAROLYN L. TAKES MOTOR BOAT RACE

Captain William Lowney's motor boat, Carolyn L., was the victor in the annual handicap race of the New York Motor Boat Club held yesterday over a course extending from the club's boathouse at 147th Street and the Hudson River to Rockland Light and return, a distance of approximately forty-six miles. The Carolyn L., together with Reckless, the property of Captain A. Newburger, which finished second in the race, were the winners of the two silver cups. The trophies were donated by Commodore Henry V. Brewster and Vice Commodore E. L. Kieger of the club.

Carolyn L. completed the course in 5:04:10 and the Reckless finished in 5:09:49. Captain Fred Blake's Jenny III. was third in the race with a total time of 524:36. Cito, owned by Captain Thomas Smith, finished fourth; Captain G. Willberg's Aline was fifth; Buddy, the property of Commodore Brewster, ranked sixth and Captain A. Maynard's Nedeva, which was the scratch boat in the race, found the handicaps conceded to the other entrants too heavy and finished last. Engracia, owned by Captain William Messer, failed to finish. Eight boats competed in the race.

POSEY FINISHES FIRST IN CEDARHURST RACE

Defeats Wayward by 29 Seconds in Yacht Event—Nau-Sea Also Triumphs.

CEDARHURST, L. I., July 29.—The race postponed on Saturday on account of bad weather was sailed off the Cedarhurst Yacht Club today. The wind was south and light. It was so fickle that the committee decided to keep the craft inside of Lawrence Inlet so that if the wind died away the craft could be easily towed home. Fortunately the wind held and all the yachts except one of the O boats finished.

In the Knockabout Class the winner was Posey, the property of J. L. Lawrence. It defeated E. A. Kniffin's Wayward by 29 seconds for first prize. The other division was made up of the O boats of the club. They were sailed by women. The winner was Miss Alice Cox, who was at the tiller of Daniel T. Cox's Nau-Sea.

2,000 FANS WATCH HISPANO ELEVEN WIN

Galicia Soccer Team Defeated by 10 Goals to 2 at New York Oval.

Defeating the Galicia soccer eleven by the score of 10 goals to 2 at New York Oval in the presence of 2,000 fans, the Hispano Football Club yesterday showed itself to be one of the fastest teams in this vicinity. The score was one-sided, but this was not because the Galicians did not know how to attack. Ferro, in goal for the Hispanos, played his first game in three years and was at his best. In the second half he saved a penalty. When ends were changed the victors were leading, 6 to 1.

MISS EDERLE WINS A. A. U. SWIM TITLE

LEADS FROM THE START

Finishes 40 Yards Ahead of Miss Lambert—Ehrlich Takes Metropolitan Medley Honors.

Miss Gertrude Ederle of the Women's Swimming Association of New York scored an overwhelming victory in the National A. A. U. 440-yard free style senior championship swim, the feature of a water carnival held by the Beechmont Carnival Committee in Echo Bay, New Rochelle, yesterday afternoon.

Opposed by Miss Adelaide Lambert, champion of the Panama Canal Zone, and by her W. S. A. clubmates, Miss Virginia Whitenack and Miss Ethel McGary, Miss Ederle went to the front at the start and increased her lead to the end, winning by nearly 40 yards in 6:30 2-5. Miss Lambert and Miss Whitenack swam virtually a dead heat for second, the former earning the decision by a touch. Miss McGary was a very close fourth.

Miss Ederle's time, like all other times returned at the meet, is decidedly misleading. The float anchored at one end of the supposedly 110-yard course was shifted by the tide, and general performances indicated that the stretch was too long by approximately ten yards.

Ehrlich Wins Met. Title.

Another championship decided at the carnival was the Metropolitan A. A. U. senior medley swim for men, consisting of 100 yards each, with breast, back and free style strokes. Those who reported were Ferdinand Ehrlich and Charles Laforge of the New York A. C., Harold Florence of the Boys' Club, and Victor Kiffe of the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A.

Laforge led for the first century, when the breast stroke was used, but Ehrlich pressed to the fore on the second lap, covered with back stroke, and Kiffe also moved ahead of the other two. Ehrlich maintained his advantage coming home with the crawl and was first by several yards in 4:35. Florence passed Kiffe and secured the place, closely followed by the latter, who finished third.

A 100-yard invitation free style handicap for men furnished the most conclusive evidence of the shortness of the course. Leeming Jelliffe of the New York A. C., who won from scratch, was timed in 1:12 2-5, although he does the century consistently under one minute. His clubmates, Joseph Farley and Ewald Wildforster, in receipt of 3 and 4 seconds, touched next as named, but the latter was declared runner-up, owing to interference on the part of Farley.

Miss McFarlane in Front.

Miss Maud McFarlane of the W. S. A. was the victor in a 110-yard handicap swim for women. Allowed 18 seconds, she covered the distance in 1:25 2-5 actual time and defeated, by a body's length, Miss Doris O'Mara, 8 seconds, her team mate and closest rival.

A 50-yard dash for girls of 12 and under went to Miss Thyra Da Monte, formerly of New Orleans, now affiliated with the W. S. A. She won from scratch in 0:35 4-5 and was hard pressed by Miss Maxine Bracker, 10 seconds, who crossed the line almost abreast of Miss Frances Meany, 2 seconds, who was third.

ROME, July 29.—For the last three days the Italian athletic clubs have been in competition for the golden wreath offered by the American Ambassador, Richard Washburn Child, to the club winning the most points in the flat events included in the Olympic Games. The competitions have been held at the stadium, but the Ambassador was unable to be present. He sent a message regretting his inability to attend and expressing his deep interest. The greatest number of points was won by the Club Fenice of Venice; second, Virtus of Bologna; third, Audax of Rome. Five more similar competitions must take place before the wreath is awarded to the club gaining the maximum number of points in all the competitions.

GOULLET-SPENCER WIN FEATURE RACE

10,000 WITNESS EVENTS

Summonses Served on Officials and Riders for Alleged Violation of Sunday Laws.

A brilliant bit of riding by Alfred Goullet, popular Newark cyclist, brought a straight-heat victory to the all-around star and his partner, Willie Spencer, American champion, last night in the one-mile team match race, which was the feature of the card at the New York Velodrome. Goullet's spectacular ride came in the second heat after Spencer had captured the first. The terrific pace of the all-around star in the deciding heat gave the Goullet-Spencer combination the honors over Orlando Piani and Mario Bergamini, Italian cyclists.

A crowd of more than 10,000 people, ignorant of the fact that summonses were served promiscuously among the managing officials and riders at the Velodrome for alleged violation of the Sunday blue laws, sent up a terrific din of applause at the sensational riding.

Spencer treated the crowd to a superb exhibition of riding in capturing the first heat from Bergamini. The four cyclists alternated in the pace for four laps, but on the fifth lap Goullet went into the lead. He was followed by Bergamini, Spencer and Piani in that order. On the bell lap Bergamini sought to spurt into the van, but Spencer "jumped" with the Italian, and in a ding-dong finish led Bergamini to the tape.

Goullet Wins by Yard.

Bergamini made another bid for victory in the second heat, this time against Goullet, but the speedy little Newark cyclist overhauled the Italian in a spirited struggle during the last three laps, and just managed to snatch victory from Bergamini by the margin of about a yard.

Bergamini jumped to the front three laps from the finish, with Goullet in hot pursuit. Piani and Spencer seemed content to let their teammates fight it out. During the last lap Goullet rode up on and passed Bergamini, but the Italian tried to ride around the Newark cyclist on the backstretch, and the pair battled right up to the finish line, while the crowd yelled itself hoarse.

Spencer's winning time in the first heat was 2:43 2-5. He rode the last eighth mile in 12 1-5 seconds. Goullet's time for victory in the second heat was 2:54 2-5, and he rode his last eighth mile in 12 2-5 seconds.

Pete Van Kempen, Hollander, who has enjoyed particular success in his riding during the past week, scored over Anthony Beckman in an Australian pursuit race which excited great interest among the crowd. Van Kempen overhauled his rival after covering three miles, three laps. The time was 7:26 3-5. Ray Eaton, East Orange rider, who formerly held the American championship, went down to defeat by Cecil Walker, Australian, in a two-mile paced match race which went three heats. Walker was the winner in two of the heats, finishing in front in the first and third dashes over the saucer-shaped track. In both the first and third heats Walker rode in front all the way, fighting off Eaton's efforts to overhaul him.

Bendi Is a Winner.

Edward Bendi of the Unione Sportiva Italiana captured the two-mile Greater New York amateur championship race, which was the fifth of a series of six races to determine the all-around amateur champion cyclist of the local district. This victory practically clinched the title for Bendi. He has only to secure second place in the five-mile race, which closes the series, to win the championship.

In winning the two-mile event Bendi showed the way to his clubmate, Louis Benezatti, by a close margin in 4:12 1-5. John Olofson, Empire City Wheelmen, was third, and Eugene Aickelin, Bronx County Wheelmen, finished fourth.

FOUR YACHTS START IN DEEP-SEA RACE

Leave Sea Gate on Course Around Long Island for Brooklyn Y. C. Trophy.

In a light breeze from the South and aided by a fair tide, four small yachts started off the Sea Gate anchorage of the Atlantic Yacht Club yesterday to race around Long Island for the Brooklyn Yacht Club Deep Sea Challenge Trophy. The yachts got away at 1:40 P. M., making a pretty start, with all but the schooner Hookah, which belongs to Mel R. Smith, South Shore Yacht Club, making a good start, almost on the gun. The schooner was only a little late.

As they rounded Norton's Point and stood along the Coney Island shore, Butterfly, the defending yacht of the American Yacht Club, which is the property of Stuyvesant Wainwright, had opened up a small lead over the sloop Azor, the challenger of the New Rochelle Yacht Club, which belongs to Commodore C. A. Marsland. Then came Malabar II., which belongs to W. A. Curtis Jr., also of the American Yacht Club, the defending organization. The schooner was last.

As the yachts stood to the eastward it was noticed that the dark clouds of the morning were clearing away and that the wind was a little fresher. It was all taken to mean that the yachtsmen would have a good race and possibly break the record for the course. The finish is to be off the American Yacht Club at Rye, N. Y. They should finish tomorrow.

The start was managed by a special committee made up of H. de B. Parsons, Chairman of the Race Committee of the American Yacht Club; E. Remsen, a member of the same committee; Commodore Cutler, also of the American Yacht Club; John R. Brophy, representing the New Rochelle Yacht Club, the challenger, and Gherardi Davis, Chairman of the Race Committee of the New York Yacht Club, who served as one of the judges.

YOUNG RATSEY WINS ALLEY YACHT PRIZE

Shows Most Skill Among Skippers in Star Class in Larchmont Race Week Contests.

At a dinner given by Commodore James B. Ford of the Larchmont Yacht Club at the clubhouse on Saturday night to the skippers and crews of the winning yachts the prizes won in various classes during race week were awarded. Among others also present were the flag officers of the club, the members of the Regatta Committee and many old-time members, including A. Bryan Alley, one of the two surviving charter members of the club, and former Supreme Court Justice John H. Clark, who served for many years as a member of the Regatta Committee.

The historic prize offered by Mr. Alley for the most skillful skipper in the Star Class was awarded to young Ernest Ratsey, son of the sail-maker of City Island, who sailed his boat, the Irex, with great skill during the series, capturing two firsts and being well up in all six of the races.

After the silver flask was turned over to the winner Vice Commodore Philip H. Johnson, the toastmaster, called upon Mr. Alley to tell about how he sailed the sloop Minerva to victory back in 1889, when he was awarded the flask as the winning skipper in a race down the Narrows and around Sandy Hook Lightship and back. The flask was donated by the late Robert Center.

In the 40-footer class the series was tied between Banshee, owned by Harry L. Maxwell, and Shawara, owned by C. Barnum Seeley. Shawara won two races of the six. Banshee did not win a race but was "in the money" in every contest. The two skippers flipped coins to see which would get the winning pennant in the club colors presented by Commodore Ford. Mr. Seeley won.

Then the skippers got together and arranged a match race to sail off the tie and to determine the winner of the cup offered by Vice Commodore Johnson in this class. This match will be sailed on some Sunday following the New York Yacht Club's cruise, and will be in charge of the Larchmont Yacht Club's Regatta Committee. A joint cup will be offered by Messrs. Maxwell and Seeley, to be raced for by the other 40-footers on that day.

Nimbus, owned by E. P. Alker, won the cup offered by Harry L. Maxwell for the Larchmont 39-footers; Nahama, a yacht designed by the late Addison G. Hanan and now owned by C. L. Weyand, was the winner by a wide margin in class P; Bois de Belleau was the winner among the Victory boats; Grebe, sailed by Henry B. Nevins, was the winner in the six-meter class, and Tea Ticket, owned by Henry Whiton, in the S class sloops.

The biggest point winner of the series was Tauras, W. L. Inslee's Star boat, which won two firsts, finished second twice and third once. Mr. Inslee received the silver bowl offered by Captain Henry B. Plant for the biggest point winner in the "keener classes."

Commodore H. H. Raymond of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club; Justice Clark, Rear Commodore Hubbard, Chairman Butler Whiting of the Regatta Committee; Arthur Aldridge, dean of yachting writers; Herbert L. Stone, editor of Yachting, and W. P. Stevens, recorder of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound, were among the speakers at the dinner. The Regatta Committee was highly complimented on the efficient way in which the race week series had been handled.

During the present week many of the racing yachts will haul out to prepare for the New York Yacht Club's annual cruise which begins one week from tomorrow, and which is preceded by the Larchmont-Indian Harbor interclub cruise. The rendezvous for the interclub cruise is at Indian Harbor next Saturday afternoon. On Sunday there will be a squadron run to Black Rock, Conn., on Monday a run to Duck Island Roads, near Saybrook, and the following day to New London, where the combined fleets will join that of the New York Yacht Club.

About twenty-five racing yachts are expected to take part in the preliminary cruise squadron runs. Commodore Ford and Commodore Raymond have offered prizes for these races.

The thirty-first annual regatta of the Stamford Yacht Club will be sailed in Long Island Sound off Stamford next Saturday.

TITLE BIKE SPRINT WON BY W. SPENCER

GOULLET ALSO TRIUMPHS

Captures Two-Mile Handicap From Scratch — Chapman Takes Motor-Paced Event.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., July 29.—Willie Spencer, American bicycle champion, climbed up to within five points of his brother Arthur in the battle for the American title when he defeated Arthur and Cecil Walker in the quarter-mile titular race, the thirteenth of a series of eighteen races to decide the American championship for 1923, at the Velodrome here today.

Pete Van Kempen defeated Eddie Madden and Alf Grenda in the heat to decide fourth place. The standing in the championship now reads: Arthur Spencer 40, Willie Spencer 35, Cecil Walker 25, Ray Eaton 10, Pete Van Kempen 10, Alfred Goullet 9, Orlando Piani 7, Mario Bergamini 3, Palmiro Mori 2, Alf Grenda 1, William Keller 1.

Willie Spencer jumped away from the mark at the shot of the gun, with Arthur riding second and Walker third in the final. Going into the last lap, Walker swung alongside of Arthur and held his position until the last turn, when he fell back and Arthur raced Willie to the tape, but lost by a length.

The semi-finals brought about some exciting racing. Willie Spencer won the first one, beating Madden and Bergamini. Arthur Spencer beat out Van Kempen and Piani in the second semi-final, while Walker outraced Grenda and Goullet in the third semi-final, which was one of the best races of the afternoon.

Alf Goullet, popular all-around star, won the two-mile handicap, riding from scratch. Goullet rode a brilliant race and just nipped Reggie McNamara at the tape. Maurits Declecke of Chicago finished third, while Frank Bartell of Newark was fourth.

George Chapman, motor-paced champion of America, the Newark youth who has held the title for the last four years, won the twenty-mile motor-paced race after a hard fight. Chapman got off last in the race, but one by one rode around all of his opponents and finally won the race, covering the distance in 27:42 4-5. Chapman was paced by Willie Zipf of Newark.

Vincent Madonna of Italy, paced by Eddie Root, finished in second place, a half lap back. Frank Cory, Australia, paced by Jimmy Hunter, was one lap behind at the finish, while Clarence Carman, Jamaica, due to a puncture, finished two laps to the bad.

GUARANTEES POSTED IN FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Professional Clubs Agree Not to Interfere With Players in College.

CHICAGO, July 29.—A guarantee of $1,000 by each team holding membership in the National Football League was posted at the meeting of the league here today as evidence of the good faith of the teams in the league's policy of noninterference with college players who are restrained from participation in professional football by college rules. The sum posted is also a guarantee for the completion of the 1923 schedule.

"We have no desire to interfere with college players who cannot play on our teams and then go back to their own organizations," Joe F. Carr of Columbus, Ohio, President of the league, said. "As it is, more than 90 per cent. of the college football stars who graduated in 1923 are signed by professional clubs for the coming year."

Carr said he also had the word of each of the twenty presidents of clubs in the league that they will not attempt to steal college players for their teams. Such a practice in the past has always proven a blow to amateur football, he said.

WOMEN'S TENNIS DEFERRED

State Singles and Doubles Titles to Be Decided Next Sunday.

RYE, N. Y., July 29.—Rain today again caused postponement of the singles and doubles finals of the New York State women's tennis championship tournament on the turf courts of the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club. The matches will be played Sunday, Aug. 5.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, national women's champion and State titleholder, was to play in both contests, defending her singles title against Miss Helen Wills, wonder girl of Berkeley, Cal., and with Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston meeting Miss Clare Cassell of New York and Miss Marie Wagner of Yonkers for the doubles title.

The fact that all of these players are entered in the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club invitation tournament, which starts tomorrow at Seabright, N. J., necessitated postponement of the State finals until next Sunday.

NORTON-ROSENBAUM WIN.

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, July 29.—Brian I. C. Norton, famous British tennis player, and Dr. William Rosenbaum of New York defeated Victor Chambers of California and Manfred Goldman of New York in the final round of a one-day doubles tournament at Briarcliff Lodge today.

Six teams were entered, meeting in a round robin to determine the finalists.

A Saturnine Svengali.

TRILBY, with Andree Lafayette, Arthur Edmund Carewe, Wilfred Lucas, Creighton Hale, Philo McCullogh, Francis McDonald, Maurice Cannon and others, from Du Maurier's novel, directed by James Young; "Musical Miniatures"; "Here and There" series; "The Pearl Divers," an "Aesop Fable"; "Ben Bolt," sang by Kitty McLoughlin. At the Strand.

Sitting in the Strand watching Richard Walton Tully's picturized version of "Trilby," one's mind wanders back to the jolly bygone days of Paris when a franc meant a franc; when the Latin Quarter was inspiring; when the students wore their voluminous velvet trousers and the "Boule Miche" could boast of the far-flung popularity of its Taverne du Panthéon and the Café Harcourt; when the Bal Bullier was a magnet for students instead of tourists; when one could listen to marvelous vibrant music in the Concert Rouge, and then, in the stale hours of the early morn, one could return to a room in the Hôtel de la Place de l'Odéon and know that that red-tile-floored spot was costing 30 francs a month.

Andrée Lafayette, a French actress with straight golden hair, blue eyes, a fine forehead, and—if one might be permitted to say so—a girl endowed with a good figure, catches the spirit of Du Maurier's fascinating Parisian character. "Trilby" was first produced many years ago, but Mr. Tully and James Young, the director, have used every modern means to score a success with this photoplay. Andrée Lafayette plays a Trilby full of fun, an agile little French girl who has the ability to enjoy anything so long as Little Billee, the Laird and Taffy are present. She manifests her loathing for Svengali and her sympathy for the adoring Gecko.

When posing in the "altogether"—which is discretely pictured so as not to offend censors—she is so sweetly sorry that it shocks the devoted Little Billee.

But whimsical and charming as Mlle. Lafayette is, it is Arthur Edmund Carewe's revelation of Svengali that dominates this production. His make-up is true as steel. He has the long fingers, the sharp, aquiline nose, the hollow, cadaverous cheeks, the black, matted beard and unkempt hair of the Svengali of the book. His dark eyes are scintillating and gruesome. He is the sleek, sloppy, greasy Svengali. He wears shapeless trousers, a filthy shirt and an Inverness cape. In the latter portion of the film he is garbed in a narrow-shouldered dress suit and straight trousers, in which costume he gasps his last in an uncomfortable position.

His beguiling of Trilby is gripping and tense, and his perpetual eavesdropping on the Three Musketeers of the Brush begets hatred. He is never one of the party, but is constantly cropping up, and when Little Billee's parents are aghast at the idea of their son marrying Trilby, Svengali smiles fiendishly and resorts to the power of his hypnotic cunning to lure the girl away, to bring song where it does not exist.

There is an excellent scene in the theatre at which Trilby makes her appearance as La Svengali, the posters of which attract Little Billee, the Laird and Taffy on their return to Paris. Trilby fascinates her audience as Svengali wields the baton. Then after the intermission, when she has recovered from the spell of the dark one's influence, she bawls forth "Ben Bolt" in a flat and disturbing manner.

Trilby is seen ill in her room, appealed to by Little Billee. A picture is brought to her when he has left. She unwraps it and before her sees the Saturnine Svengali. The picture comes to life and then fades down to the mere photograph, with Trilby attacked by its spell and dying.

Some of the scenes in this production were made in Paris. Creighton Hale's performance as Little Billee is not at all sympathetic, and Philo McCullogh, as Taffy, seems occasionally conscious that his whiskers do not belong to him.

In these days, when so much plot and counterplot is demanded by producers, Trilby is not an easy work to screen. The actual costumes are not picturesque any more than the bewhiskered and bearded countenances of the men. Nevertheless this photoplay is wonderfully good and great credit is due Mr. Tully for meticulous attention to detail. He is a man who is eager to give the public sensible and wholesome pictures. It is far ahead of most productions presented on Broadway.

In the Pantomimists' Paradise.

HOLLYWOOD, with William S. Hart, Walter Hiers, May McAvoy, Owen Moore, Baby Peggy, Nita Naldi, Mary Astor, Anna Q. Nilsson, T. Roy Barnes, Thomas Meighan, Betty Compson, Leatrice Joy, Anita Stewart, Ben Turpin, Ford Sterling and others, adapted by Thomas J. Geraghty from Frank Condon's story; special "Hollywood" music and symbolic prologue. At the Rivoli.

As a smart satire with sparkling wit "Hollywood," James Cruze's latest production, overwhelms all other screen efforts in its line. In this picture, which is to be enjoyed this week at the Rivoli, the director has accomplished that which Rupert Hughes attempted in a lumbering way in his "Souls For Sale." Mr. Cruze evidently waxed enthusiastic over Frank Condon's story, and he and those assisting him have made the most of the vehicle.

"Fatty" Arbuckle is seen for a few brief moments in this film, but his appearance will not whet public desire for his reintroduction to motion picture enthusiasts. He is at the casting director's window, which is slammed down, leaving the obese comedian with naught else to do but walk away with others for whom there is no work. However, none of the interest in this photoplay hinges on this incident, and nothing would be lost by its elimination.

One of the humorous situations is where a fast-walking, fast-talking plain woman approaches Charles Chaplin in the Hotel Hollywood, informing him that she enjoyed his last picture so much. Just as Chaplin is beaming his appreciation she concludes her remarks by calling him "Mr. Warren Kerrigan."

The story revolves around a stage-struck provincial maiden with poor relations, who decides to finance them all by going to Hollywood to act for the films. She is accompanied by her infirm and aged grandfather on her trip to the Coast. While she assiduously looks for studio work, a director, chancing to see the old man, picks him as a type needed in a big production. Luke Cosgrave plays the grandfather, Joel Whitaker, with full appreciation for the rôle.

The old man succeeds in the film world and is wanted on all sides. He takes up golf and has his name and telephone number printed on his cigarettes. Unsuccessful in her efforts to obtain work, Angela Whitaker, portrayed by Hope Brown, writes home and mentions her misgivings regarding her grandfather, who at the time has become so expert with a mashie that he is able to extinguish the electric light with a well-aimed golf ball.

Joel Whitaker's wife, daughter and a nephew, Lem Lefferts, after receiving Angela's letter hurry to Hollywood, and before they have been there very long Cecil De Mille engages the two women to appear in a production with the old man. But Angela can't find work. The nearest she comes to it is when she is asked whether she has had any experience, and on replying in the affirmative she is informed that they are looking for persons without experience. William S. Hart sees young Lefferts in a fight and picks him for his new film as a "he-two-fisted man." Lefferts becomes such a successful player that he marries the unsuccessful girl. Angela has twins, Mary and Doug, and even they are borrowed for a production, as well as the parrot. So the pretty girl, realizing that she is only a pretty girl, settles down to being content as a wife.

Quite an interesting and humorous sequence is the pictured idea of Lefferts's nightmare aboard the train bound for the motion picture Mecca. There are scores of girls dancing on a mirror, bad men going into rooms and locking the doors, men and girls in a swimming tank, and finally the belief that his head is being held under water by a jealous star.

There are also subtle touches on the other side of the fence. When Angela asks the way to the studio, a screen celebrity tells her to take her car as the chauffeur has nothing to do. Thomas Meighan is seen buying candy and toys for children, and De Mille is shown in an energetic mood. Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks emerge from their home, "Pickfair," the latter with his long hair grown for "The Thief of Bagdad." Pola Negri presides at a banquet, and Jack Holt is pictured carrying piles of letters from admirers. Ben Turpin rolls his eyeballs, J. Warren Kerrigan appears with wind-blown hair and Nita Naldi flashes her vampish optics. Will Rogers throws a lasso around a garrulous quartet of players to hurry them to the train, and Baby Peggy and Dinky Dean are seen on friendly terms. In short it is a production in which noted pantomimists are the "extras."

Other Photoplays.

"The Covered Wagon" is at the Criterion.

"Three Wise Fools" is continued for another week at the Capitol.

WHEAT AND COAL.

A clamor has risen for an extra session of Congress to come to the relief of the distressed wheat growers. Has anybody demanded similar action to prevent stopping the mining of anthracite on Aug. 31? To compare one misfortune with the other would be ridiculous. The wheat farmers are but a small fraction of the nation. No immediate misery threatens them. They have enough to eat and a roof to shelter them. Their product, important though it be, amounts to only about 7 per cent. of the total agricultural yield of the United States. Their embarrassment may be only temporary. By another year the price of wheat may go up one-half and make them all prosperous.

To cut off the supply of hard coal would be a nation-wide disaster. It would involve millions of people in fear and suffering. All classes would be caught in the calamity. The mere threat of it is enough to cause apprehension in thousands of homes. Yet no Senator rises up to declare that Congress must intervene to avert the peril. We do not hear politicians crying out against the pretensions and extreme demands of the United Mine Workers. Why not? Visibly, because there are supposed to be unnumbered votes ready to be cast by powerful labor unions against any officials or candidates for office who venture to take up the cause of the mass of the people as opposed to that of favored classes exerting their power tyrannically. In the presence of such a political menace the knees of a certain order of politicians always knock together and their hearts become like water.

Mayor HYLAN, in his grandiloquent message of congratulation to MAGNUS JOHNSON, said that the yearly wage of a farmer, estimated at $715, was an outrage when contrasted with the profits of railroads. Why did he not make the comparison with the wages of plasterers and his own beloved bricklayers in this city? Everybody knows why. Even the Minnesota farmers know. They understand that no demagogue, East or West, will cry shame upon the coal miners for getting and demanding more than the most hard-working farmer can earn.

The case now thrust upon the country is not one primarily of wages in the coal mines or of collective bargaining or working conditions, but of the threat to deprive millions of Americans of one of the chief necessaries of life. Yet before this danger those are dumb who are voluble and insistent as regards the plight of the wheat growers. For the sake of the latter they demand that Congress be summoned. But they have no plan to assure the mining of anthracite. It does not follow that a special session of Congress would be the right plan. Probably it would not be. Congress should have acted on the coal question during the last session. It knew with what difficulty and anxiety the country had struggled through the coal shortage last Winter. Yet it did nothing to prevent its recurrence. A Coal Commission was appointed by the President, but it can do nothing but inquire and report and advise. Congress would not even consider a measure to clothe the Government with a clear legal power to save the nation from the disastrous consequences of a coal strike.

One resort is still open, and the Administration should lose no time in making use of it. We mean a strong appeal to quickened public opinion. President HARDING may let it be known that he stands ready to back the Coal Commission to the limit in its efforts to insure the continuous mining of hard coal. The mere threat of a strike after the existing contract expires on Aug. 31 should be treated as a reckless public injury. If the points still in dispute between the men and the mine owners cannot be settled by conference, let them be referred to the Coal Commission, or some other form of arbitration, but meanwhile let it be insisted that coal must be mined. The Government cannot too quickly give its attention to this business or make its utterances and its leading too positive and compelling.

MR. LA FOLLETTE'S BID.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE invites the Democratic Party to pull his chestnuts out of the fire. That is about all that can be made out of the statement which he has issued to the country shortly before his descent upon Europe. He has decided that the issues in the next Presidential campaign will be domestic, and that the greatest of them will be "whether the people of the United "States are going to take their Gov"ernment back into their own hands." In his vocabulary, the "people of the United States" means the Farmer-Laborites, all the miscellaneous and discordant elements of discontent, and the vaguely called "progressives" and "radicals." He holds all these together in his own State. In Minnesota they are temporarily joined, but much more loosely. In most States which he attempts to overrun he finds some other protagonist of the "people of the United States," adverse to being swallowed. He unceremoniously crushes the ardor of Senator BROOKHART for a called session of Congress. He says, with excellent judgment, that he can't see that such a session, if it were held, would be of any practical value. True. But why step so unceremoniously on Colonel BROOKHART's feet?

Mr. LA FOLLETTE's preliminary bid is to the Democratic Party. He has long classed Mr. HARDING as a reactionary. Mr. HARDING's nomination appears sure unless he refuses. So, when Mr. LA FOLLETTE says that if the two old parties nominate candidates who are "fairly progressive" he doubts "if there will be any third-party movement," he seems to be inviting the Democrats to adopt enough of his singular program to be called "fairly progressive." He can hardly expect that the Democrats are going to try to shear the power of the Supreme Court or consent to the strangling of business by steep excess profits taxes and other taxes on "wealth," to advocate the repeal of the Esch-Cummins act or invite the favor of the farmers by illusory promises such as have brought the Republicans to grief. What the Democratic Party can do is to stick to its own historic policy of a low tariff. Half the grievances of the farmer would be alleviated by a return to that.

The Farmer-Labor Party is a contradiction in terms. It is made possible only by temporary conditions. Better farm prices would dissolve it. Mr. LA FOLLETTE is a law unto himself. He can do what he likes with his own State. But he is seldom successful in reaching over to other States. In Minnesota he seeks to assume for himself this year, as he did last year, much of the credit of a political result due mainly to economic causes. If his group holds the balance of power—or powerlessness, for it can merely prevent, not achieve—there is no evidence it holds or is likely to hold the balance of power in the country; and it is fluid, not solid. Already the farmers of Colonel BROOKHART's great corn State are recovering from the dismal frame of mind that sent him to the Senate. No doubt there are Democratic candidates for President who will coquet with the new Populism. But surely the Democratic Party has been sufficiently chastened and chastised for running after strange gods.

PEACE BY PHRASES.

The danger ever lurking in a campaign with such a slogan as "Law, Not War," is that it may deceive some unthinking people into believing that a mere utterance of this pious aspiration will bring about permanent peace. Every rational human being wants an end to war. Every one cherishes a dream that some day quarrels may be settled in accordance with the principles of law and justice instead of by a resort to force. But only too often those who are most sincerely desirous of peace are foremost in misleading people into support of vague and chimerical projects. The sincerity of many avowed pacifists is matched only by their impracticality. So, also, those who claim that the League, or the World Court, or some other similar organization, will end all war show, despite their earnestness, an unwillingness to estimate existing conditions at their true value. That the League and the Court may lessen the chances of many wars goes without saying. Herein lies their greatest promise. But no formula, no chartered organization, can by itself entirely wipe out those hatreds and jealousies which bring about wars.

The same is true of various schemes to "outlaw" war. The phrase sounds well. It embodies a hope that is well-nigh universal. But its very vagueness is its principal danger, for it takes no account of the practical problems involved. The United States Senate and every other legislative body on earth may pass resolutions that war is illegal and should stop, without succeeding in ending war. Not only are such resolutions of no practical value, but by misleading people into a belief that war can thus be ended they lull them into insensibility to approaching dangers.

Those advocates of the World Court or of the League who claim that either or both of these organizations will "end war" injure their cause by overstatement. What they really mean is that such bodies may help prevent some wars—as the League, for example, already has done. The same thing is true of conferences such as the one held at Washington a year and a half ago. All such machinery which offers the possibility of resorting to armchairs before resorting to arms deserves the utmost support. But each scheme must be considered on its merits, and not as a utopian panacea.

Peace by resolution, peace by formula, peace by piously wishing that the menace of war be removed, is a delusion. It affords an emotional outlet without achieving any practical results. Much better to support practical projects which promise to make the chances of some wars more remote. Much better to uphold the Government in its efforts, whether by conference, court, league or association of nations, to remove specific causes of war as they arise. Such support, however, should be given with open eyes, and not in the fatuous belief that by a process of wishing hard or by the utterance of an attractive catch-word the world can be made safe from all future warfare.

IRELAND IN THE LEAGUE.

The Irish Free State, in taking steps to apply for membership in the League of Nations, is primarily actuated, no doubt, by national pride. Now a self-governing country, Ireland is ready to take her place in the family of nations. It will be a good way of notifying the world of what has been wrought by the Irish people. By as good a title as that of Canada or of South Africa, the right of Ireland to sit in the Assembly of the League can today be asserted. Ireland will by joining it vindicate her new status and assume her fitting international dignity. These are the motives that plainly appeared in the debate of the Dail Eireann on the subject.

What will others think, and how will others be affected? Ireland in the League will be a sore trial to some Irish-Americans and to not a few American politicians. They will scarcely dare to allege another English plot, by which Great Britain, not content with six votes in the League, is soon to have seven. To charge that the Irish in the League would take orders from No. 10 Downing Street would be too much for American risibles. Even The Gaelic American, even Senator REED of Missouri, will find it hard to indulge in their old anti-British rages in connection with the League after Ireland is snugly ensconced in it.

The whole campaign against American participation in the League has been marked by a sad dearth of humor. The alarmed outcries of our politicians were artificial, but were always deadly dull. It will be a relief if future debates are livened up by the injection of a little of the Irish sense of humor. Already Ireland has the laugh on our solemn denouncers and renouncers of the League and all its works.

OPIUM AT LAUSANNE.

Among the numerous matters which had to be attended to at the end of the Lausanne Peace Conference, one item seems to have been overlooked. It had been intended that The Hague opium convention should be included in the peace treaty. Mr. STEPHEN G. PORTER, head of the American delegation to the opium conference which so admirably rebuked the wicked foreigners for their negligence in the matter of narcotic drug production, went to Lausanne himself and got ISMET Pasha to promise that Turkey, like the other nations, would agree to limit the production of opium to that required for "legitimate" purposes. But ISMET seems to have forgotten about it, and the allied delegates say that if they had reminded him of his promise and started another argument it might have delayed the signing of the treaty. So while India, whose iniquities have aroused so much moral indignation among our statesmen, has at least promised some sort of feeble effort to restrict production, Turkey has not. And the opium used in this country comes almost entirely from Turkey.

It will be Mr. GREW's business to add this to the other demands which we are making on the Turks in the negotiation of the separate treaty. If we believe the dispatches which represented the signature of the general treaty as due chiefly to Mr. GREW's iron hand and velvet glove, he can make ISMET sign anything he wants. He who forced the Turks to give way to Europe ought to be able to force them to give way to America as well. It is true that they didn't give way to Europe on anything of importance, nor do they show any signs of being ready to give way to America. But all patriotic citizens will believe as long as they can that ISMET Pasha trembles at America's frown. Besides, Turkey, like America, is outside the League. Turkey may be the first recruit—indeed, seems to be the only possible recruit, outside of Mexico and Russia—for the New Association of Nations which the Administration used to promise us every time HIRAM JOHNSON was distracted by the latest earthquake in California. If the Turks have any fellow-feeling, they ought to be eager to sign the opium convention. But one must fear that they don't appreciate us as they should.

Moreover, it is contrary to the traditional policy of the present Administration to exert direct pressure on a nation from which we want something. Like the reformers who try to stop horse racing by forbidding the newspapers to print racing news, the State Department prefers indirect compulsion. It would have liked to make the Turks sign the opium convention as part of the European treaty, thereby enabling us to pass the buck to Europe if they had failed to live up to it. But wicked Europe wriggled out of it, and now we must put the opium pledge into our own treaty, if we ever get one, and be ready to incur the responsibility of seeing that the Turks keep their promise. It is going to be a busy week for Mr. GREW, the Wizard of Lausanne.

CANADIAN IMMIGRATION.

That is rather a grandiose scheme which the Canadian immigration authorities are said to be discussing with representatives of the British Immigration Aid Association, the bringing to the Dominion of 1,000,000 British youths of about eighteen, unemployed or in bad financial shape on account of the restrictive rules of the trade unions. The Canadian Minister of Immigration says that his country can assimilate 400,000 immigrants in a year. In 1913 263,000 arrived. That was the peak. The war has shut off many sources and greatly reduced the number of persons with money enough to cross the water unassisted. In the twenty years before 1921 the average annual increase of population was only 170,000. To be sure, Canada is careful. In the fiscal year ended last March she refused admission to nearly 20,000 would-be immigrants.

From Jan. 1 to May 31 of this year she received nearly 40,000, but the influx is meagre considering the great opportunities which she offers, and her population of 9,000,000 or thereabout is in small proportion to an area of 3,600,000 square miles. In the Prairie Provinces alone there are some 120,000,000 acres of fertile land, unbroken by the plow. The Federal and some Provincial Governments and railroads are making strong efforts to increase the number of desirable immigrants. The immigration statutes have been modified to some extent. The Canadian and Imperial Governments signed an agreement last Spring by which Canada is to have the advantages of the Overseas Settlement plan, with an annual allowance of money and an annual quota of immigrants. The Swiss Immigration Association has agreed to pay the passage to Canada of some thousands of farm laborers; and several parties of them have already come and found employment. They are skilled agriculturists. From the Hebrides have come thousands of crofters, as fine a set of farmers and citizens as can be desired.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has a kind of Cook's system. Its representatives bring parties of immigrants from Great Britain and Northern Europe; "personally conduct" them; save them all worry; bring them right to the land; and the railway has further promoted settlement by letting the payment for the land reach over thirty-four years, the first payment not to be made until after two years. The Dominion Government has also taken over the Western Colonization Association, formerly a private project for the settlement of Canadian land near railroad routes. We have given but a most superficial glance at the intelligent, co-ordinate and selective Canadian policy of Canadian immigration. It is hoped that this year's quota of immigrants will reach 100,000. The sooner it reaches 400,000 a year, the more populous and prosperous Canada becomes, the better her neighbor to the south, which will share in her prosperity, will be pleased. But is Canada content to be chiefly an agricultural State? Must not her development be one-sided and foreign capital fail sufficiently to flow in so long as, in obedience to organized labor, she is hospitable only to domestic and agricultural laborers?

MAJESTY OF OUR LAWS.

Law, a sublime thing always, is still more sublime when it springs from the people. JEAN JACQUES ROUSSEAU, the prophet of modern democracy, would be delighted with the statutes of this nation and its component States. They are based, as he held they should be, on the general will. But the general will, it must be remembered, is not the will of the generality of the people, but the will for the generality of the people; not the opinion of all of us as to what each of us should do, but the opinion of a forward-looking person who knows he is right as to what all of us should do.

Accordingly, nearly all Americans, radical or conservative, wet or dry, have about the same opinion of the laws. We all think that certain laws are right and should be obeyed, not only by those who think they are right, but by everybody. Many think certain laws are wrong, and may be disregarded by those who don't like them. There is some difference of opinion as to which laws are right and which wrong, but the fundamental philosophy is the same.

In Ludington, Michigan, a group of reformers set out to stop dancing on Sunday. They pointed out to the prosecuting attorney that Sunday dancing is forbidden by law, which is true. Sunday newspapers, movies, soda fountains, golf and automobiling are also forbidden by law. The prosecutor announced that he would enforce the Sunday laws—all of them. Instantly the people rose in their might. The police were instructed to ignore the prosecutor's orders. Even the leaders of the law-enforcement faction objected to such a narrow legalistic view. "We just wanted the "law enforced against dancing, movies "and billiard parlors," says the President of the Swedish Methodist Ladies' Aid Society, who presumably has an automobile and perhaps even plays golf. And the Chairwoman of the Civic Committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs protests against wholesale complaints for "technical violations."

There you have it. If you violate a law you don't like, it is Bolshevism, treason and anarchy; but if I violate a law I don't like, it is only a technical violation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Lesson From the East. Dr. W. W. KEEN of Philadelphia, who now is in England, naturally has been interested in the smallpox epidemic which has disgraced several of the southern shires and is slowly spreading from Gloucester, the original centre, further and further through a largely unvaccinated population. Dr. KEEN comments on the negligence and the weak yielding to anti-vaccination imbecility which have invited this plague to England for some years past, but particularly interesting over here just now is not what he has to say on that phase of the subject, but some information in regard to the Philippines which he included in a letter to The London Times.

Prior to 1914, he writes, while the insular health bureau was under American control, with Dr. V. G. HEISER as director, some 8,000,000 vaccinations were done in seven years, and in Manila and its outlying districts smallpox was wholly eliminated. In the remoter parts of the archipelago, owing to the difficulty of preserving lymph in a hot climate when ice is unavailable, the results were not as good, but even there they appreciably diminished mortality.

In 1914 the American health staff was replaced by Filipinos. Then vaccination was badly neglected and the health reports by native officials became wholly unreliable. In 1922 General WOOD in an official statement said: "On investigation it was found that * * * vaccination consists mostly in destroying the vaccine and submitting reports." Quoting Dr. HEISER, Dr. KEEN adds:

> Quantities of vaccine virus were found in waste-paper baskets; more vaccinations were reported than could possibly be done with the amount of virus furnished, and in one province there were reported 50,000 more vaccinations than the number of the whole population.
> The result was more than 50,000 innocent people's lives were sacrificed. The unprotected people—i. e., the unvaccinated—furnished 93 per cent. of the deaths; the vaccinated only 7 per cent. Moreover, 89 per cent. of the cases were in children the majority of whom had been born since 1913 (i. e., under the new regime).

Benefits, but Not What They Want. When General WOOD, himself a physician, became Governor General, all this was changed, real vaccination was resumed on a large scale, with the inevitable result of bringing smallpox again under control and saving many thousands of lives. The bearing of these facts on the present demand by the Filipino politicians for complete and immediate independence is obvious.

Apparently the islanders do not value benefits conferred by foreigners, even though conditions, from our point of view, are vastly improved. Probably the great majority of them have no opinion, one way or the other, in regard to such matters, and endure smallpox much as they endure hot weather and torrential rains—something in the course of nature and not to be resisted.

Things He Learned in Alaska. Travelers in far countries often manage to be marvelously successful in resisting the acquisition of new knowledge, but President HARDING is not that sort. At any rate, he has returned from Alaska with largely revised opinions as to what the Federal Government should and should not do in that region, and he is frank enough to admit that he has changed his mind on several matters concerning which he had thought it definitely made up.

Conservation of natural resources is one of these matters. He no longer holds that conservation and development necessarily go together, and he has discovered that development can and sometimes does mean ruthless exploitation—getting the immediate dollar without a thought of the future.

This valuable lesson may have been taught by the President's observation of what the salmon canners of Alaska are doing—taking so many of the fish that in a few years there will be no more fish to take, so that what should be a permanent as well as a great industry soon will come to an end, just as the same industry did on the Atlantic Coast.

The President's present belief is that resources of Alaska should be developed slowly by its own permanent residents, not by capitalists and others whose only thought is to "make their pile" and get back to homes in a milder climate.

His Secret Remains Unrevealed. A man who not only can hold an important office at the age of 94, but really and actively can perform its duties, might be expected to give some valuable instruction on how they should live who would attain an old age equally green. Like most such sources of information, however, Judge JOHN R. VOORHIS, President of the New York Board of Elections, as well as Grand Sachem of the Tammany Society, cruelly disappoints this expectation.

To the eagerly inquisitive reporters who talked to the Judge on his latest of so many birthdays he conversed with amiable volubility, but in all that he said about longevity there was not a hint of his having done a thing not done by multitudes without achieving anything like his success.

He seems always to have eaten and drunk what pleased him, in moderation always, but without any regard to the laws laid down by scientific dietitians. No notable regularity has marked his habits—that is, he has been no fanatic in observing times and seasons—and political exigencies often must have kept the Judge up late o' nights, which is supposed to be bad for the health.

He said, among other things, that by avoiding debt he had escaped all worry. But there are other worries than those due to the existence of creditors, and, if common observation can be trusted, creditors suffer more from worry than do debtors.

The chances are that Judge VOORHIS has lived so long, less because of his habits than because of what he was when he started—a man whose ancestors had given him a sound constitution, whatever that may mean, with no regrettable predispositions, and that a combination of good luck and good sense has enabled him to elude the assorted infections that are around us all the time.

UNIFYING THE PORT.

The Need of Reorganizing New York's System of Freight-Handling.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As Chairman of the Port Authority I was much interested in reading your editorial headed "Port Facilities Come First."

It evidenced that you had studied and understood the fundamental principles which underlie a sound and economical reorganization of the terminal freight-handling system in this port.

It is curious that where the principle of unified terminal systems has been so well established and its advantages and economies so well proved in many if not most of the other large industrial and commercial centres of the country, and at quite a number of its ports, thus stimulating and widening competition and giving the commercial and industrial interests command of service over all lines on equal terms, nevertheless the carriers at the moment appear in opposition to the application of that principle in this largest industrial and commercial centre of the country and its most important port.

It is an old saying that "the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding fine." Economic law is irresistible. It sometimes compels action with extraordinary swiftness and sometimes men's opposition to its operations may temporarily stay its course, but usually only to be swept away afterward in an overwhelming manner by the accumulated arrested power.

Public opinion, as you have so well expressed it in your article, when it fully realizes the economics of this problem, will open the floodgates which will sweep away the opposition, and the resultant achievement is inevitable.

It may be delayed; it cannot be stopped. The result would be arrived at sooner and would be more appreciated if it came through the voluntary, broad vision of those who direct the policies of the carriers rather than as the result of the compulsion of economic law and necessity.

Your article should help in the development of that compelling public opinion which will aid in effectuating the desired result.

MEMORIAL TO MARK TWAIN.

Missouri Plans to Preserve Home in Which Humorist Was Born.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The regret felt at the recent destruction by fire of the home in which Mark Twain spent his last days should add interest to the movement being carried on by newspaper editors in Northeast Missouri to preserve the humorist's birthplace at the little town of Florida.

The owner of the house agrees to donate it, together with its quaint pioneer furnishings, and the editors, organized as the Mark Twain Memorial Park Association, are raising funds to purchase at least one hundred acres of land surrounding the house and develop it as a public park to be presented to the State or nation as a permanent memorial to the great author. Owners of the land agree to accept a price fixed by a committee of the association, and the editors state that all "those who make contributions can rest assured that more than one hundred cents' worth of real value will be obtained for every dollar that is given."

Contributions of $5 to $100 are invited, but smaller or larger amounts will be welcomed. All contributors who supply their addresses will receive acknowledgment from the association. Checks should be made payable to Omar D. Gray, Treasurer, and mailed to the Mark Twain Memorial Park Association, Moberly, Mo.

Abuse of Immigrants.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Efforts to discover and report in detail specific cases of the abuse and exploitation of immigrants are being undertaken by the advisory council which Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo has appointed to assist his inquiry. Senator Cotillo is Chairman of a joint committee authorized at the last session of the Legislature to investigate the exploitation of immigrants and to recommend remedial measures.

If readers of THE NEW YORK TIMES will refer to the council any instance of the mistreatment of immigrants with which they may be familiar they will be adding strength to this effort to bring about fairer treatment and a better feeling toward American customs and institutions. Naturally such facts as are sent to the council will be used for information and record only. As a fact-finding body, the council cannot assist in prosecutions or take any other action.

Letters containing any facts of the nature indicated should be addressed in care of the Council on Immigrant Education, 244 Madison Avenue.

Civil War Banking Firm.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your article "Street Pays Honor to George F. Baker" you state that during the Civil War the First National Bank assumed an important role along with Harvey Fisk & Sons in financing the Union. This should have read, along with Fisk & Hatch, which was the name of the firm during and for several years after the war.

THE POET OF THE TREES.

To the memory of Sergeant Joyce Kilmer, H. Q. Co. 165th Infantry. Killed in action at Bois Colas, July 30, 1918.

The trees are sad in Bois Colas
Where lies a valiant songster dead,
The breast that sang their litany
Is like the robin's, bloody red.

They chant their poet's requiem
Wherever sighs the gentlest breeze,
New glory theirs that be, as Christ,
Found death among the lonely trees.

Through all the world the woodlands weep
And lift their leafy arms to pray
That God may lay this fool of song
At Mary's feet, a rouge bouquet.

HIRAM JOHNSON'S SPEECH.

One Reader Would Keep Him in Europe, Another in the White House.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with much interest the full text of Senator Johnson's speech in THE TIMES today. The Senator has been telling us for a long time that Europe is a den of lions, and lions of a most ferocious nature, and it is surprising that he should have been so rash as to venture into that den and stay there so long.

He has returned to America alive, but fortunately infected with the lion fever, for at the first opportunity he roars his displeasure and tries to stir up our own lions. He begins by growling at our biggest ones—Harding, Hughes and Hoover.

Why did he go to Europe? Was it to fight the lions over there? No, he does not believe in such entanglements. Having become inoculated with the lion virus while on his tour, his blood burns with the lust of the king of beasts, and he challenges to mortal combat. He may become dangerous, and as we cannot well afford to risk the lives of any of our famous lions, why not ship him back to Europe "to try it on the dog" over there?

New York, July 26, 1923.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having just read Senator Hiram Johnson's speech in THE TIMES this morning, it seems to me that not only my own eyes but millions of others have been opened and extended to such an extent that it will be impossible to close them any more when it comes to anything that refers to the League of Nations or the World Court.

Both these balloons, in my opinion, he has perforated, busted, and brought to a pitiable condition of down and out! Even the subject will now be uninteresting reading for the country at large. But Hiram Johnson and his doings will be read with more interest than ever before!

Something seems to whisper in my ear that Senator Johnson has swept his path so clean and clear of all possible obstacles that may have obstructed it by his sincere and convincing Americanism that his well deserved occupancy of the White House in 1924 will be no dream! Success to him, say I!

Problem for Hiram Johnson.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A and B are two business men. A was formerly B's best customer but now owes B several thousand dollars on a deal which they went into together but on which B made a large profit, while A lost considerably. A feels that if he had a few hundreds he could pull through, put his business on its feet and not only repay B all he owes him but again buy largely of B's merchandise. He asks B for this loan. He offers him also a voice in the management of his business. What sort of business idiot is B if he refuses?

ASSAILS LAUSANNE TREATY.

Armenian Declares It Sows the Seeds of Another War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The treaty signed at Lausanne between Turkey and the Allies betrays the Armenians, the Greeks, and the other Christian and cultured peoples of Asia Minor to Turkish barbarity, sets the clock of civilization fifty years back, and sows the seeds of a war that may prove more calamitous for Europe than the last war.

Charles Sumner, in the debate relative to slavery, declared in 1854, in the United States Senate, that "Nothing can be settled which is adverse to freedom." The settlement at Lausanne is adverse not only to freedom, but also to humanity.

Professedly the Allies fought to make the world safe for democracy. But they have made it safe only for barbarism and tyranny. Before the war there were, besides Cilicia—known as Armenia Minor—six Armenian provinces—Harpoot, Van, Bitlis, Erzerum, Diarbekr and Sivas. Now, after the allied victory, the Armenians, who relatively contributed more to the success of the allied cause than any other people, are deprived of their ancient homelands and forced to seek refuge in Syria and elsewhere.

The Allies contend that they are obliged to resort to punitive methods in dealing with Germany because she is neither penitent nor has she admitted her defeat. Meanwhile, they reward Turkey, which disdains Europe, as a victor. It cannot be maintained that the Turks have suddenly reformed and become a civilized people. The war that has deteriorated even the Europeans could not have civilized the Turks.

The Allies know well that the Turks have no artisans, no merchants, no farmers to lead a civilized life and to develop the despoiled homelands of the Armenians and other Christian peoples of Asia Minor. For 600 years the Turks have produced nothing, but have destroyed everything. Obviously, it is the hope of the Europeans to fall heir to these rich and fertile lands after the Turks have completely denuded them of Armenians and Greeks. Vain hope! Armenia has survived many powerful empires, such as Assyria, Babylonia and Chaldea. She will, no doubt, continue to exist long after the drone Turks and their European allies have ceased to trouble, because on her head lies not "the curse of ruined lands."

"Contradictions" in the Bible.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with interest in yesterday's TIMES the letter signed G. H. Gladwell, on the subject of Biblical contradictions. I was brought up in the Episcopal Church and endeavor to adhere to its teachings and traditions; but when I allow my reasoning powers to get the better of my faith I fear the latter suffers.

When reading recently the beautiful and inspired chapters which tell of Jesus going up into a mountain and teaching the multitude, I could not reconcile myself to the apparent contradictions in His teachings. For instance, I find it difficult to reconcile His words, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven," with, "Take heed that ye do not give alms before men, to be seen of them; otherwise ye have no reward of your Father which is in heaven."

In speaking of prayer, Jesus says: "Use not vain repetitions as the heathen do * * * for your Father knoweth what things you have need of before you ask Him." Later we are confused by reading, "Ask and it shall be given you."

Again in the Lord's Prayer Jesus bids us to say, "Give us this day our daily bread," while in almost the same breath He admonishes us to "Take no thought, saying what shall we eat? or what shall we drink?"

Asks Aid for Wrecked Church.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Our Free Methodist Church at Tennyson, Ind., is so wrecked by a storm that we must raise and put it on a solid foundation, put a new roof on it, new doors, plaster, paper and paint it. Our members are all poor, but they are doing the best they can. There was no insurance on the church.

BROOKHART VISIONS UNION OF ALL BLOCS

Says Economic Pressure Leads Farmers, Labor, Soldiers and Mothers to Join.

SAYS CO-OPERATION IS CURE

In Speech to Minneapolis Unions He Holds the Middleman to Blame for Unrest.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 29 (Associated Press).—Inequalities of our economic system have forced the different groups, such as the farm bloc, the labor bloc, the soldiers' bloc and the mothers' bloc, to consider their own interests collectively, and these groups now are considering their problems as the business man figures his business, Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa declared at an address here today at the annual picnic of the Trades and Labor Assembly.

These groups have reached the conclusion that their interests are identical, Senator Brookhart said. They now assert that they have been kept apart and at enmity by the great combinations of wealth, "which have thrived on profits and ruled in politics by keeping these groups of common people at each other's throats." They all believe in the spirit, the practice and the progress of co-operation, and under this banner they are united today. He added:

"The question of unrest is the most engrossing in the State, national and international fields. It is said more often than anything else that we are in a great state of unrest. This is the thing most often said by the orator, the writer and the common man on the street. Civilization has reached a turning point. It is a universal prediction that great changes are impending.

"While this is true in general terms, there are few who point out any specific causes or suggest any concrete remedy. As for myself, I think there is no advantage in criticising an old system or method until a better new one is suggested. There is no progress and no advancement in tearing down the old building unless the material and workmen are at hand for the construction of a better one.

"Based upon these ideas, I have attempted to reason out the cause of this unrest and to suggest a remedy that would displace it. The old generality of the politician that he represents all the people is fiction and settles nothing. This unrest is caused by the inequalities of our economic system. These inequalities have forced the different groups like the farm bloc, the labor bloc, the soldiers' bloc and the mothers' bloc to consider their own interests collectively and each from its own standpoint.

"The laboring man has ceased to denounce the farmer as a profiteer. On the other hand, the farmer is no longer willing to fight the laboring man. Each has definitely concluded that the middleman, with his profits, waste and extravagance, is the common economic and political enemy of both. Upon this basis these great blocs have united together for economic and political action.

"I have just been in the Eastern States, and I want to bring to you the news that this condition is not local to the West. It is exactly the same in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York and Ohio.

"These great groups have not united together for any radical or destructive purpose. They have united upon a common remedy. It is not a wild and untried theory. It is the oldest, soundest, most enterprising and most successful business principle that has ever been promulgated in this world. It is as aggressive as the spirit of the Crusader, and it is as gentle as the Sermon on the Mount. It is known as economic cooperation, and was invented by twenty-three flannel weavers, the equitable pioneers of Rochdale.

"The prophets of the combination and trust system in business and of the spoils system in politics denounce this alliance of the farmers and laboring people as unholy, ill-advised and vicious. They fail to point out where the farmers would go for help when they break their alliance with labor. And they fail to point out where labor would go when it breaks its alliance with the farmers. They know that neither constitutes a majority but united are sure of a majority. If these two great elements of the common people of our country, together with their soldier members and mother members, can unite upon a common program, every dictate of common sense demands that they shall do so.

"They all believe in the spirit, the practice and the progress of co-operation, and under this banner they are united today. This is the spirit of Lincoln and of Jefferson rolled into one."

HERRICK GETS NEW HOUSE.

Paris Embassy Will Be Transferred to Left Bank of Seine.

PARIS, July 29.—The American Embassy is still looking about Paris in an endeavor to buy a home for the Ambassador with offices as provided for in a Congressional appropriation granted about six months ago. Something new is offered every week, and it is understood plans and offers enough to fill a portfolio have accumulated, but nothing really serviceable or available within the $300,000 limit has been received.

Ambassador Herrick is about to change his residence from the house owned by Prince de Broglie on the Avenue Messine to a residence on the left bank of the Seine in the Avenue de la Motte Picquet, owned by Princess de la Tour d'Auvergne.

The latter house is considered even better suited for Ambassadorial purposes than the Broglie mansion, whose owner wishes to occupy it himself, also intending to build an apartment house on the adjacent property, which likewise is his.

A Moscow architect, M. Schaechtel, and an Academician, M. Yakuloff, are said to have been instructed to design "a grandiose mausoleum" containing a Communist propaganda reading room and a "revolutionary museum."

MAKE TESTS AT SEA TO CONQUER RUST

POOR, TRAVEL HERE IN CREW

Professor Fritz Haber of the University of Berlin, who received the Nobel Prize in Chemistry in 1918, arrived yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Hansa from Hamburg, accompanied by Professors Hans Eisch, Friedrich Mathis and Walter Zisch, who are assisting him in a series of experiments. The four scientists are on the ship's articles as assistant pursers, at a nominal wage of 100,000 marks a month, or about eight cents in American currency. They are really guests of the Hamburg-American Line and will return to Germany on the Hansa Aug. 9, and make another round trip on the ship, as all the experiments are to be made at sea.

Professor Haber, who is 54 years old and speaks English, refused information concerning his experiments, and his assistants were equally uncommunicative. From other reliable sources on the Hansa it was learned that the Professor was chiefly interested in ascertaining the action of salt water on iron, steel and other metals. If some chemical substance could be discovered to stop the corrosive action of sea water on metal, it would save millions of dollars to ship owners. These are the first experiments Professor Haber has carried out at sea, and he does not wish to make an announcement until he has found something tangible. The tests may result in a great discovery, or may not amount to anything, he told friends on the ship. Captain Graalfs, the master, stopped the Hansa twice in midocean while Professor Haber tested the water at a depth of 400 yards, with special instruments lowered over the stern by light chains. The scientists worked in a laboratory fitted up on the main deck near the companionway. Passengers who watched the experiments could get no information on the subject from the scientists. Some German students aboard suggested Professor Haber was trying to discover a method for generating electricity to propel vessels from sea water and thus save fuel. The professors ridiculed the idea.

The Hansa, which docked at the foot of West Forty-sixth Street, in the Leviathan's berth, brought 212 cabin and 720 third-class passengers, mostly Germans, Austrians and Hungarians. Twenty-two cabin passengers were detained, and will go with the immigrants to Ellis Island today.

Captain Graalfs said conditions in Germany were going rapidly from bad to worse. Workmen on shore and crews on the ships were equally discontented, because they felt that they were working for paper money that would barely pay for necessities.

"When the farmer comes to Hamburg with his produce," said the Captain, "the first thing he does is to see how many marks go to an American dollar, and then he prices his eggs, milk and butter accordingly. Every one spends the paper money because it has no value for savings, and the exchange rate changes daily. When we left Hamburg the wages for laborers was 250,000 marks a day, and now I suppose it will have gone up to 500,000, or about 40 American cents. Beer will now cost 200,000 marks a glass." Captain Graalfs was pessimistic over the outlook in Europe and said he did not believe such hatred had ever existed in history as there is now in Germany against France.

Captain Graalfs did not believe there would be a revolution in Germany of any importance, as the masses were peace-loving. If trouble did arise through the depreciation of currency and high cost of living, the 100,000 soldiers in the Reichswehr would suppress it, he said. The shipyards in Hamburg had stopped construction because of lack of raw materials, he added.

Germany, he said, was flooded with vacationists from Holland, Sweden, Norway and Denmark, taking advantage of the exchange. In Hamburg, the Captain said, there were so many foreign visitors it was impossible to get a room in any good hotel unless reservation was made eight days in advance.

Professor Haber and his three assistants will sleep and have their meals on the Hansa during their stay in New York as they have no money to pay hotel charges.

Others arriving on the Hansa were H. J. Albert, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brayer, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Engel, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Frick, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Lutz, Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Mueller, Mrs. Anna Oswald, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Post, W. Weber and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wegener.

CHILD OF 13 REARED IN PIGSTY 10 YEARS

El Paso Detectives Find a Stunted Little Girl, the Alleged Victim of a Stepmother.

EL PASO, Texas, July 29.—Reared in a pigsty for ten years through the alleged malice of a stepmother, a 13-year-old girl was found asleep in the pen, located near her home here, by Detectives Ivy Fenley and Ira Cline.

The child, scarcely the size of a three-year-old baby, could answer only simple questions. She said that she had lived in the little pen as far back as she could remember, and that her food was always given to her through the bars.

Neighbors told the officers that her food consisted principally of scraps. Some of them have been taking milk to her pen. The stepmother said the child was put in the pen only to play. Mrs. Emma Webster, the county probation officer, took charge of the child.

FINDS MAJORITY FEEL WAR MUST GO

OTHER SERMONS FOR PEACE

Herbert N. Shenton Says Religion Will Lead in Settling World Problems.

Public opinion today is almost unanimous that war is a disgrace to civilization and that it must go, the Right Rev. Paul Jones, retired Bishop of Utah and Chairman of the International No More War Demonstration Committee, said yesterday morning in a sermon at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Montague and Clinton Streets, Brooklyn. Bishop Jones retired as Bishop of Utah on request during the World War because he was an avowed pacifist. He is still a member of the House of Bishops. Several clergymen preached anti-war sermons, marking the ninth anniversary of the beginning of the war.

Bishop Jones's topic was "The Blasphemy of War." "It is unnecessary in these days to use words of persuasion to show that war is a problem or an evil," he said. The Bishop asserted that "nothing could be more appropriate on this anniversary of the beginning of the World War than a consideration of the problem of war and what it involves for those who want to rid the world of that curse which has so long blighted it."

He argued that heroism, self-sacrifice and nobility, often displayed by individuals in war and the fact that the men and women found their souls in the midst of such conflicts, did not in anyway justify war.

"We find these same qualities displayed and these triumphs of the human spirit being enacted in the worst slums of our cities, and we know perfectly well that they do not justify the continuance of the slums," said the Bishop.

"From the Christian point of view there are at least three definite indictments which may be made against war; It is a denial of the Christian view of God—the ideal that He is a common Father of the men of all nations. War is a denial of the Christian view of man as a being whose personality is his highest characteristic. War is a complete repudiation of Jesus' method of love. Whatever else war may be, from the Christian point of view, it is a sin, a blasphemy—and therefore we must repudiate it."

Religion will be a leading factor in the settlement of the world's difficulties, Herbert N. Shenton, instructor in sociology at Columbia University, said last evening at the Summer session religious forum in the university gymnasium.

"It is dangerous to let our ideals advance into fields in which we are politically afraid to follow," he said. "It is futile for politics to enter the fields where religion has not prepared the way in terms of heart and mind, sympathy, good-will and enlightened understanding."

'LAW, NOT WAR' WREATH FOR UNKNOWN SOLDIER

WASHINGTON, July 29.—A wreath was placed on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery today as a part of the observance of "Law—Not War" Day, sponsored by the National Council for Prevention of War.

Allen S. Olmsted of Philadelphia, a former army officer, told those gathered at the tomb that American soldiers fought in Europe "for $1.10 a day and the promise that neither we nor any one else would ever have to do it again," but that there were "statesmen who would like to change the contract to read $2 a day and omit the last clause."

The ceremonies were part of an international demonstration in nineteen countries on the ninth anniversary of the outbreak of the World War. Those in charge here said 2,500 cities and communities in the United States participated and that hundreds of telegrams and letters were sent to President Harding at San Francisco urging definite action on the part of the United States to enter the World Court and an association of nations during the next session of Congress.

GRAFT GLAND ON HORSE.

Argentine Turfmen Try to Restore Yrigoyen, but He Dies.

BUENOS AIRES, July 29 (Associated Press).—Yrigoyen, one of the most famous race horses in Argentina, was subjected today to Voronoff's gland operation, believed to be the first operation of the kind ever performed on a horse. The gland used for this purpose was removed from another race horse, but Yrigoyen died several hours after the operation.

It is explained that the horse's death was due to an internal hemorrhage resulting from the fracture of a thigh bone caused by the horse's struggles when he was reviving from the effects of the general anaesthetic.

Yrigoyen was 13 years of age and the sire of many winners on the Argentine turf. He broke down physically about three years ago, and his owners decided in a last effort to restore his vigor to have the glandular operation performed.

RAINS EASE LACK OF WATER.

Fall in 48 Hours Replenishes Westchester County Supply.

Rains of Friday and Saturday relieved a serious shortage in the water supply of Yonkers, Mount Vernon, Peekskill and East Chester, staved off a threatened shortage in Ossining and increased New York City's Croton supply.

Yonkers stopped buying a temporary supply of water from New York City's Catskill plant after taking 2,500,000 gallons.

Despite drought in many parts of Westchester County, New York City has an abundant supply in its large reservoirs of the Croton system in that county. In the big reservoir at Cornell dam the water is only about a foot below the overfloow spillway, a seasonal high level. At this time of year the water is ordinarily two or three feet below the runaway.

GOV. SMITH ON RELIGION.

Commends Jewish Education Association's Plan for Children.

The Jewish Education Association made public yesterday a letter from Governor Smith, in which he commends the organization for its campaign to take 10,000 children from the streets this Fall and give them a schooling in the Jewish religion.

"I have noted with deep interest in your communication to me that hundreds of thousands of children, both Christian and Jewish, are growing up in this State without any religious education," the Governor wrote. "This fact must challenge the conscience of every right-minded man and woman in this State, irrespective of race or creed. No State or country can long endure which neglects to inculcate the principles of morality and religion in the minds and hearts of its young people.

"I agree with you that the vast majority of the 90 per cent. of all offenders who come before our criminal courts could have been saved if they had come under the influence of a religious education in their childhood. I fear that too many people are relying upon external and mechanical methods for the solution of humanity's problems when what they ought to do is to try to save our souls by religious and moral discipline."

BIG PICNIC COMING TO 'HOUSE OF BABIES'

Host Will Be Landlord Max Dick, Who Hasn't Raised Rent in 25 Years.

52 FAMILIES, 225 CHILDREN

Max Gives $500 Bonus for Twins, and Never Has Evicted a Tenant.

Max Dick, owner of the tenement house at 69-73 Rivington Street, notified his tenants yesterday that he was soon going to give them a big outing. He appointed Mrs. Greenfeld, Mrs. Pokolsky and Mrs. Plotkin as a committee to make the necessary arrangements.

The tenement houses fifty-two families in which there are 225 children. Throughout the east side the place is known as the "House of Babies." In the twenty-five years that Max Dick has owned the house he has not once raised the rent. In the family roll Mrs. Rabinowitz heads the list with eleven children. Issie Pokolsky, the pickle man, is next with nine. There are many young Cohens, Levys, Goldsteins, Abramsons, Rabinowitzes and Zeltners.

Max Dick arrived here penniless forty years ago from Austria. First he had a job in a sweatshop making coats, and saved money. Then he tended bar for several years and when he retired from that occupation he bought a tenement house. In 1908 he offered $500 for every pair of twins born there and $150 for the ninth child if a boy. At the same time he assured his tenants that bigger families would not mean higher rents, and he kept his word. Keen competition was the result, and many prizes were awarded.

The "House of Babies" might also be called the "House of All Trades," for there is hardly a business from pushcart peddling to manufacturing that is not represented among the fifty-two families, none of which is childless.

Max Dick has a unique record among the east side landlords, in that he never has ousted a jobless tenant for nonpayment of rent. For that and various other reasons Max Dick is known in Rivington Street as "Uncle Dick." In the meantime the "House of Babies" is looking forward to a grand holiday.

DENY GAS FIGHT IS TO CEASE

Westchester County Group to Press War on New Rates.

Denial was made yesterday by the Non-Partisan Committee, named in Westchester County to fight new gas rates, of a report that the contest directed by Samuel Untermyer before the Public Service Commission would be dropped.

The report was called "propaganda in the interest of high gas rates." It was said the report was circulated because some members of the committee were unable to attend a meeting last Wednesday on Mr. Untermyer's houseboat near Greenwich, Conn. Thomas G. Barnes, representing Ossining, explained it was inconvenient for him to go to Greenwich. Robert Barrett, representing Peekskill, was ill.

New Rochelle had already entered its protest and Corporation Counsel Van Auken is going ahead with the fight before the commission. Corporation Counsel James T. Lewis is preparing the complaint in behalf of Yonkers.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER RECEIVES

More Than 1,000 Visit Latest Acquisition of the Navy.

More than 1,000 persons inspected the aircraft carrier Langley at onchor in the North River, off Ninety-sixth Street, yesterday. The navy used a fleet of cutters to take the visitors from shore and back. On the Langley officers were assigned to pilot the visitors about the ship.

"The type of ship considered most essential to any fleet to insure control of the air," said Captain S. H. R. Doyle, Commander of the Langley, "is the aircraft carrier. The United States should build immediately at least about two 10,000-ton carriers, with as high speed as possible. It is not believed that Government funds could be more judiciously expended than for this purpose, as the most effective means of warfare is always, in the end, the most economical."

Those who went aboard seemed impressed with the 484-foot landing and taking off deck, which is 65 feet wide.

BULLETS WHIZ OVER LINKS.

Yonkers Police Fail to Find Men Recklessly Firing Rifles.

Police of Yonkers yesterday searched for, but failed to find, persons shooting recklessly from rifles along the Putnam Railroad. One shot went into a Putnam passenger train and others menaced golfers and employes at the Dunwoodie Country Club, near the tracks.

Conductor Thomas Carey reported to the police that a bullet was fired into a crowded passenger train just south of Dunwoodie station. Nobody was hurt. Charles Bush, caretaker at the country club, reported that bullets were whizzing across the grounds there, as a result of poor marksmanship of two men firing a rifle near by.

The Coroner was told that Ostrander got down on the steps of the passenger train, struck against a bridge and was swept off the car-steps and crushed to death. He leaves a widow and family. The Coroner found that his death was accidental and permitted relatives to take the body.

OBREGON DEAF TO PROTEST.

Tells American Oil Man Drilling in Federal Zones Will Continue.

MEXICO CITY, July 29.—President Obregon has replied to a telegram received from Guy Stevens, Chairman of the American Oil Producers' Association in Mexico, saying that he does not recognize the right of any private corporation to protest against the drilling of oil wells in the Federal zones. The President said that as the nation owned absolutely all rights over the Federal zones the drilling would continue.

The message from President Obregon was in reply to one from Mr. Stevens protesting against drillings carried on in the Federal zones by the Compania Petrolera Mexicana and the National Railways. He contended that no legal precept existed authorizing the granting of concessions for the exploitation of oil within the Federal zones, which, he held, constituted private property.

OLD BISMARCK LETTER DEMANDED GOOD BEER

BERLIN, July 29.—When Bismarck's beer was not exactly to his liking, the Iron Chancellor was very uphappy and was not slow to let his displeasure be known. A hitherto unpublished letter of Bismarck's to Herr Levenstein of the Berlin Tivoli brewery has just been printed by the Berlin Tageblatt, complaining of the quality of the brewery's beer.

The letter was written Nov. 5, 1851, from St. Petersburg, where Bismarck was Prussian Ambassador. Bismarck complained that Levenstein's quality of beer was not keeping up as well as that of the previous year, and urged a change in the methods of brewing. He said his beer was working in the bottles and was as muddy and as sour as English ale.

Manufacturers Choose The Cleveland Plain Dealer Alone—Because They Know Northern Ohio

IN New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and every other important manufacturing center of the United States there are 537 national advertisers who have chosen the Plain Dealer alone during the first five months of 1923. This, they claim is their greatest sales help in Cleveland and the Northern Ohio Market.

The few who are listed here are typical of the wide variety of products that are making this concentrated appeal to the needs and tastes of every type of person. Your own city is conspicuous as a leader.

They Demand Unusual Coverage

What these keen merchandisers have sought and found is what every careful merchandiser demands—the unusual coverage of a single newspaper big enough to do a 100% job. Economy is an important consideration but that comes naturally in their choice of the Plain Dealer.

From Boston to San Francisco these thrifty merchandisers have analyzed this highly responsive Northern Ohio Market. No single town, or no small group of jobbers or retailers, has determined their choice of Cleveland newspapers.

Wherever these men conducted their investigations; wherever consumer advertising was needed to support dealer distribution, the results were always the same. They have led to the choice of the Plain Dealer alone with its unusual coverage.

1,579 Advertisers Reach Same Decision

In all of 1922 there were 1,042 national advertisers who chose the Plain Dealer alone. These, together with the 537 who acted identically during the first five months of this year, make a great total of nearly 1,600 careful buyers of newspaper advertising.

The most significant thing about this universal choice of a single newspaper is that it is not limited to any one type or price of merchandise. Everything from tooth brushes to typewriters is included. Those that appeal to women are as wide in their scope as the things that interest men. For the Plain Dealer is a great family newspaper.

In fact, 91.9% of the Plain Dealer's home delivered circulation in Cleveland stays in the home all day.

More Than 50% of All National Advertising Appears in The Plain Dealer

No big national advertiser ever thinks of coming into this rich Northern Ohio Market without using the Plain Dealer. This is why this one good home newspaper alone carried more than half of all of the national advertising published by Cleveland newspapers during 1922.

The national advertiser who plans his advertising as carefully and thoughtfully as he puts quality into his merchandise can reach no other decision than to choose the Plain Dealer. During July the daily circulation of the Plain Dealer is running more than 200,000 and the distribution of the Sunday issue exceeds 230,000.

RIGID SYSTEM OF PERMITS

NO MORE MEDICINAL BEER

Prescribing of Malt Liquor Forbidden in a Law Passed During Last Session of Congress.

The author concludes today his review of conditions surrounding legitimate users of alcohol under the prohibition laws. Other phases of the permit system were described on Friday and Saturday. Tomorrow he will discuss exploits of the "highjacker."

PROHIBITION INSIDE OUT

By ROY A. HAYNES,
U. S. Prohibition Commissioner.

THERE are classes of permittees who use alcohol for the relief of suffering and disease, and the regulations regarding them vary slightly. Hospitals and sanitariums must comply with permit regulations, but, except for those treating patients for the cure of alcoholism, are not required to give bond.

Police stations and first aid stations of various kinds, in order to obtain a permit, must show that a doctor or trained nurse is in charge, and even then the use of potable liquors is not permitted.

Research workers in Federal and State offices, in colleges and private laboratories are given permits, with such restrictions as are necessary, for using alcohol in their work.

An entirely different class of legitimate users consists of those who use wine in religious rites. Many Protestant churches no longer hold to wine but use unfermented grape juice in communion services. None the less, the demand for sacramental wine is a legitimate use with which the Government must always be deeply concerned. Different as it is in conception from all other legitimate uses, it has this one thing in common with them: careful watching of the supply is constantly necessary. In the presence of the bootlegger, even the wine of the sanctuary is not safe.

Sacramental Wine Users.

Two instances are on record where church officials were convicted of diverting the holy wines entrusted to their care. Against one of these men, a California rabbi, who is also a grocer, an injunction was obtained, closing both his grocery and his residence. Because he had a large family, he was permitted to reopen under heavy bond. In Wisconsin another was found guilty in five cases of bootlegging and sentenced to serve three months in jail on each count.

Permits for sacramental wine are issued by State Prohibition Directors to ministers, priests, rabbis or other church or congregational officials. Approval by the Commissioner is not required, but strict regulations must be complied with. For churches having a hierarchical form of organization, the head of the ecclesiastical jurisdiction—ordinarily the Bishop of the diocese or a corresponding official who is at the head of a territorial association of churches—is required to approve all applications of his clergy or to designate some other person to act in his stead. In the case of churches having a congregational form of organization, the individual minister, priest, rabbi, or other person authorized by the congregation makes application direct to the Prohibition Director. No ecclesiastical approval is necessary except that the applicant must establish his identity as the representative of a church or religious congregation.

Instead of obtaining a permit to purchase wine, a minister, priest, or rabbi, may secure a permit to manufacture enough wine to supply the ritualistic needs of his congregation for one year. In that event he must operate the establishment as any other bonded winemaker does. Wine manufactured in ritualistic wineries cannot be consumed on the premises but must be tax paid and removed to the church, synagogue, or homes of the congregation under regular permit system. No such wine can be sold to any other congregation.

Wine in Jewish Homes.

The larger part of ritualistic wine is used, not in church services but in religious rites in the homes of the members. In the main, these are Jewish homes. Not all Jews, however, observe in their homes rites requiring the use of wine, and those who do not observe such rites clearly are not entitled to take wine into their homes. The responsibility, therefore, is placed on the rabbi to determine whether or not any particular family actually requires wine for use in religious rites. The largest quantity of ritualistic wine that may go into a home is ten gallons a year.

Cereal beverages, cider and vinegar can be manufactured legally only under permits issued by the Prohibition Commissioner, and under bond.

Although legal beer today contains less than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol, it is brewed exactly as intoxicating beer was brewed prior to prohibition. The excess alcohol is removed after brewing, usually in one of two ways. By one method the alcohol is conserved, by the other it is wasted. Breweries conserving their alcohol must qualify as alcohol distilleries, and storekeeper-gaugers are placed in charge of them. In breweries where the alcohol is wasted, either by going up in fumes or being diluted with water and run into the sewer, the supervision is effective but less rigid.

The cereal beverage product of these plants must be so treated that it must not contain in excess of one-half of 1 per cent. alcohol before removal for sale.

No Lawful Beer With a "Kick."

There are no breweries in the United States legally manufacturing beer containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol. There is no such thing as medicinal beer. Congress at its last session enacted a law forbidding the prescribing of malt liquors.

Cider and vinegar manufacturers must comply with practically the same permit and bond requirements imposed upon manufacturers of cereal beverages. The alcoholic content of cider to be sold and used as such may not exceed one-half of 1 per cent. Cider, therefore, must be treated with an anti-ferment agent or put up in sealed containers to prevent fermentation. Cider to be used later in the manufacture of vinegar is not limited as to its alcoholic content, but it must be made into vinegar without removal from the plant or sold under permit to vinegar manufacturers.

There is one other class of permits—those involving export and import of intoxicating liquors. Under the law, spirituous liquor may be exported for nonbeverage purposes or it may be imported if the supply in this country is not sufficient for legitimate needs. Up to this time the stock on hand has been ample for all legitimate purposes and no import permits have been issued. Many persons have sought export permits, but permits have been denied where they have not been able to show that the liquor was to be used for nonbeverage purposes. In practice the number of such permits granted is small.

The duty of the prohibition unit to safeguard the interests of all these classes of legitimate users is one involving not the prosperity of the nation alone, but the health and even the lives of the people. It is not a passing duty, nor a diminishing one. The work will become heavier rather than lighter. Alcohol is an increasingly important commodity in national life. It is constantly applied to new uses. For instance, it is within the realm of probability that the motor fuel of the future will be largely alcohol.

In considering the future of legitimate alcohol we must consider, too, the paramount question of national defense. Our military leaders tell us that the next war may be one of gases, airplanes, high explosives. To all of these alcohol is a prime essential. The nation should have at all times facilities for turning out an adequate peace-time supply, and such other facilities as can be quickly converted to the exigencies of defense.

In that light it is of little importance that a commodity which contributes to the national security happens to add to the difficulties of enforcing the prohibition law. It cannot be otherwise. A barrel of alcohol, tax-paid, costs from $250 to $300. Converted into bootleg whisky and sold at $10 a quart, it returns about $4,000. The tremendous profit attracts the thief. Occasionally it will tempt a manufacturer of little moral stamina to become a violator of the law which protects him. That we anticipate. For handling him and his fellows we are daily becoming better prepared.

Lives After Coming in Contact With Full Electric Current

Although the full current passed through his body when he came into contact with a switchboard in the plant of the Public Service Electric Company at Newark yesterday, Clarence McGee, 22 years old, is alive in the Newark City Hospital and has a chance for recovery.

At the hospital it was found that he was badly burned about the back and legs.

400,000 VISIT CONEY DESPITE BAD WEATHER

In spite of the unpromising weather almost 400,000 persons journeyed to Coney Island yesterday. The sky was overcast until late afternoon when it cleared somewhat, but the respite was short-lived. After sundown it became damp and disagreeable and a downpour appeared imminent. Despite this, until late into the evening the subways and other means of transportation were crowded with those bound for the resort.

Luna Park played havoc with traffic during the afternoon when it staged a fashion show with living models depicting styles in bathing costumes from many years ago up to the present. The spectacle took place in an alcove above the entrance to the Pit. Hundreds of persons gathered around and were joined by more and more as the styles became more and more up-to-date. By the time the latest thing in 1923 models was on exhibition the patrolmen who were trying to keep some semblance of order were almost overwhelmed.

One case of prostration was reported. Arren Schayer, of Edgemere, Queens, was overcome at West Eighth Street and the Boardwalk. He was taken to the Coney Island Hospital.

As a result of police activity on Saturday night, seventy young men were arraigned in Coney Island Court before Magistrate O'Neill. They were charged with disorderly conduct, a majority of them for taking part in crap and card games. Six were charged with being boisterous in their cells Saturday night and keeping the police reserves and prisoners awake with their shouting and singing. These received the largest fines—$15. Most of the others were fined $5 or $10 each.

Twenty-five detectives were detailed to round up automobile thieves. Many complaints have been registered recently and officials declared that the detectives will watch all outlets from the island and stop all suspicious cars during the rest of the Summer season.

3 HELD IN AUTO-GEM THEFT.

Police Recover Doctor's Car and $4,000 in Jewels.

Charged with the theft on Saturday of an automobile containing $4,000 in jewelry belonging to Dr. Alvedis H. Kaye of 609 West 137th Street, Richard Biddescomb, 22, of 371 East 137th Street, the Bronx; John Newbog, 20, of 931 Hollywood Avenue, the Bronx, and Clarence Ryan, 20, of 395 Willis Avenue, the Bronx, were admitted to bail by Magistrate Francis X. McQuade in Washington Heights Court yesterday for examination tomorrow. Bail for Biddescomb and Newbog was fixed at $5,000 each and for Ryan at $3,000.

The men were arrested in a taxicab yesterday by Sergeant William A. Loehman and Patrolman Nolan, who said they found jewelry and cocaine in the cab.

According to the police, the men admitted the theft of the car, which they took to a garage in the Bronx, where the car and jewels were recovered.

SAYS OWNERS PLAN SOFT COAL STRIKE

CHECK-OFF AGAIN ATTACKED

Bituminous Chairman Declares Lewis Cannot Deny Faults of System.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 29.—John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, said at the Hotel Ambassador today that the appearance of the bituminous operators special committee yesterday on the side of the anthracite operators in the "check-off" controversy was marked intrigue. He said that the attack upon the Miners' Union was inspired by non-union bituminous coal operators as part of a general plan to force a strike next Spring in mines of union bituminous operators. By such a shut-down the non-union interests "will have the entire soft coal market to themselves," according to Mr. Lewis.

Meanwhile the bituminous operators' special committee closed a two-day session at the Seaview Golf Club here. They made public a plan of public relief in event of an anthracite strike Sept. 1, which will be submitted to the Federal Coal Commission. The bituminous interests offered to assist in such an emergency by "flooding" New England and other anthracite-using sections with high grade soft coal as substitute, the prices to be approved by the Government.

Lewis Charges "Intrigue."

From this Mr. Lewis concluded the "intrigue" was being extended to attempt a capture of the lucrative New England hard coal trade by the bituminous men. "It should prove very interesting to the anthracite operators," he commented, "to learn that the non-union operators are already planning to steal their New England markets away from them."

John C. Brydon, Chairman of the Bituminous Operators' Special Committee, denied today that the committee was primarily non-union. Sixty per cent. of the tonnage represented on it was "union," he said. He also took exception to the miners' charge of a "$10,000,000 slush fund" and said that a full accounting of expenditures would be filed with the Federal coal commission. He issued a statement in which he said:

"At the meeting of the National Coal Association on June 20 last steps were taken to create an emergency organization of bituminous coal operators which can be called into action and placed at the service of the Government to avoid a coal shortage in times of emergency or national need. Under this organization the finest grades of bituminous coal of a kind which is used for domestic purposes in four-fifths of the United States can be poured into New England and those other districts which have been accustomed to rely upon anthracite coal, on two weeks' notice and sold there at prices which will meet the approval of the Government and public as reasonable.

"At the meeting of the bituminous miners' special committee at Atlantic City today it was decided that in the event of a strike taking place in the anthracite mines this machinery would be tendered to the service of the United States Government and that immediate steps should be taken to put the plan in course of execution.

Says There Is Plenty of Soft Coal.

"The United States Coal Commission in its recent anthracite report has already pointed out the practicability and advisability of using such substitutes as bituminous coal and coke in times of emergency. The bituminous industry has now a productive capacity available to New England and the Middle States, where anthracite is ordinarily used, amply sufficient at the present time to insure against any shortage next Winter, while at the same time continuing to take care of its customary obligations to the rest of the country."

Referring to Mr. Lewis's defense of the check-off system, he said: "In Mr. Lewis's statement he does not and can not deny that the forcible collection of union dues and assessments by the check-off is a system not used by any of the great unions of this or any other country. He does not deny that it puts into the treasury of the United Mine Workers this enormous sum (upward of $17,000,000) annually. He makes no attempt to justify the refusal to arbitrate controversies in the coal industry, whether in anthracite or bituminous fields.

"He does not and cannot deny that under the check-off there is deducted for the benefit of his organization from the monthly pay of the individual miner throughout the country sums running from $2,25 in Indiana to $43.86 in Washington. In some districts the miner pays more for his union dues and assessments under the check-off than he does for the rent of his home."

Plan to Force Strike, Says Lewis.

Mr. Lewis in his statement said:

"These non-union coal operators who are seeking the destruction of the United Mine Workers of America are now trying to provoke a strike of union miners in the soft coal fields next Spring. If they can succeed in that way in closing down the organized mines they will have the entire coal market to themselves, and they can then gouge the pblic for outrageous prices for their coal, just as they did in 1922, when they forced a strike upon the union operators of the northern bituminous fields. Once the unionized mines are closed down, these non-union coal companies can then compel the public to pay any price for the limited supply of fuel which they would produce in their non-union mines. This would make a harvest for them, in which they would pile up enormous profits.

"The bituminous operators' special committee, of which J. G. Brydon, a non-union operator of Somerset County, Pa., is Chairman, was created by and is a part of the National Coal Association of which the same Brydon is President. That committee has in charge the expenditure of the $10,000,000 slush fund which members of the National Coal Association are spending in their warfare against the miners' union. The entire machinery of the National Coal Association, therefore, is in the hands of non-union operators and everything it says or does against the United Mine Workers of America must be taken on that basis."

District No. 1 Firm for Check-Off.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 29.—Officers of District No. 1, United Mine Workers of America, upon their return from the wage conference with the anthracite coal operators at Atlantic City, declared tonight that the men would stand firm for the check-off system. "If we are ever to get it, this is the time," Secretary Enoch Williams said.

On Wednesday the officers of District No. 1 will meet in this city, when Rinaldo Cappellini will succeed W. J. Brennan as President.

BONUS FOR 6,000 WORKERS.

Yonkers Mills to Distribute $400,000 to Its Employes on Wednesday.

About 6,000 employes of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company mills in Yonkers on Wednesday will share in the distribution of a bonus of $400,000 under the company's plan of rewarding efficient and faithful services.

Alexander Smith Cochran, President of the company, inaugurated the plan of semi-annual distributions in 1911. About $4,000,000 has been paid out. Each employe with service of five years or longer receives a percentage of his total wages for the previous six months, according to length of service, the oldest employes receiving 15 per cent.

Army of Children Claim Villa's Estate; 7,000,000 Pesos in Buried Treasure Sought

MEXICO CITY, July 29 (Associated Press.)—The fight of his numerous widows and children for the estate of Francisco Villa, slain bandit chieftain, promises to become as exciting as the search for the 7,000,000 pesos which "Pancho" is popularly reported to have buried in the vicinity of Parral.

Reports from Chihuahua state that Villa had a presentiment of death several weeks before his assassination, and wrote to several of his wives, promising them shares of his estate. Thus far five wives and a small army of children have filed claims, in addition to his brother Hipolito and his sister Mariana.

The wives who have filed claims are as follows:

Esther Cardona of Chihuahua, who has two children; Paula Alamillo of Torreon, no children; Soledad R. De Villa of Canutillo, one son; Petra Espinosa of Santa Barbara, one son; and Austreberta Renteria, Canutillo, one son.

Claims also have been filed by:

A daughter, Maria, of Canutillo, mother unknown; a son by Juana Torres, who died recently in Los Angeles; a son by the late Guadalupe Coss, whose father Villa slew; a son by the late Asuncion R. De Villa, Canutillo.

More than a dozen other children in Parral and Canutillo claim the bandit chieftain as their father, alleging that their mothers were kidnapped by him and never reappeared.

Reports of the buried treasure are believed by the authorities to be without foundation.

JERSEY CAR STRIKE UP TO VOTE TONIGHT

Officials in Several Towns Complete Plans for Emergency Bus and Jitney Service.

MEN WITHDRAW SAVINGS

Last Hope Is in Arbitration Plan Once Refused by Head of Railway Company.

Votes to determine whether the employes of the Public Service Railway Company will strike at 4 o'clock Wednesday morning, will be taken tonight in Newark, Camden, New Brunswick, Elizabeth, Dunellen, Jersey City, Bridgewater, Paterson and West New York. This action was decided upon yesterday by the executive board of the New Jersey System of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, at a meeting in Newark.

The balloting will take place at 9 P. M, and at midnight, the Presidents of local unions will be instructed to urge their men to vote for a strike.

The last hope of averting the strike now seems to lie with Thomas N. McCarter, President of the railway company, who has been away since Friday. City officials have completed plans for emergency bus and jitney service which it is expected will be able to take care of 80 per cent. of the normal trolley traffic.

The employes are preparing for the struggle by cashing bonds of the company which they acquired through mutual ownership plans of the company, and by withdrawing funds from savings associations. The company has announced that no strike-breakers will be employed, but that men who do not wish to strike will be allowed to run cars.

An opportunity for a peaceful settlement is contained in a letter sent by William Wepner, Chairman of the Joint Conference Board of Trolley Unions, to Mayor Frederick C. Breidenbach of Newark, Chairman of the Mayor's meeting held here last Thursday. Mr. Wepner agrees to the plan proposed at that meeting whereby the men and the company would each appoint one arbitrator, who would then select a third arbitrator, provided the company also agrees to the plan.

Unless he has changed his mind since Thursday Mr. McCarter will not be willing to accede to the plan. He has insisted that the third member of the arbitration board must be Harry V. Osborne, Chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of New Jersey.

If the strike is called, 6,300 car and shop employes will be directly affected, and if it continues for any time, 1,000 of the clerical force of the company probably will be dispensed with.

The strike seems inevitable unless Mr. McCarter and the union officials can agree on the third member of the Arbitration Board.

ANTI-RADICAL PARLEY PLANNED IN ILLINOIS

Manufacturers Propose a Convention With Farmers to Better Their Lot.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 29.—An Anti-Radical Convention is expected to be called in Chicago at the next meeting of the Directors of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

The convention will be for manufacturers and farmers, as outlined in a letter sent by John M. Glenn, Secretary of the Manufacturers' Association, to Colonel R. D. Bowen of Paris, Texas, a cotton planter.

"It is quite natural for the farmer to rebel against the existing situation," said Mr. Glenn in his letter. "He represents about half of the purchasing power of the United States, and he is kicking because he has to put up from nine to ten bushels of wheat and sometimes eighteen bushels to match one day's labor in a factory.

"The largest element in the cost of manufactured goods is labor and the present wages are artificial and are maintained through union organizations, because, in many instances, manufacturers follow the line of least resistance and yield to the demands of organized labor.

"The national politicians, for the most part, are in a ridiculous plight in their effort to attract attention to their leadership. Such men as Senator Brookhart, the two Johnsons and La Follette are not going to fool any one very long.

"The manufacturer and farmer have a great deal in common, and now is the time for the manufacturer to do something that will aid his ally and customer. When a man gets $18 a day, or eighteen bushels of wheat, for laying 800 bricks, something is rotten in Denmark. The following shows how the farmer gets the worst of it:

"It takes 63½ dozen, or 762 eggs, to pay a plasterer for one day of eight hours' work.

"It takes 17½ bushels of corn, or a year's receipts from half an acre, to pay a bricklayer for one day.

"It takes 23 chickens, weighing three pounds each, to pay a painter for one day in New York.

"It takes 42 pounds of butter, or the output from fourteen cows, fed and milked for twenty-four hours, to pay a plumber $14 a day.

"It takes a hog weighing 175 pounds, representing eight months' feeding and care, to pay a carpenter for one day's work."

Nation's Catholics Put at 20,103,761

CHICAGO, July 29.—There are 20,103,761 Catholics in the United States, according to the Catholic Press Directory, just issued by Joseph H. Meier of Chicago. According to the directory there are 59,347 sisters and nuns; 22,545 clergymen; 17,062 churches, 212 seminaries, universities and colleges; 207 monasteries, abbeys and scholasticates; 586 convents and novitiates; 608 academies and boarding schools; 599 high schools; 559 hospitals and sanitaria and 594 charitable institutions.

I. W. W. GETS BANNER SEIZED BY DOCK MEN

Torn and Muddy, It Again Flies From Headquarters of Hoboken Branch.

SHIP BOARD MEN AT WORK

Officials Deny Knowledge of Flag Incident—Governor Silzer Gets Demand for Arrests.

Although torn and muddy, the red banner inscribed with white lettering which was ripped down on Saturday from the headquarters of the Hoboken branch of the I. W. W., at 136 River Street, Hoboken, was back in its place again yesterday. The officials in charge of the headquarters ordered all reporters out of the office and refused to discuss the matter.

It was declared by I. W. W. leaders that it was the stories printed in newspapers which "incited the display of mob spirit." It also was stated that the flag had been hanging from in front of the building for a year and would still have been there if the newspapers had not mentioned it.

The flag was ripped down by twenty young longshoremen, said to have been led by a boss leader on the piers of the Shipping Board. It was this act which gave rise to the statement that the Shipping Board officials were responsible for the acts of these men. The flag was removed from its place very quietly, not even the policemen near-by being aware of it.

It was denied yesterday by Willard F. Jackson Jr., Commander of Post 107, American Legion, Hoboken, that any of its members had any part in the removal of the flag.

From present indications the "lockout" which existed at the Shipping Board piers is at an end, as three gangs of Hoboken longshoremen went back to work at the Cosmopolitan piers. It was at these piers that most of the New York longshoremen were hired.

TRENTON, N. J., July 29.—The telegram demanding the arrest and prosecution of officers of the United States Shipping Board for alleged instigation of mob violence in the Hoboken office of the I. W. W. has been forwarded to Governor Silzer at his home in Metuchen.

It is pointed out here that the request for an investigation should be presented by the officials of Hoboken or by county authorities.

FINDS HIS IDENTITY IN JOB.

Detroit Doctor, Amnesia Victim, Discovers Himself Diagnosing Case.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., July 29.—Relating that he had been a victim of amnesia and that his memory had been restored by the performance of a hospital orderly's duties beside sick beds, Dr. James H. Anderson, the Detroit physician who disappeared mysteriously last November, has returned to his wife and family in this city in full possession of his faculties.

"My life during the first six months of my absence is a complete blank, but I have been told that I worked in stores and factories in Chicago during this time," Dr. Anderson said today.

"A little more than two months ago a strange instinct led me to secure a position as orderly in a Chicago hospital. I have no recollection of taking this job, but I do recall that one day when a nurse asked me to take the temperature of a patient, I suddenly straightened up and said: 'This man is dying.'

"The nurse laughed at me, but a moment later it was discovered that what I said was true, and in a few minutes the patient had died."

It was in making this diagnosis that Dr. Anderson discovered his professional and personal identity.

MRS. RYAN'S DEFENSE.

Her Attorney Preparing Statement on Maxwell Case.

Henry F. Wolff, attorney for Mrs. Allan A. Ryan, who told on Saturday that his client, instead of being in Paris, as had been supposed, was back in this country and would defend her name from scandal in connection with the poison pen letters that led to the indictment of George Maxwell, said yesterday that Mrs. Ryan was not yet ready to tell her story to the public. The two indictments against Maxwell were dismissed last week and the Grand Jury minutes, linking Mrs. Ryan's name with Maxwell's, were made public.

Mrs. Ryan will not make a statement herself, but will speak through him, Mr. Wolff said last night, adding that he would issue a formal statement in behalf of his client within a few days. He would make no comment on the case other than to repeat his previous assertion that Mrs. Ryan was innocent of any of the charges made in connection with the case. He said she was still in Maine, but he would not say exactly where.

Mr. Wolff repeated that when Mrs. Ryan's explanation was made she would be proved innocent of all the allegations in which her name had been mentioned.

EXPECT RUMELY TO FIGHT.

Appeal to Supreme Court—That Failing, to Harding Likely.

Special to The New York Times.

LAPORTE, Ind., July 29.—Friends of Dr. Edward A. Rumely in this city, which is the home town of the former New York publisher who, under the decision of the New York Circuit Court of Appeals, faces a prison sentence of a year and one day for alleged complicity in a plot to defraud the Government, today expressed the opinion that the fight to save him would be continued, that an immediate appeal would be taken to the United States Supreme Court and that if that were defeated, a direct appeal would be made to President Harding for a pardon.

Dr. Rumely left here for New York last week, leaving his family in this city. With his looked for return in a few days it is expected that plans will be made to continue the court fight.

REPUBLICANS FEAR LOSSES IN SENATE

DEMOCRATS FARE BETTER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The Republicans are going to have a hard struggle to retain control of the Senate. With the exception of New York, Ohio, Indiana and Missouri they find themselves with a fight on their hands. It is a fact much commented on in Washington that with the possible exception of Oklahoma, the States in which the farmer-labor protest in strongest are those in which Republican Senators will come up for re-election next year.

With the Democrats it so happens that, with three exceptions, every Democratic senatorial vacancy next year concerns a Southern State. Senators Walsh of Massachusetts, Walsh of Montana and Adams of Colorado are the only Democrats north of the Mason and Dixon line whose terms expire in 1925, and if reports to Democratic National Headquarters are reliable, each of these Senators stands much more than an even chance of succeeding himself.

The doubtful States for the Republicans in the Senatorial elections are New Jersey, Delaware, West Virginia, Illinois, Kansas, South Dakota, New Mexico, New Hampshire and Colorado. With the exception of Kansas, the seats to be contested are held by Administration Republicans, and some of the ablest men in the Republican Party privately confess that some of the Western incumbents will need to go on a diet of progressivism if they expect to be returned winners in November, 1924.

The Farmer-Labor forces, according to all the signs, will wage the hardest kind of a campaign to win the seats now occupied by Senator Sterling of South Dakota and Senator Phipps of Colorado. There are some rumblings also in Kansas and in Oregon, where the farm bloc Senators, Capper and McNary, are coming up for re-election.

Senator Capper stumped Minnesota for Senator Kellogg against Shipstead and he was willing, so it was stated by a member of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, to go into the State in the last election and urge the defeat of Magnus Johnson. He also voted for all the high tariff schedules. If Jonathan M. Davis, the present Democratic Governor of Kansas, runs against Senator Capper the Senator will face a real contest because Governor Davis is popular with the elements in Kansas similar to those which brought about the election of two Farmer-Labor Senators in Minnesota.

As for Senator McNary, one of the most popular men in Congress, he voted to seat Newberry, and, as was Capper, he was an ardent advocate of the Fordney-McCumber Tarriff law, which Western Republicans concede is in about the same class as the Esch-Cummins law as a means to lose votes among the farmers and union labor. McNary also may run against the snag of the Oregon Ku Klux, in which State the Klan has one of its strongest organizations. Washingtotn has heard that K. K. Kubli, Speaker of the Oregon House, may oppose McNary. In Oregon they call Mr. Kubli "K. K. K."

In Colorado, Senator Phipps, a standpatter of the stand-patters, certainly will draw the full fire of the Farmer-Labor forces, and Senator Sterling of South Dakota is in the same boat. Both voted to seat Newberry and both supported the new tariff law. In about the same position as Phipps and Sterling is Bursum of New Mexico.

As for Senator Alva Adams of Colorado, the Democrat appointed to serve out the term of the late Senator Nicholson, he has the support of Governor Sweet—and the Colorado Governor is one of La Follette's strongest supporters in the Far West. For this reason it is doubted that he will be opposed by the Radical-Progressives. In Montana Walsh will have the support of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, an active follower of La Follette.

In the East the battle will be a straight-out fight between Republicans and Democrats. A leading Republican Senator is authority for the statement that Senator Keyes of New Hampshire is in danger. Edge in New Jersey, Ball in Delaware, Elkins in West Virginia, are the other Eastern Republican Senators for whose seats the Democrats are already planning to contest. The same is true of McCormick in Illinois. All of these are Administration Senators.

One of the big primary fights facing the Democrats in the South will be in Tennessee, where three candidates have announced themselves for the seat now occupied by John K. Shields, one of the Democratic Senators who allied themselves with the irreconcilables in the League of Nations fight. General Lawrence N. Tyson, Associate Justice Nathan Bachman of the Tennessee Supreme Court and Representative Joseph W. Byrns are the men who will oppose Shields for the nomination.

Senator Shields, as did Reed in Missouri, will be up against the opposition of the Woodrow Wilson Democrats, but, as was the case in the Reed contest, there are many who are of the opinion that there are enough Republicans in Tennessee who will vote for Shields to pull him through.

Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma is another Senator who will probably have opposition in his own party. Owen, however, is a member of the La Follette legislative group, and as this group now is in power in Oklahoma, the opinion is general that Owen will be renominated.

Another Democratic fight may be in prospect in Arkansas. Senator Robinson comes up for re-election next year. The Arkansas Union Farmer, organ of the Farmers' Union of that State, is urging the defeat of Robinson. Former Governor George W. Donaghey is said to be one of the men who will probably oppose Robinson in the primary.

YOUTH HELD AS ROBBER.

Captured in Hallway Following Hold-Up on Street.

After a short chase which ended when he was cornered in a hallway at 71 East Second Street and arrested at the point of a revolver by Patrolman Pohel of the Fifth Street Station, James Maida, 17 years old, of 216 Christie Street, was locked up in Police Headquarters last night charged with robbery.

The police allege that Maida and a companion, who escaped, assaulted and robbed Paul Marchuck of Lynbrook, L. I., of $22, last night as he was walking near Second Street and Second Avenue. Marchuck said the men had followed him for two blocks and after beating him went through his pockets and fled.

Marchuck's cries were heard by Patrolman Pohel, who saw two men running east on Second Street and followed Maida, who ran into the hallway.

RELEASE 2,500 IN MOSCOW.

Commissions Deport 800 of Freed Prisoners to the Provinces.

MOSCOW, July 29.—Twenty-five hundred prisoners have been released from Moscow prisons this month through the efforts of special commissions appointed to investigate the severe sentences of Moscow courts and overcrowding in the prisons.

Of these released, 800 have been deported to the provinces.

Yonkers, Without an Arrest, Boasts 100% Week-End

So peaceable were residents of Yonkers over the week-end that when the Yonkers City Court was opened yesterday for its regular Sunday morning session, there was not a case to be tried. Court Clerk John Lonergan telephoned to Judge Morris L. Rosenwasser not to bother about going to court.

There was not an arrest in the city on Saturday or during the early hours of Sunday. Not even a case of intoxication developed although Superintendent William H. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League, who lives in Yonkers, has frequently complained that too much liquor was sold in the city.

There is rarely a Sunday that at least five prisoners are not arraigned in the Yonkers court and as a rule several additional summons cases are heard.

INDICATE HARDING WILL UPHOLD WOOD

Washington Officials Convinced President Will Not Heed Recall Demand of Quezon.

WEEKS FORWARDS DATA

Supporters of Governor General's Policy Say He Has Exercised Only Legal Rights.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—There is every indication that President Harding will reject the demand of the leaders of the Philippines independence faction for the recall of Major Gen. Wood as Governor General of the Philippines.

The contentions of both sides have been forwarded by Secretary Weeks to the President for consideration. The President, in the opinion of officials in close touch with the Philippines problem, will give no more satisfaction to Manuel Quezon and his adherents in their demands for the recall of General Wood than was given to their demands a year ago for the independence of the Philippines.

For the President to do otherwise, it is asserted, would be for him to punish an official for exercising his legal prerogatives and to show ingratitude to a Governor General who has been endeavoring to carry out carefully and intelligently the expressed policies of the Republican Administration toward the Philippines.

It is not expected that President Harding will express a premature opinion, as it seems likely that Quezon and his adherents will come to Washington.

Supporters of General Wood's policy assert that when Congress gave to the Filipinos a Legislature, with certain powers, it was doubtful whether they were competent to exercise those powers unassisted, and for that reason Congress gave to the Governor General almost paternal authority over the islands.

"He shall have general supervision and control," one section of the organic act states in dealing with the powers of the Governor General, "of all the departments and bureaus of the Government of the Philippines as far as is not inconsistent with this act," and another passage provides that all executive functions of government must be directly under the Governor General or within one of the executive departments under the supervision and control of the Governor.

The language of this fundamental law is apparently perfectly plain, officials here state. They assert the Philippines Legislature has consistently attempted to restrict the functions of the Governor General and is now disputing an act of his which is specifically authorized under the law.

Aside from the rehabilitation of the office of Governor General, an official stated, General Wood's administration had been marked by a variety of other constructive work. When he went to the Philippines the peso was at 16 per cent. discount. Today it is at face value. Under his supervision the Manila Railway, which is owned by the Philippines Government, last year earned 10 per cent. dividends. With the assistance of Colonel E. L. Munson, a sanitation expert of the army, General Wood has greatly improved sanitary conditions, and while in the previous administrations there had been two bad epidemics the islands under him have been absolutely free from epidemics. Great progress has also been made in road building, and modern water-supply systems have been installed in the principal cities.

Another accomplishment credited to General Wood is the restoration of confidence among American and other capitalists in the future of the islands. Under Governor Harrison, the assertion is made, there was so much talk of Philippine independence and such widespread abandonment of authority that capitalists with investments there not only refused to increase their investments, but in many cases actually withdrew their capital, with the result that vast natural resources were allowed to go undeveloped.

Petitions for the recall of Governors are not new in American experience in the Philippines. During the administration of Governor Forbes the Philippines Legislature not only asked for his recall, but for three years refused to vote an appropriation bill, with the result that the old bill was automatically in force during that period.

HUNT IN THREE STATES FOR FARMER'S SLAYER

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., July 29.—Authorities of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania have joined in a hunt for three men employed by a traveling carnival, who are believed to have been the murderers of Samuel B. Van Stone of Swartswood, N. J., a well-to-do farmer.

Van Stone was found unconscious Saturday morning on the road to Milford, Pa., on the Pennsylvania side of the line. He had a bullet wound in the forehead and was suffering also from a fractured skull and internal injuries. He died last night in Deer Park Sanitarium here.

The farmer left his New Jersey home by automobile Friday evening after a quarrel with his wife. He arrived in Port Jervis late at night and struck up a friendship with the three carnival men. When the carnival closed just before midnight he drove off with them toward Milford.

His car and $100 he had with him were missing.

Shot While Sitting in Cafe.

Another mysterious shooting was added to the record of Harlem's "Little Italy" yesterday, when Thomas Gallo, 36 years old, of 407 East 106th Street, was found suffering from a bullet wound in the left side, at 2,106 First Avenue. He told the police he did not know who shot him, but that he was wounded as he sat in the café of Carmine Liberto. It was said the bullet only glanced a rib.

URGE PUBLICITY LAW FOR GRAIN TRADING

WOULD SHOW OPEN TRADES

OPPOSE AGENTS' TRADING

Furnishing of Storage Elevators by Railroads or State or Federal Governments Advocated.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Legislation requiring the Chicago Board of Trade to make public daily the total volume of the preceding day's operations in futures and open trades in each option on each grain was included in recommendations made today by the Federal Trade Commission in the final section of its report on the methods and operations of grain exporters.

The report, in compliance with a Senate resolution, also recommended that the Chicago Board of Trade be required to permit delivery of grain on futures contracts at other important markets, under proper safeguards and equitable terms, whenever necessary to prevent a squeeze or corner at Chicago.

Another suggestion by the commission was that all brokers and commission men, or officers or large stockholders of companies doing a brokerage or commission business in futures for customers, be prohibited from speculating in grain futures for their own account. Under present conditions, it was said, abuses and risks were possible, because the same person acted as agent and as principal in trading on the exchange.

Independent Storage Elevators.

The car delivery rule and the settlement rule for defaulted futures contracts on the Board of Trade, the commission asserted, should be interpreted and applied by an impartial person or tribunal. These rules, it was explained, involved complex questions of fact and required unprejudiced judgment, while the present practice of placing decisions up to the board's President and Directors made it possible for them to be called on to decide questions affecting their own or their customers' interests.

Reiteration was made of a previous recommendation that the railroads or the State or Federal Government furnish adequate storage elevator capacity at convenient market points, especially Chicago, free from control or operation by any grain dealer, broker or commission house. This, the commission held, would remove the artificial conditions frequently developing at Chicago and would enable the grain farmer or merchant to store grain in competition with elevator merchandisers. With negotiable warehouse receipts, it was also pointed out, the famer would be aided in borrowing money to finance his crop until he was willing to sell.

Causes of Price Fluctuation.

The commission found that the decline in prices of the contract grade of wheat at Chicago from an average of about $2.85 a bushel July 17, 1920, to a fraction over a dollar Sept. 14, 1922, was due chiefly to various adverse factors in the general situation of the world market, such as large crops at home and abroad, business depression, unfavorable exchange rates and limited purchasing power and credit in foreign markets, rather than to speculation or manipulation.

"Speculators and hedgers," the report said, "are especially able to run up prices during the delivery month and, when this occurs, after their future interests are closed out, prices inevitably fall. In general, however, it appears that, although the frequent and temporary fluctuations in grain prices may be attributed largely to speculation, the relatively infrequent, but long time fluctuations may be attributed almost entierly to other causes, including actual supply and demand conditions. The heavy decline in wheat prices from July to December, 1920, occurred in a period of comparatively light futures trading."

It was questionable, the commission asserted, whether any definition to distinguish between the speculator and the gambler was susceptible to practical administrative application, and added that "it seems clear," that, if futures trading is permitted to continue, "the Federal Government should regulate it in order to prevent abuses," in view of the influence of futures quotations on cash prices and the frequency of artificial price conditions in the futures market.

The advance of about sixty cents a bushel in May, 1920, wheat futures, the report related, was due to a "natural corner," resulting largely from a New York exporter standing for delivery on future hedging contracts of about 2,000,000 bushels, which was more than could be delivered in Chicago before the end of the month. The increase of about forty cents in May, 1922, futures during January and February of that year, on the other hand, was attributed chiefly to a wave of speculative buying, and in each case prices declined suddenly and extensively after the removal of the exceptional conditions. These cases were cited as indicating that "a hedger, under certain conditions, may cause an abnormal price movement of the market quite as extensive as that of a speculator, and that there are less violent price fluctuations on the Chicago Board of Tade when it is used purely as a speculative institution than when used as a market for obtaining cash wheat."

Effects of Car Delivery Rule.

Price declines can be brought about, the commision set forth, through operation of the car delivery rule permitting delivery of grain on futures contracts in cars on track instead of in regular elevators which has been invoked only twice since its adoption in 1918. Its operation increases the deliverable supply of grain, and this, with the demurrage charges and the difficulty of insuring or borrowing money on grain delivered on track, the report said, tends to force prices to a "lower level than would be the case if delivery were made in regular elevators."

The daily trades in wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade of twelve large speculators and nine cash grain dealers who hedged their mercantile transactions between July 15, 1920, and May 31, 1922, were studied by the commission to ascertain the effect of such operations on the prices of wheat.

"While the evidence is clear," it stated, "that speculation during this period resulted, in various instances, in producing artificial price changes in the wheat futures market, the speculators whose trades were obtained pursued quite diverse buying and selling policies, although their net possession, taken as a group, indicates that they were usually on the profitable side in different turns of the market."

The commission found only one striking case of "undue influence," of futures trading on corn prices and concluded that "speculation in corn in futures seems not to have had such an extensive influence on corn prices as speculation in wheat futures had on wheat prices." This instance appeared in the Sept., 1922, option, when the prices increased from $1.22 a bushel, Sept. 25, to $1.28, Sept. 30, as the result of a large long interest. After this interest had been closed out, Oct. 1, cash corn at Chicago fell about 25 cents a bushel.

PAGEANT A FEATURE AT FAIR THIS WEEK

MODELS IN BATHING SUITS

Chorus of Broadway Production Expected to Don Garments—Heavy Buying Predicted.

The second week of the Merchandise Fair in the Grand Central Palace and in the 165th Regiment Armory will start today, with officials predicting a large increase in orders placed and with many new features promised for the entertainment program. The fair will end on Friday evening, when the style pageant of the show, "Merchandise Dramatized," will be presented at the Lexington Theatre, Lexington Avenue and Fifty-first Street.

Over the week-end many of the booths and displays were rearranged and preparations completed for the fashion promenade to be inaugurated today at the armory. This will be a colorful display of the newest designs in dresses, cloaks, suits and other apparel. It will be a "little sister" of the fashion pageant to be shown in the Lexington Theatre, according to the management.

At the Grand Central Palace a new feature to be added today will be the bathing suit show on the third floor, and plans have been made to have actresses from Broadway productions appear as models. An effort is being made to obtain the services of the entire chorus of a Broadway musical show. The bathing suits to be shown will be drawn from the 1824 line of models.

Tsze E. Pun, recently appointed Foreign Trade Commissioner for China in the United States, will pay an official visit to the show this afternoon and will be accompanied by a delegation of Chinese bankers and merchants.

Mr. Pun is in New York to study trade methods for his Government and will begin a course in merchandising with his visit today.

MORE CROSSING ACCIDENTS.

In Last Quarter of 1922 517 Were Killed and 1,710 Injured.

A report just prepared by the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture, states that accidents at grade crossings are continuing to increase, and that in the last quarter of 1922 517 persons were killed and 1,710 injured at these crossings. This was an increase of 16 fatalities and 105 injuries as compared with the same period in the preceding year. The figures, furnished by the Interstate Commerce Commission, are accompanied by a statement to the effect that similar increases in accidents have been noted during other periods of the year.

The report says that it has been suggested that the increase in these accidents is due to the increase of motor vehicles and highway traffic generally, but that this only discloses the need for additional preventive measures. In a comment on the situation the report states:

"There is only one safest way to prevent accidents where highways and railways intersect. That is by a complete separation of the grades by means of subways or viaducts. There has been agitation for legislation in a number of States to require all users of the highways to stop before crossing a railroad track. A few States have enacted such laws. The general application of such a law covering all the railroad crossings in any State leads to absurdities and unnecessary inconveniences.

"For example, one of the principal State highways leading west out of Raleigh, N. C., where such a law is in force, crosses a branch line of a railroad running into the State fair grounds. This switch track is used for only a few days each year at the time of the fair, but under the law all the traffic over one of the principal highways in the State must stop at this crossing 365 days a year."

The report says that laws like this should be regarded only as temporary expedients, because hundreds of branch line railroads carry only a small percentage of the passenger traffic now carried by the main line highway which they cross. It is pointed out that the right of way is given by the railroads to the most important traffic because this is a fundamental principle of operation which should be recognized by the State in making laws with reference to stopping traffic.

"Undoubtedly," reads the report, "trunk line railways should be given the right of way, and the highway traffic stopped, but branch line railway traffic lies in a different category entirely. Rather the infrequent trains should be stopped before crossing such highways."

But the agitation about halting traffic at all railroad crossings is accomplishing good results, the report says, and then it adds:

"The agitation is having the effect of rapidly crystallizing public sentiment against all grade crossings, and this will lead to the only right solution of the matter, that is, the separation of grades.

"In the construction of Federal-aid roads the Bureau of Public Roads has adopted the policy of eliminating grade-crossings wherever practicable, if possible by relocation, otherwise by means of an underpass or overhead crossing, and to this end an engineering investigation is made of every crossing and a great many have already been eliminated. Costly structures are required, but there is no doubt that the policy has resulted in the saving of many lives."

GERMAN PAPER IN MEXICO.

Imports Appear to Be Displacing Those From This Country.

The large gain in sales of German paper to Mexico during the first four months of this year, as compared with the past two years, according to an analysis made by Vice Consul Ernest R. Evans for the Department of Commerce, seems to have been made at the expense of American paper exporters. Whereas the United States furnished the Mexican market with 66 per cent. of its requirements in 1922, its proportion was only 51 per cent. during the first four months of the current year.

During the same period German imports increased to 39 per cent., as compared with 17 per cent. in 1922. German paper imports during the period from January to April, in fact, represented nearly 80 per cent. of the imports from the same source during the preceding twelve months. If the imports continue at this rate during the remaining eight months they will be more than twice the entire sales for 1922.

The imports of the German paper are said to be mainly of a cheap quality. This seems confirmed by the customs valuation of 13 cents per kilo during the first four months of 1923, compared with 32 cents in 1922 and 20 cents in 1909-10. Imports from the United States during 1923 and the two years previous averaged approximately 30 cents, an increase of 8 cents per kilo over 1909-10.

TRADE IN PHILIPPINES.

Dull in June, but It Is Expected to Show Up Better Later.

Trade in the Philippine Islands during June was seasonably dull. Uncertainty as to the trend of prices created some pessimism among retailers and jobbers. The better financed houses, however, according to a cable to the Department of Commerce from Trade Commissioner J. A. Fowler, remain unalarmed and are quietly awaiting a revival in trade during September or October.

The total trade of the islands declined during June about 3,000,000 pesos, exports falling from 28,685,000 pesos in May to 22,822,000 pesos. The relation of exports to imports in June remained favorable, the former exceeding the latter by 7,260,000 pesos, which, though considerably less than the 15,080,000 pesos of the month previous, is a substantial balance of trade for the month in question. Imports, however, increased, amounting to 15,562,000 pesos, compared with 13,615,000 pesos in the previous month.

Shipments of all the principal products of the islands declined, with the exception of cigars and cigarettes. Sugar exports declined from 12,871,000 pesos to 10,592,000, and the hemp from 4,704,000 pesos to 3,699,000. Leading imports, except meat, dairy products and flour, showed increases in June. The value of cotton goods imports advanced from 3,610,000 pesos to 5,014,000 pesos and iron and steel products from 761,000 pesos to 1,396,000 pesos.

Although hemp and copra prices have declined somewhat, quotations of all native products are now well above production costs. The sugar crop is shipped and mostly sold, and early indications promise a large yield from the coming crop. Conditions in Negros are reported very favorable, and in Laguana planters are optimistic. Some harm has been caused by rains in Central Luzon, though the extent of the damage is not yet known. Some large orders have been given for replacement of sugar machinery, and fertilizers are being generally purchased.

Revelation Voile
TRADE MARK
The Fabric of the Hour

Of sheer chiffon texture, it is all a-twinkle with tiny lustrous dots in contrasting color, closely simulating silk embroidery. The dots will not wear off, wash off, nor lose their bright sheen.

The wide range of color combinations includes all the shades most in demand.

Trend of Fall Business Not Yet Clearly Indicated by Action of Stocks and Commodities.

It would be a shrewd prophet, indeed, who could base definite conclusions about the future on the rather violent fluctuations which occurred in most markets during the last week. They represented, to some extent at least, the indecision and inaction of the year's dullest season; to some extent they reflected disappointments and apprehensions over the European tangle. But that the downward swing of prices, particularly on the Stock Exchange, was a part of its traditional function of indicating business trends later in the year there was no conclusive evidence. It does not follow that a Summer of dull and irregular and at times weak prices in the stock market is to be followed by an Autumn season in which the self-same condition of dullness and irregularity will rule. This is particularly true when confronted with the circumstance of moderately easy money, high car loadings, and with fair amounts of new business coming to hand. Rather, it is to be believed that the markets have possibly reached a point where they have fully discounted the seasonal decline in business, and in their pause, to "catch breath" and determine the future course, have been overtaken by professional selling of a determined and aggressive sort; selling designed to "start the ball" of liquidation rolling.

The picture presented in a review of business, industrial and financial conditions at home and abroad is a multicolored one. Its lights and its shadows are pronounced and unmistakable. It is true, no doubt, that the international situation, particularly as regards Germany, has reached the acutely critical stage; it is true, too, that such an important commodity as wheat in our own agricultural scheme is selling far below the cost of production; it is equally true that the country has produced such a flood of crude oil this year as to fully choke up the normal outlets. But, on the other hand, is to be considered the fact that the banking structure of the country has never been sounder; that our industrial system, geared up to wartime production, is operating within a ratio of approximately 80 per cent. of this newly acquired capacity; that railroad car loadings continue to exceed the "million car" figure weekly; that in only one or two isolated lines has there been the semblance of overproduction, and that, finally, but probably more important than all, is the final disappearance of all fears, expressed so universally during the early part of the year, that the country is about to enter another period of inflation.

Instead of "inflation markets" as feared, the last three months have developed a situation which in reality must be termed a "buyer's market." In almost every line, and in practically every commodity, present prices are to a very considerable extent the result of hesitation and apprehension on the part of buyers as a class. It is not too much to say that they now hold the situation in the hollow of their hands. One of the most important factors at the moment is that purchases made so hurriedly and so excitedly during the first and half of the second quarter of the year went into consumption very rapidly. Little, if any, surplus was built up at that time. It must be considered but a question of time until shelves become empty. Then, doubtless, will be felt the pressure of the ultimate consumer for what he needs from day to day.

There possibly has not been a period since the Armistice when conditions in Germany have reached such a critical stage as they now have reached. Complete collapse of the mark system of currency appears inevitable, and with it must come definite and drastic change in that country. The cables last week brought news of uprisings among the people, of hunger in this centre and that, as it became increasingly difficult for the population to acquire, with their only medium of exchange, the grotesquely inflated mark, their necessities of life. Lifting of the blockade which had cut off the Valley of the Ruhr from other parts of the country no doubt was an expedient chosen suddenly in the attempt to stave off this inevitable collapse, when the mark will no longer be accepted in Germany or elsewhere for anything of value. The world awaits with great interest details of the reactions of France, as well as of Germany, to the British proposals for a quick settlement of the problems which so beset Europe. Doubtless France will accept some of the proposals; for others she may ask more time to give them consideration. The one thing she doubtless will decline to relinquish is her actual hold on the most productive part of Germany's territory until she has received more than promises of reparations. Apparently, the element of time is of great importance in the present situation. If Germany is to be saved, even from herself, it must be accomplished immediately, whether by compromise, by further allied intervention in her affairs, or by complete capitulation by leaders in that country to the demands made of her. Hard by, in Russia, she has before her a graphic and physical example of governmental chaos.

Commodity prices, in view of the seasonal dullness and the apathic attitude of buyers, continue to show a downward trend, with only intermittent halts in the decline, which has been more or less steady for two and one-half months. Out of the 335 quotations collected by one trade authority last week there were ninety-one changes, of which fifty-nine were declines. The situation as to wheat exhibits but little improvement from week to week.

LONDON PESSIMISTIC OVER REPARATIONS

MARKETS ARE UNCERTAIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 29.—The delay in the settlement of the reparation problem and in the French and Belgian reply to British proposals to Germany has had a restricting effect on business on the Stock Exchange. There is a great deal of complaint heard from leaders of industry concerning these delays. Scarcely a day passes without reference at company meetings or other gatherings of business people to the paralyzing effect of the situation in Central Europe. All sorts of trades are affected directly or indirectly. The coal industry benefits temporarily from restricted output from the Ruhr Valley, but there is little else to put on the credit side.

An Opinion of Trade.

The latest utterances from the industrial world on this subject were those of Sir Frederick Lewis, Chairman of Furness, Withy & Co., big shipping interests, and they summarized those of other industrial authorities. Sir Frederick said that since the French occupation of the Ruhr international trade has dwindled, confidence has disappeared and, with uncertainty clouding the future, every one is working on a hand-to-mouth basis. Business speculation or the better phases of business anticipation practically do not exist, and while these political conditions continue we must reconcile ourselves to the fact that any return to prosperity and confidence is indefinitely postponed.

In the stock markets the tone has been uncertain and hesitating. Reports of the French attitude toward the British reply to Germany have been continually varying. It has been a case of "blow hot, blow cold," and the markets of all sorts have fluctuated accordingly. The market for gilt-edged stocks finished last week with a good tone, being encouraged with the idea that a continuance of poor trade will mean easy money despite the new increase in the bank rate. Any favorable development concerning reparations would probably stimulate other Stock Exchange departments, but with the holiday season now on it is to be doubted that there would be any sustained activity in business.

Anticipate Elimination of Mark.

The wild movements in the mark have ceased to exercise much influence in the City except to strengthen the opinion that a complete collapse of the German financial system is near at hand. It is remarked that French and Belgian francs have not been affected as formerly by the slump in the mark, but that exchange movements in francs have divorced themselves to a very large extent from fluctuations in the mark. When the mark rate touched 3,000,000 to the pound, transactions in marks for delivery in three months were reported at 6,000,000 to the pound, but since then the cable rate has slumped to 5,000,000 to the pound. It is considered probable here that Germany will be obliged to follow the Russian example and make the new mark equal possibly to 1,000,000 of the old. This, of course, would not be a cure for the financial situation, but would make the physical work of handling money in Germany easier.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week were £287,587,265, compared with £287,847,312 a week ago and with £277,597,451 in the first week of March, which was the lowest since the armistice.

FRENCH CROP OUTLOOK CONSIDERED PROMISING

Favorable Weather Conditions Appear to Assure Satisfactory Harvests.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 29.—Harvesting has already been finished in Southern France and is now proceeding satisfactorily in the central and northern sections. Thanks to the favorable alternation of rainfall and sunshine, the cereal crop is in very good condition and a satisfactory yield assured. Reserves from the last crop are not yet exhausted; consequently wheat prices declined upon the opening. Prices for the new crop have been named from 99 to 90 francs per 100 kilograms. They are now lower than import prices, which vary between 93 and 97 francs per 100 kilograms. Foreign offers for grain could bring further declines in French prices only if and as foreign exchanges decline considerably.

LONDON, July 29.—Imports of gold into England for the past week were £776,969, of which £661,866 came from South Africa, £38,814 from West Africa and £33,580 from the United States.

Exports for last week were £965,078, the United States taking £913,947 and India £33,480.

GERMAN REVENUE DROPS AS MARKS DEPRECIATE

Gold Loan Considered Useless Unless Taxes Are Placed on Gold Basis.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 29.—George Bernhard, a leader of public opinion in Berlin, whose opinions are widely quoted, declares that the plan for an internal gold loan is useless unless simultaneously taxes are put on a gold basis. The floating debt on July 10 was 31,041,975,000,000 marks, against 24,926,000,000,000 on June 30. The Finance Minister's report for the April to June quarter of the current financial year shows disastrous declines in real value of taxation.

Total tax receipts were 8,539,388,000,000 marks, against 48,588,000,000 in the same quarter of 1922, but while the paper mark revenue thus increased seventy-five fold, the gold value of the mark fell to about 1 two-hundredth, so that the real revenue dropped to one-third.

The main cause for the difficulty is that the Government persists in collecting taxes on old valuations and assessing indirect taxes by weight or volume. The result of the latter system is that when the mark depreciates and prices of taxed articles increase, no increase takes place in the paper mark tax receipts. In June, for instance, at the then average of exchange, the sugar tax yielded only $800, the beer tax $850, the mineral tax $35 and the salt tax $80.

LAUSANNE TREATY AIDS EUROPEAN SITUATION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 29.—The signing of the Lausanne Treaty has not had any particular effect in London, except in that it has removed one factor of uncertainty from the general situation. Turkish bonds quoted here have weakened in the last few days, after the signing of the treaty. One point not unconnected with this settlement is the presence in London at the invitation of the League of Nations Council of the Governor of the National Bank of Greece for the purpose of discussing the projected Greek refugee loan.

The League of Nations recommends a loan up to £6,000,000, of which £1,000,000 would be subscribed by Greek banks with the balance to be raised in London, New York or elsewhere. The security would be represented in the surplus of Greek State revenues already under control of the International Financial Commission. The estimated surplus of revenue for the current year under the new tax schedules amounts to 600,000,000 to 650,000,000 drachmas, equivalent to £2,000,000 to £2,500,000 at the present rate of exchange.

AUSTRIA REDUCES DEFICIT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 29.—The Austrian outlook continues good. Austria's achievement in the second half of 1923 must be to further reduce the deficit in State finances. The monthly deficit, which in October, 1922, was 38,000,000 gold crowns, was reduced in the first half of 1923 to 23,500,000 gold crowns. According to the plan now in operation, the monthly deficit must be further reduced to 13,000,000 crowns before the end of the year. Austria's imports for the first half of 1923 were 702,700,000 gold crowns and exports 425,000,000. The import surplus is 25,500,000 gold crowns less than in the corresponding half of 1922.

BERLIN, July 29.—The customs gold surcharge is 5,219,900 per cent. The price rise in Germany for July thus far is the fastest on record. The cost of living index for July, 1923, is 39,336, as compared with 11,785 on the 1st of July. The official wholesale index number for July 24 was 79,462, having advanced 38 per cent. in one week. Ruhr standard coal has been raised to 2,083,000 marks per metric ton; hematite pig iron to 6,900,000 marks, ingots to 7,630,000 and bars to 10,995,000.

BERLIN, July 29.—Comment in business circles on Premier Baldwin's Glasgow speech has been very pessimistic. His statement that England alone has not the power to make settlement of the reparations problem is construed as foreshadowing failure and reports from Paris appear to confirm this view. At best, the current French-Belgian replies to England are considered as preliminaries to future long discussions, as it is not believed England will deal independently with Germany except as a last recourse, and from such independent negotiations no alleviation of the Ruhr situation is anticipated.

"Disaster" Widely Predicted.

Meanwhile politicians and the press in Berlin reiterate predictions of disaster, and although these, as usual, are exaggerated, the position is undoubtedly worse than at any time since 1919. There is considerable prospect of further local price and food riots. Against this stands the fact that the mass of moderate socialistic workingmen are kept well in hand, leaders realizing that an upset of the central or local governments would only aggravate the situation.

The currency famine continues, but will probably cease in a few days. The fresh decline in exchange has increased enormously the demand for bank notes of large denominations, and the Reichsbank, as in February, got hopelessly caught, having filled its vaults uselessly with aluminum coins of 200 and 500-mark denominations, which have no buying power, while the biggest note obtainable in private banks in the last few days is for 20,000 marks, worth under 3 cents.

The Reichsbank in the next few days will issue million, five-million and ten-million denomination notes. State finances and currency are undoubtedly in a state of dissolution. The Reichsbank statement of July 14 shows an increase of 2,460,000,000,000 in commercial discounts, of 8,063,000,000,000 in Treasury bill discounts and 5,249,000,000,000 in note circulation. But the next two statements will probably leave this record far behind.

Will Ship No More Gold to U. S.

Reichsbank officials inform me that no further gold shipments to America now are contemplated. The Ministry of Industry has restored the right to trade in exchange and in dollar Treasury bills for future delivery and has also issued a decree permitting the use of dollar and other currencies in home payments for imported goods.

The Cabinet is about to summon the Reichstag before the end of the holidays for new financial reform features, of which the most prominent will be increased property and succession taxes on a "fixed value" basis, increased export duties and increases in the quarterly advance of income tax payments. Negotiations concerning the Federal gold loan have not been concluded. The loan will be on a gold basis, but will be subscribable and redeemable in paper marks, which will be calculated at their current gold value, so that in principle the loan will resemble those in rye, coal, &c. It is expected that the total will aggregate 25,000,000 gold marks in bonds from 8,000 to 40,000 mark denominations. A second similar loan will be immediately issued if the first succeeds.

London Doubts That It Will Operate in Restricting Shipments to Her.

LONDON, July 29.—The arrangement to go into effect next month by which new gold produced in South Africa may be shipped direct to any place in the world instead of first being sent to London is not expected to have much effect or to effect imports of gold into America. It probably will be found that the bulk of African gold will still be sent to London and realized on and settled for here, as practically all the gold which comes to London is reexported, owing to the premium of gold over the paper pound.

Interest payable at the office of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., in Chicago and New York, February 1 and August 1 without deduction for the Normal Federal Income Tax now or hereafter deductible at the source, not in excess of 2%. Redeemable with accrued interest on and from February 1, 1928 to February 1, 1933 at 105; on and from February 1, 1933 to February 1, 1938 at 104; on and from February 1, 1938 to February 1, 1943 at 103; on and from February 1, 1943 to February 1, 1945 at 102; on and from February 1, 1945 to February 1, 1947 at 101; on and after February 1, 1947 at par. The Company agrees to reimburse the holders of the Series A Bonds if requested within sixty days after payment for the Pennsylvania 4 Mills and Maryland 4½ Mills Taxes, and for the Connecticut and District of Columbia Personal Property Taxes not exceeding 4 Mills per $1.00 per annum and for the Massachusetts Income Tax on the interest not exceeding 6% of such interest per annum. Issuance of these Bonds has been authorized by the Public Service Commission of Indiana.

For detailed information regarding these Bonds, attention is directed to a letter of Mr. Harry Reid, President of the Company, from which the following is summarized:

Service Rendered—The Company serves directly or indirectly 103 Indiana communities with one or more classes of public utility service and operates an interurban line connecting Indianapolis and Louisville. Over 73% of the Company's net income, for the twelve months ended April 30, 1923, was derived from electric, gas and miscellaneous sources other than transportation.

Territory—The territory served is well diversified, including many thriving industrial cities, excellent agricultural lands, and the extensive Indiana Limestone Industry centering about Bedford and Bloomington. The combined population of the communities served is over 220,000.

Security—The Bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a mortgage covering as a direct lien all fixed property now owned or hereafter acquired by the Company. The Mortgage will be a first mortgage on electric, gas and water properties, valued by examining engineers at an amount largely in excess of all bonds of this issue to be presently outstanding.

Earnings—Net income for the twelve months ended April 30, 1923, were $1,414,059.06; annual interest requirements on the total mortgage debt to be outstanding $648,665.

Management—The outstanding Common Stock of the Company is owned or controlled by the Middle West Utilities Company, thus bringing the management under the direction of Mr. Samuel Insull and associates, men who have been notably successful in the development and operation of public utility properties.

These Bonds are offered for delivery when, as, and if issued and received by us, and subject to approval of counsel. It is expected that Definitive Bonds will be ready for delivery on or about August 15, 1923. All statements herein are official and are based on information which we regard as reliable, and while we do not guarantee them, we ourselves have relied upon them in the purchase of this security.

ACTIVITY IN PARIS IS GREATLY REDUCED

Uncertainty of Franco-British Relations Brings Irregularity in "Account Dealings."

PROGRESS IN REBUILDING

Reconstruction Work in Devastated Areas Draws Population Back to Former Homes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 29.—The uncertainty of the Franco-British relations has reduced activity in the financial markets extremely. Some of this depression, of course, is seasonal. This concerns only dealings for account, as cash dealings remain very active and purchases contributed to the regular progress of quotations of important French stocks. Money is abundant as shown by the low interest rate for long-term funds. Another evidence of this is the expansion of subscriptions to bonds of the National Defense, which have enabled the Government to reduce its debt toward the Bank of France to 23,000,000,000 at the end of June. Circulation of the Bank of France notes has been reduced under 37,000,000,000.

Details of Reconstruction.

The most recent official information on reconstruction work executed by France in the devastated regions give the following details: At the time of the armistice, 3,310,000 hectares of soil were completely unfit for cultivation. By June 30, 1923, 3,150,000 were again cultivated. Surface ground abandoned on account of the war has now been reduced to 58,000 hectares. A total of 742,000 houses were destroyed by the war. By June 30, 590,000 were rebuilt. Out of 22,900 factories destroyed, 20,000 are now actually ready for work. The number of people living in these regions was only 2,100,000 at the time of the armistice. Today the population is approximately 4,200,000, being only approximately 400,000 less than in 1914. The amount of damage to property has been estimated at 100,000,000,000 francs, of which 85,000,000,000 are due to private individuals. Up to June 30, 53,000,000,000 have been paid, of which 47,000,000,000 have been represented by indemnities for damages. Taking into consideration the sums paid in indemnities for damages to individuals and the interest on sums previously advanced, France has advanced more than 110,000,000,000 francs for Germany. A total of 70,000,000,000 francs are still to be expended to complete reparations.

French public opinion greeted with relief the signature of the Lausanne Treaty, although this treaty sacrifices the moral interest of France in the Near East and the material interest of French creditors in Turkey. Settlement of the Turkish debt and resumption of the service of interest on the basis of previous conventions has been steadfastly refused by the Turkish delegation. Owners of stocks and bonds of the Turkish Government will therefore have to negotiate directly with Angora and it is doubtful if they will obtain from Turkey any respect on her engagements on points where the Allies failed.

French Railroad Receipts.

Gross receipts of the seven main French railroad companies whose financial organization amounted to 3,370,000,000 francs during the first six months of 1923 showed an increase of 169,000,000 francs over the same period of 1922. However, after the occupation of the Ruhr, traffic decreased somewhat in the industrial regions served by some of these roads and the increase of receipts of at least two of the companies has been rather small. On the other hand, progress has been very good for other companies, especially for the Paris, Lyons, Orleans and Midi companies. However, the obligation of the railroad companies to buy a greater part of their combustibles in England on account of the decrease in shipments of German coal and the recent strike in the Sarre Mines will no doubt cause supplementary expenses. Under these conditions the deficit which was 1,162,000,000 francs for 1922, will not be reduced to 890,000,000 francs as was hoped for in the present year, but will even probably reach about 1,600,000,000 francs.

The situation of German industry in the Ruhr Valley becomes worse every day on account of the policy of passive resistance and the workers' strike, due to the decline in the mark's value and the higher cost of living. The output of the metal industry is getting less and less. Transportation under the French and Belgian administration is improving.

DOUBT IMPROVEMENT IN BRITISH TRADE

Gain in First Half of Year Due to Coal Exports Because of Ruhr Tangle.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 29.—Although exports of British products and manufactures for the first half of the year showed an increase of £30,917,222, there is little disposition in the city to take these figures as indicating improving trade. Trade showed improvement in the earlier months of the year, it is true, but the recovery has since been checked. Of the total increase, moreover, £19,567,667 was in exports of coal, which trade had been helped by the situation in the Ruhr, a situation which no doubt is adversely affecting other exports.

In the exports of cotton, which figure in the trade reports for £89,404,868, there was a decrease for the six months of £1,022,495.

The exports of iron and steel manufactures show an increase of £6,689,907, but under the heading of vehicles, including new ships, locomotives, &c., a decline of £10,684,907 was to be noted. The value of new ships delivered was £8,721,508, against £18,016,403 in the corresponding period last year. Locomotive exports totaled £1,571,521, against £2,902,504; railway wagons £1,521,653, last year, as compared with £2,032,145 last year.

Of the total increase of £51,594,401 shown in the six months' imports, £20,457,250 was in food, drink and tobacco, £16,206,910 in raw materials, £12,953,179 in manufactures. In raw materials wood and timber increased £4,197,296, and oil seeds £4,789,358, but raw cotton decreased £2,235,852. There was a sharp drop in prices generally in May, but this is not likely to be reflected in the value of exports until the July or August statements.

STEEL MILLS SLOW AS ORDERS DROP

BOILER TUBE IN DEMAND

Well Informed Say Tin Plate Requirements Will Absorb Possible Output.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—Business now being placed in finished steel products is of relatively small volume, but it is helping to sustain the market, because many of the mills do not need additional business at this time and the orders are going to the books that have the most room. In a general way the production of steel is going along at a slightly reduced rate, but the output in the last part of the month is exceeding that of the first two weeks, when the national holiday broke into the operations at the mills. The average rate of ingot production in July may easily be below 40,000,000 tons a year, which is a heavy decrease from that of the recent peak of 50,000,000 tons a year.

All classes of tubular goods, or at least the more important classes, are being taken very well. Deliveries are chiefly on old orders and contracts, though there is some new buying. In the case of oil country goods the pipe mills havs seen practically no effect, for the talk there has been for several months past of the decline in drilling that would follow the great reduction in oil prices and the increase in stocks. Drilling, apparently, is continuing much the same as formerly. In a number of fields the structure is such that holders of leases feel that the oil is going to be removed; if they do not do it, their competitors will, hence they continue drilling.

Pressure for merchant pipe deliveries is still felt, many customers of mills being apparently ready to take heavier deliveries than can be made. Distribution and consumption appear to be as heavy as ever, but there is no longer a distribution to build up stocks, as there was early in the year. At that time the pipe mills were unable to ship anything like the quantity of pipe called for. If they had met all the calls, the distributers would have been loaded and would now be liquidating. Boiler tube demand is reported to be quite fair, chiefly against old orders and contracts. Some of the pipe mills are closed entirely, so that the July production will be much below that of June. Prices of tubular goods are firm all along the line at regular prices. No price shading is reported, nor is any at all likely in the near future.

There is a little buying in the sheet market at present, but the daily turnover is quite below what would be the average for a period of low industrial activity, because, on the one hand, buyers are in very conservative mood and, on the other hand, they are fairly well supplied by deliveries on old orders and contracts. The general testimony in the trade is that deliveries are being taken very well. Production of sheets is running considerably below the average of the earlier months of the year. The leading interest's production is restricted by labor shortage, chiefly of skilled men at the hot mills, although last week showed some recovery in output from the average of the two weeks preceding. As to the independents, many of them were closed in the first fortnight of July, and this makes it that no rate of production can be mentioned as representing their average at this time. This week the independents are running fairly well, but this may be largely under the influence of banked-up requirements, so that the week's operation is no criterion of what may obtain a couple of weeks hence.

Sheet Consumption Heavy.

Consumption of sheets continues heavy. There is probably some decrease as compared with rates a couple of months ago, but it is fair to call the present rate of consumption decidedly large. The largest single consuming line, the automobile industry, is running quite well, and shows scarcely any seasonal decrease in manufacturing activity. Production of passenger automobiles is reported at 336,317 in June, as against 350,180 in May and 344,474 in April, so that with these two exceptions June was the highest month's production on record. Schedules call for heavy operation this month and next, not being made up beyond that time, but both the automobile and parts makers are very conservative about inventories and about buying ahead. The sheet market remains firm at 3.00c for blue annealed, 3.85c for black and 5.00c for galvanized.

The prediction has been made in a well-informed quarter that there will be tin plate requirements during the remainder of this year to cover all the output possible. This is predicated, of course, not on production at capacity but on production at the rate that seems likely to be possible on the basis of the rate the mills are now able to maintain. On an operating basis the tin plate industry is running at between 75 and 80 per cent. The estimate refers to turns worked compared with the total number of mills working full time. The actual tonnage output is probably somewhat less than normal in proportion to the operating rate, as hot weather tends to cut down outputs per mill per turn.

There continues to be heavy pressure upon mills for deliveries against old orders, this coming particularly from the makers of packers' cans, though there is also pressure from some oil interests, due to oil exports being heavier than was anticipated. There is a possibility that the can makers are over-estimating their requirements. If they are not, it is altogether probable that there will be a distinct shortage in tin plate next month. The market is quotably firm at $5.50 per base box for 100-pound cokes.

Buying of a conservative character in merchant steel bars, as well as other forms of finished steel, prevails in the bar market. The aggregate tonnage closed is fairly large each week, made up of numerous small lots, usually from 50 to 200 tons at a time. Some of the independent steel companies report a slight reluctance on the part of customers in furnishing specifications, which were due July 20. The steel companies are urging these specifications now, so that rolling schedules for August can be lined up. The price of 2.40c, Pittsburgh base, is firm, although preferential customers such as car builders, because of the large tonnage they absorb, obtain a preferential price of 2.35c. This explains the rumors being circulated to the effect that the market is being shaded.

Iron Bar Sales.

Refined iron bars are meeting with a ready sale to different lines of consumption, and operations are practically full, although hot weather interferes somewhat with production. The price range is unchanged at 3.25c to 5.00c, base Pittsburgh.

The majority of plate mills cannot make deliveries before late August or early September, and as a result numerous orders for plates offered to them by tank, car and barge fabricaters for late July or early August delivery have not been placed. These tonnages vary in size, usually 1,000 to 3,000 tons at a time. The Youngstown Boiler and Tank Works Company is understood to have closed with Youngstown steel makers for the large quantity of plates involved in the tanks recently ordered from it. Some further tank business remains unplaced because oil companies cannot wait long enough for plates to be rolled and fabricated. The open market price is firm at 2.50c, base Pittsburgh.

Semi-finished steel is moving very sluggishly, both as to new purchases and as to requisitions against contracts. Consumers, chiefly sheet and tin mills, contracted for the current quarter as fully as they cared to, mills being free in assuming obligations, but specifications are not altogether in keeping. The finishing mills have been running very poorly, while in addition they had some stocks, and these they are anxious to liquidate. As to new inquiry for sheet bars, billets or slabs, there is practically none. Occasionally a transaction may occur between associated interests, but really open market buying is practically lacking. The market is considered firm at $42.50, Pittsburgh or Youngstown, freight equalized, for slabs, billets and sheet bars, but if it is firm, it is simply because producers consider it very much to their interests not to shade the price. Shading would disturb the market, and there is no order likely to be obtainable that would offset this.

BERLIN ON NEW TREATY.

German Newspapers Class It as Turkish-British Victory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 29.—Berlin newspapers describe the Near East settlement as a Turkish and British success and a French and Russian failure. England as the chief naval power, say most writers, will dominate the neutralized straits, while France, which holds 72 per cent. of the Turkish debt, will suffer most from the arrangement that Turkey can pay in paper francs and deal privately henceforth with bondholders.

Professor Hoentsch, a member of the Reichstag, who is an expert on Turkish affairs, says that Soviet Russia which at the beginning of negotiations was shoulder to shoulder with Turkey, now has been thrown completely into the background, but he adds that some time later Russia will resume her old policies, with England again in the rôle of Turkish protector.

Iowa—the Nation's $8,000,000,000 Farm

Iowa's fertile soil gives her first rank in the total value of farm lands. Her $890,000,000 crop is second only to Texas. Iowa leads in cereals, including the largest corn and oat crops; she leads also in live stock, with her horses, swine and poultry first and her cattle second. Her mines produce $18,000,000 and her forests yield $17,000,000 annually. In addition, the State's manufacturing output exceeds $740,000,000.

Iowa's prosperity and varied interests necessitate extensive banking facilities. In matters demanding the broad services of a metropolitan bank, the Bank of the Manhattan Company has served both her banks and her industries with distinction.

NOT every business man, even now, knows how the modern bank welds its experience and knowledge into a helpful service of information and counsel.

In the Bank of the Manhattan Company this has been developed to a high degree. The experience of 124 years in American banking, reinforced by modern facilities and up-to-date knowledge of present conditions is brought to bear on the problems of today.

Such a banking service can help your business. Let the Bank's officers discuss the matter with you.

Why Investors Go Wrong

They lack information.
They haven't the means to investigate for themselves.
They accept the judgment of interested persons.

BANK OF CUBA PLANS TO PAY ALL CLAIMS

ANOTHER PAYS INTEREST

State Department Report Shows Depositors Have Been Fully Protected.

The defunct Bank of Cuba in New York will shortly declare a dividend of 15 per cent. under direction of the New York State Banking Department, according to the announcement of George V. McLaughlin, Superintendent, thus bringing payments on claims to an even 100 per cent. In addition, it was stated the State Banking Department expects that enough assets will be left over to permit of a further declaration of interest on these claims, in which case depositors and other creditors will receive not only dollar for dollar on their claims, but also interest on the same.

In the case of Imbrie & Co., private bankers, who failed several years ago, the State Banking Department reports that checks representing 50 per cent. of the claims against this institution together with interest have been mailed. This payment brings the total return to creditors who at the time of the failure feared the loss of a great part of their money up to 100 per cent. plus interest.

As a result of these payments—including the one to be made on the account of the Bank of Cuba in New York in about two weeks—the records of the Banking Department show that no depositor has lost a dollar through the failure of a corporate State bank or trust company under the supervision of this department since 1912.

"After enactment of the private banking statute in the year 1914, bringing certain private banks under the supervision of the New York State Banking Department," said Superintendent McLaughlin, "a number of insolvent private bankers were petitioned in bankruptcy and liquidated under the jurisdiction of the United States Bankruptcy Court.

"Of the private bankers that came under the supervision as a result of the enactment of this statute, only one has failed, and this a very small one, in the year 1917. The insolvent condition of this private banker was due to the methods he was permitted to pursue prior to State supervision. His affairs were liquidated pursuant to the bankruptcy law.

"This remarkable record of no losses to depositors for this long period of time can be best appreciated when compared with the failures of financial firms and those engaged in other branches of business during these same years. During these years there was a period of deflation and the occurrence of quick and wide changes in the price levels of all kinds of securities and commodities. At the same time the supervised banking institutions of the State were demonstrating their stability in this manner; they were recording the greatest growth in resources in the history of the state.

"The public should understand that the firms doing a general banking and security business and the steamship agents doing a money transmission business which have failed recently were without the scope of the provisions of the banking law and were, therefore, not under the supervision of the New York State Banking Department."

SHIP OPERATORS PROPOSE A PLAN

Will Submit a Substitute for the Direct Government System Now Under Consideration.

The United States Ship Operators' Association, embracing forty companies and operating at the present time 350 freight vessels belonging to the Government, has prepared a plan which will be submitted to the United States Shipping Board as a substitute for the proposed direct Government operation now under consideration at Washington.

A summary of the plan and the reasons for it, released for publication today by Charles H. Potter, President of the Ship Operators' Association, states that after careful study of the direct Government operation plan it believes such operation would be "a disastrous error," resulting in inefficient and costly service besides erecting a barrier to the permanent maintenance of an American merchant marine. Other objections offered are that the Government's plan would destroy co-operation between the Shipping Board and American steamship interests, the latter would be forced into "a most unfortunate competition with the Board," and the ultimate transfer to private hands of the Board's vessels and services, "the goal to which all have been working," would be rendered hopeless.

The plan provides for the operation of the vessels on selected routes by agents on behalf of the Shipping Board. The agents shall agree to maintain the service for a specified number of years, subject to certain rights of cancellation on both sides. Taking the results of operations over an agreed period of time as a standard, the agents "shall share with the Board profits or losses of operations as compared with the standard." Further, a portion of the profits is to be set aside as a purchase and building fund, and the terms of the operation are to be such as to enable the Board to reduce its overhead expenses materially.

The brief containing the ship operators' objections to the Government plan is the result of a meeting of the association here last week at which the alternative plan was agreed upon, but not then made public.

The Association is now operating its Government vessels under the agency agreement known as MO—4 (managing and operating agreement No. 4) under which the operator mans, equips and supplies the vessel as agent for the Fleet Corporation, makes running repairs and replacements, and also operates the vessel as the Fleet Corporation directs, closing freight contracts, issuing bills of lading and collecting moneys due to the corporation. For these services the operator receives commissions up to 5 per cent. on outward voyages and 2½ per cent. on inward voyages, plus a managing agent's fee. The agent is also under obligation to furnish satisfactory bond to the Fleet Corporation for faithful performance.

In defense of this system and opposed to the Government plan the Association points out that operation has grown in efficiency and that substantial benefits have resulted to the Board in that "it has been to the interest of the operators to build up and maintain the existing routes, to throw their own connections into the business and to discourage any competition or destructive influences."

WHEAT OUTLOOK DARK.

Stimulate Demand and Restrict Output, Is Trust Company's Advice.

"With wheat selling in Chicago at around a dollar a bushel, and the farm prices in Kansas and Nebraska about 80 cents, it appears that without a material advance in price a considerable part of this year's wheat crop may be sold for less than it cost to grow it," according to The Guaranty Survey, published today by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York. The publication analyzes various proposals advanced as a corrective of the situation, but summarizes all of them, ranging from proposed purchase by the Government, price-fixing plans and storage by farmers as inadequate. The proper solution, in the opinion of the Survey, is to stimulate demand and to restrict production.

"A basic readjustment either of relative demand or of production is called for," according to the publication. "Anything that may be done to accelerate the processes of general economic recovery in Europe, with consequent revival of demand there for foreign foodstuffs, would afford a measure of durable relief for wheat growers in this country. It appears, also, that the farmer's difficulties have been accentuated by tariff rates which are able to raise the prices of many articles consumed by him, but which are powerless to raise the prices of his products that are determined in world markets.

"But not all the price disparities from which he suffers have their origin in the unequal effects of the tariff rates. Whether with the existing of lower tariff rates, or with no protective duties of any sort, in any event the demand for American manufactures at the present time would be more nearly in conformity with supplies than would be the demand for wheat and other foodstuffs. The relation between the movements of wheat prices and the prices of commodities in general which obtained prior to 1914 was destroyed during the war. The subsequent decline in wheat values has been accentuated by the efforts of important wheat importing countries to become as nearly self-supporting as practicable in the matter of foods. A restoration of something like the former price relationships probably can be effected only gradually.

"Meanwhile, the drift of economic forces is tending to shift the production of wheat and other agricultural and live stock products from the high-priced lands of this country to newer and cheaper lands elsewhere. This fact, however, is not sufficient ground for believing that the days of prosperity for American wheat growers are past. Rather, it calls for a recognition of the necessity for resorting only to such measures of relief from present conditions as touch the fundamental economic factors."

FARMERS LET GO STORED WHEAT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Farmers sold grains more freely during the week, as primary receipts were 22,914,000 bushels, or the largest in many months. They increased almost 90 per cent. over the previous week, but were 4,530,000 bushels less than last year and 5,000,000 bushels under the five-year average. Wheat receipts of 13,132,000 bushels enlarged 6,632,000 bushels for the week and decreased 2,900,000 bushels from last year. For the same time in 1921 arrivals were 22,191,000 bushels wheat. Railroads have plenty of cars and marketings in the Southwest are disappointing; farmers are not selling wheat owing to prices being 65 to 80 cents in different localities. Interior mills are absorbing wheat in the Southwest and Central West at a good rate which curtailed the movement to terminal markets.

Winter wheat threshings are progressing at a good rate with around 30 to 60 per cent. of the Kansas crop threshed. Yields are irregular. Spring wheat has been damaged by rust blight and heat on both sides of the international line. Rust damage is extensive in spots but high temperature forced the crop to maturity and large areas escaped the rust. Cutting is on over a good part of the Northwest and has started in Western Canada. Good rains have fallen over the Central West and West where needed. More moisture is necessary to hold present condition. Growth has been rapid until the past week in Iowa. The crop is at the critical stage and is tasselling and silking over a good part of the leading States. Oats, rye and barley harvest is on, but was delayed slightly by late rains. Yields are irregular.

Federal Reserve Banks will see that there are adequate supplies of funds for moving grains to terminal markets. Indications are that Farm Loan Banks will have more business through the holding tendency of wheat farmers. This method of borrowing to hold for higher prices is not sound, as it takes a big advance in values to pay for the extra holding charges. High prices of lumber for storage bins will offset any ordinary advance in prices.

Grain markets have declined rather sharply the past week, with July wheat at a new low for the season. Closing trades were 3@4⅛ cents under those of the previous week. July corn developed pronounced congestion and gained 3¾ cents for the week, with September up ⅞ cent and new crop futures off 1⅛@2¼ cents. Oats finished ⅝@⅞ cent and rye 2⅛@2¼ cents lower for the week.

Resume Exchange Trading in Poland

WARSAW, July 29 (Associated Press).—The Ministry of Finance has finally restored to banks their right to buy and sell foreign exchange, as the result of the receipt of complaints from many business houses. Resumption of trading in exchange has sent foreign moneys to higher quotations here than abroad.

STATES ON BALTIC SEE TRADE REVIVAL

SURPLUS CROP RIPENING

Esthonia, Lithuania and Latvia Sell Timber to Pay Government Expenses.

The Baltic States are anticipating a revival of their trade as a result of the Russian harvest which promises to yield a surplus of grain for export this year, according to J. N. Brown who has returned here from Riga, where he supervised port operations for the American Relief Administration.

"At present the Baltic States are just stagnating," said Mr. Brown. "Manufacturing and trade are at a standstill. They are patiently awaiting stabilization of Russian affairs, so that they can do business, find a market for their manufactured products, put their ports to work and develop their commerce. The Russian harvest is counted upon to start the revival."

At present, he said, the Governments of Latvia, Lithuania and Esthonia are selling timber to foreigners in order to pay their Government expenses. They have taken over large estates and are stripping off the timber to tide them over the hard times at a rate which will leave them denuded unless other sources of revenue are found.

"At Windau the Soviet Government of Russia is developing the port facilities preparatory to the shipment of considerable grain this Winter," Mr. Brown said, "when it is expected the port of Petrograd will be closed by the ice. Last year Petrograd harbor froze up in spite of efforts to keep it open, and the Soviet Government realizes the importance of having an outlet on the Baltic for its grain shipments.

"Last Winter, although the Government admitted that there were several million Russians in need of food and did not hesitate to ask the Relief Administration and other foreign organizations to continue feeding, they exported grain through Reval, Windau, Libau and Riga. I believe the amount was approximately 35,000 tons."

Mr. Brown, who has been in Europe for the last four years and has been with the A. R. A. since January, 1922, said one of the things that interested him was the appearance at Riga before he left of American agricultural machinery consigned to Russia. He expressed the belief from this that the Soviets were really trying to increase their agricultural production.

"The improvement in Odessa since the advent of the Relief Administration was most striking," he said. "When I arrived on June 9, 1922, there were no shops open, no street lighting, and dead bodies and dying victims of the famine were lying on the sidewalks and in the gutters.

"When I left Odessa on Sept. 26, 1922, the whole aspect of the city had changed. There were a number of shops opening, the streets had been lighted and the famine was greatly relieved. Now there is no starvation there and there is a resumption of export and import trade.

"Things were pretty bad in Theodosia and the Crimea where I was first stationed, and they had not improved much up to the time I left early last Summer, but on my way home I met Edward Fox in Paris and he told me that the Crimea was coming back strong, with good crop prospects, lots of fruit and vegetables, and that the people were looking and feeding better than they had any time since the famine started."

There was no hint of famine in Riga now, and no dire poverty, he said.

OIL MEN TO FIGHT CONGRESS RADICALS

"Signs of Panic" in Washington Reported by Writer in National Petroleum News.

Leaders of the petroleum industry of the United States expect to be confronted with one of the most strenuous fights against radical legislation during the coming Winter that has ever been experienced by even the oldest member of the trade.

A. E. Heiss, writing from Washington in the current issue of The National Petroleum News, says: "There are signs of panic in Washington. The practical question brought forward by La Follette's victory in Minnesota, because that is what the election of Johnson means, is how to prevent otherwise sane men from following La Follette in his demand for legislation such as the John Hays Hammond Coal Commission recommended for the regulation of the coal industry, and the enactment of legislation based on the vagaries of the La Follette report on the oil industry.

"Veterans of many political campaigns believe that unless the two fuel industries educate members of Congress, not merely by adopting a few resolutions, but by more specific efforts than that, they will be persuaded to vote for almost anything that may be proposed. They will vote that way on the assumption that any change can be only for the better."

Mr. Heiss further points out that "any legislation likely to be enacted during the stampede will be enacted under the whip and spur and under the delusion that, broadly speaking, both fuel industries are crooked and composed of profiteers. Such was the idea that was in existence when the laws regulating the railroads, the food and the drug industries were written upon the statute books. Laws so written, it is believed no one will deny, are not likely to be well considered for the removal of such evils, comparatively small, as exist. Only such legislation as the sane men in the two larger parties approve can be enacted. The oft-made declaration that La Follette will hold the balance of power when Congress convenes in December is based upon the assumption that all the Democrats at all times will oppose all propositions made by the Republican leaders. In things purely political both Democrats and Republicans are expected to be guided by the rule that the duty of the opposition is to oppose.

"Swatting 'big business,' however, is not political except in the sense that the demagogic members of all parties engage in it. Most of the time they do the swatting with bladders and toy balloons because they know that most of the evil things alleged about business either have no foundation in fact or only such small foundation as to make the superstructure erected thereon altogether ridiculous. However, whenever the voters in a State run amuck, as they did when they elected Johnson, they have lost their sense of proportion and are terribly in earnest. At such a time as that the average member of Congress knows that he must make good on his professions, or be able to show why it would have been more foolish to do that than to disregard the foolish things he has said, because he has learned better. There is no doubt about the earnestness of the voters in Minnesota, Iowa and the Dakotas who elected Senators Ladd, Frazier, Brookhart, Shipstead and Johnson. That is why the coal and oil industries are in for unusual expenses, no matter what they may do."

NEW URUGUAY LOAN OFFER.

American Bankers Ask 6½% on 20,000,000 Gold Peso Issue.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, July 29.—Following upon rejection of the tender of the National City Bank of New York of 20,000,000 gold pesos toward the 35,000,000 gold peso loan called for by the National Administrative Council, a new offer has been received from American banking interests. They propose to issue 20,000,000 gold pesos when Congressional authority is obtained and an additional sum up to the 35,000,000 within six months after the issuance of the 20,000,000.

The bankers' offer proposes 6½ per cent. interest, 1 per cent. accumulative amortization and that the loan be issued at 82.

BUENOS AIRES, July 29.—It was stated at the Ministry of Finance today that the message which Minister of Finance Herrera Vegas purposes to send to Congress requesting authority to raise a $50,000,000 loan to pay off the American bankers' loan for this amount, due Oct. 1, will not be submitted to the Legislature for the present.

This policy has been adopted because of what is considered a more favorable prospect of floating the 150,000,000 gold peso foreign loan sanctioned by Congress, from which the smaller loan can be paid off. It was stated that the interest shown by foreign financial markets in the new Argentine proposed 150,000,000 gold peso loan has increased in the last few days.

MIDWEST OUTLOOK GOOD.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 29.—One of the most encouraging features in the Western trade situation is the new buying of steel, the continued heavy output of the steel mills and the large consumption, with an easing in prices in a few lines and firmness in others. Accumulation of oil necessitates additional storage capacity and 30,000 tons of steel plates for storage tanks were bought the past week. Independent sheet mills are booked so far ahead that they cannot take new orders for nearby delivery. Increased inquiries for pig iron are noticeable and there is more buying and inquiry for structural and fabricated steel. Deliveries are larger and the mills have enough business in hand to run for several months.

Traffic on Western railroads is about 14 per cent. above last year's total. Business is heavy for this period, with a big increase in grain and coal over recent weeks, although grain traffic is under last year's. Equipment is in better shape than for years.

Makers of railroad car and locomotive springs are booked three months ahead. Buying of railroad cars is small. The coal storage program of railroads is about completed, with large supplies on hand. Steam coal is selling freely, but domestic buying lags. More lumber is being bought by retailers who are stocking up. But the general call for building material is only fair.

Dry goods jobbers have done more business in July than in the same time last year, and fears of scarcity of certain lines of staples is inducing buying in advance of requirements.

There is plenty of money in the West and all commercial and crop moving purposes and rates remain at 5½ to 5¾ per cent. for majority of loans.

CHICAGO FEARS CAR TIE-UP.

Elevated and Surface Mechanics Threaten Wage-Increase Strike.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Close on the heels of an amicable settlement of wage troubles with motormen and conductors by the granting of a three-cent hourly increase, came threats today of a walkout of the mechanical forces of Chicago's elevated and surface lines unless wage increases ranging from 10 to 45 cents an hour are granted.

Fully 3,000 men are represented in the new controversy which has almost passed through the conference stage. Company officials have stated they can grant a three-cent hourly increase but the treasury will not stand as extensive rises as the men demand.

The company's offer was rejected by union officials, who said, however, it would be submitted to the men for consideration. Two special meetings have been called for tomorrow night.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Majority of Staples React to Year's Low Points—Improvement Found in Some.

Cash markets at the close of last week, compared with the values at the close of the previous week, showed that a majority of the subjoined list of staples had declined, nine of the eighteen articles showing price losses, seven of which were at new low points for the year; five articles reported improvement and four were unchanged. Those products which were lower and at new points included wheat, flour, coffee, lard, iron, cotton and printcloths, sugar and tin also moving off, while oats, corn, butter, eggs and lead went higher. Evenness was found in the values for pork, beef, steel and copper.

NEW CROP GOVERNS COTTON MARKET

FARMERS HASTEN HARVEST

Government Report Keenly Awaited—Improved Condition and Larger Indicated Crop Looked For.

NEW ORLEANS, July 27.—During the past week the new cotton crop became the all-absorbing factor in the market, and the old crop, which because of prevailing scarcity dominated values, was relegated to the things that have been. The first days of the week witnessed the final liquidation of the July interest, which had so long held up values. The closing out at the eleventh hour of the remaining interest in that month, which had at one time commanded a premium of nearly 400 points over October, rapidly eliminated the premium almost to the vanishing point; in fact, at one time on the closing day on which it was permissible to trade in July that month actually sold a few points below October in the New York market.

With July eliminated, spot prices in all the markets rapidly receded to the level of the new crop cotton that was being so freely marketed in Southern Texas. Whatever the ultimate size of the crop may be, it is certain that Southern Texas is picking, ginning and marketing large amounts of cotton evidently with a view to securing prevailing prices, which Texas farmers evidently believe will be replaced by lower levels when the new crop begins to move in earnest all over the belt. As the demand for the new cotton has not been as urgent as it commonly is at the beginning of the season, the price of the new Texas cotton has receded rather rapidly. Believing in a comparatively large crop, spinners, both domestic and foreign, have shown a disposition to hold off as much as possible in expectation of a lower level of values, but the recent rather liberal sales in Houston, Galveston, Dallas and Fort Worth indicate plainly that the much lower level of prices now prevailing in the interior is at last attracting buyers. This fact is confirmed by the increasing selling of hedges against new crop purchases in the contract markets.

In the process of shrinkage to the lower level of the new crop, the prices of contracts for such months as October, December and January and even March have assumed abnormal relations to each other. Instead of the reasonable carrying premium which each month should show successively over its predecessor, all months are trading at about the same prices or showing differences so small as to prove unattractive to traders who might under other conditions desire to switch from one month to a later. It is likely enough that as ideas as to future supply become better fixed the differences between the trading months will widen to the advantage of traders and particularly those who may find it desirable to transfer hedges from one month to a later position. Without a carrying premium, as is now the case, there is no encouragement for such transactions.

As the time approaches for the publication of the next Government condition report, crop indication sentiment is rapidly crystallizing in favor of a moderate gain in condition over the Government's last average of 69.9 and an increase in the crop indication to twelve million bales or more. The half dozen or more private condition reports so far issued point to a condition average somewhere between 70 and 71 and and an indicated yield of 12,000,000 to 12,250,000 bales.

Such a prospective new crop supply, added to the small carry-over apt to appear at the close of the season less than a week hence would not give much cause for uneasiness were it not for the chaotic conditions at present existing in Europe. With the value of the currency of all the Continental countries, with rare exceptions, reduced to low levels and even to the vanishing point, as in the cases of Austria and Germany, ordinarily large consumers of American cotton, and with industry in those countries severely depressed, thus preventing them from establishing credits through exports with which to buy cotton, the outlook for the consumptive demand is more or less clouded and uncertain, and the future course of prices is correspondingly in doubt. It is generally believed that the present level of prices has about discounted a crop of 12,000,000 bales. But no one attempts to guess the price level that would discount a prolongation of existing conditions in Europe.

Whether the crop will ultimately reach 12,000,000 bales or more will depend in a large measure on the maintenance of present favorable Texas prospects, rather seriously menaced at the moment by drought and high temperatures, as well as on the activity the boll weevil will show in August and September. Weevils are numerous at the present time, but their future destructiveness will depend largely on the character of the weather experienced from now on. Showery, cloudy weather would stimulate the pest, whereas dry hot weather would hold it in check.

FANCY STEERS ADVANCE.

A Drop in Prices of Hogs, Lambs, Ribs and Lard Reported.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The live stock situation is peculiar. Fancy finished steers sold at $11.70 or within 15 cents of the highest of the year, an advance of 25 cents for the week, while common grades are $1 to $2 lower in the past two weeks and at the lowest prices so far this year. The average for beef steers is $9.45 for the week, a drop of 5 cents. Hogs are 50 cents lower for the week on the top grades with an average of $7.05 or 5 cents higher than the previous week and $2.25 under last year's.

Lambs are $3.50 lower than a month ago and 50 cents to $1 under the top price of last week owing to heavy receipts. The week's average of $12.70 is $1.10 under the previous week's and 20 cents over last year.

Provisions sold at a new low for the season except on July lard, and lard declined 57½@60 cents and ribs 70 cents for the week.

READJUSTMENT ERA FOR BUILDING HERE

Nation-Wide Reaction in Orders for Basic Materials Shows Investors Seek Control.

Shrinkage of basic building material orders during the last thirty days is interpreted as a nation-wide protest against ascending construction costs by the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

No other conclusion can be drawn from the falling off in new business reported by various authorities and associations. It is particularly accentuated in a time like this when no one in authority is apparently willing to sponsor the belief that national construction requirements have been meet. Based upon the Census Bureau's estimate of building construction requirements for increase in population alone, it will take ten years to even approach the nation's needs in this respect.

It is evidently the radioed voice of the country's building investors, amplified through a million mills and factories, warning that the public buying power in 1923-24 will not be as elastic as that of 1920-21. It is a summons to the building industry of the United States to anticipate, rather than await the arrival of, the long-expected postwar readjustment period.

The fact that in a single month building material prices, on a national average, have dropped 4 per cent., augurs well for the interpretative powers of building material producers. It is not enough to appease the public, however.

May will probably mark the peak of the national building boom as far as building material orders are concerned. It may also mark the price pinnacle. In that month it was computed that building construction was proceeding at the rate of five and a third billion dollars a year. The June rate was approximately four and three-fifth billion dollars, or about $700,000,000, a year more than available capacity in building material manufacturing plants can turn out. At the present time unfilled orders show reduction.

In face brick, for instance, unfilled orders May 31 totaled 57,363,000 brick. June 30, the unfilled order total was 48,283,000 brick. In the structural steel department the percentage of plant capacity employed was 51 in June, 57 in May, as against 81 in April and 95 in March.

June production of cement was 500,000 barrels below May. Shipments were 7 per cent. below the preceding month and stocks of cement were 9 per cent. below those in May.

Lumber records for four weeks preceding July 14 and June 15 follow:

	Ft. Bd. Meas. July 14.	Ft. Bd. Meas. June 15.

June construction contract awards were $323,559,000 as against $374,400,000 in May. The square footage of construction planned for June was 46,344,000 against 60,526,000 in May. New York City, not counting Richmond, showed new building plan filings of $40,055,898 in the first three weeks of June against $31,323,355 in the same period in July.

Wage increases in New York State in June affected 30,000 employes as against 180,000 employes in May. The wage increase movement, according to the New York State Department of Labor, rose steadily for one year to May. June represents the first drop.

Wage reductions in cement plants, covered in the foregoing report, occurred where new workers had been taken on. Glass factory reductions occurred as a result of a strike. Steel mills made wage advances in June and more advances are expected to be reported. Earnings of sheet metal workers have shrunk.

National business, anticipating, of course, the building construction material demand, achieved the index figure 189 in April, and by the middle of May dropped to approximately 134, recovering to 158 in June, but in the last week it has dropped back to 150.

There are times when mortgage investments take preference in the public mind over other forms of security. It is amply evident that this form of investment is due for popularity for some time to come, first for economic reasons, and, second, because it is the form of investment that will precede construction requirements still unmet that easily can continue at 25 per cent. above normal for a decade without regard to the natural building requirements for that period.

The country is merely serving notice now that unfettered building construction can be expected only when investors meet lowering construction costs as they enter the market.

SKS NO CUT IN FUNDS FOR SCHOOL REPAIRS

rs. Joseph R. Swan, Chairman of joint committee on education of eral organizations of citizens, has tten to Arthur S. Somers, Chairman the Budget Committee of the Board Education, asking that no cuts be de in the $3,500,000 asked for repairs upkeep of schools in the 1924 school get.

he organizations represented by the mittee of which Mrs. Swan is Chairn are: Civitas Club, Federation For ld Study, League of Business and fessional Women, New York Child or Committee, Public Education Asiation, Women's City Club of New k, New York and New Jersey Sec, Woman's Department, National ic Federation.

It has been the hope of many groups rested in the city's public schools t the Budget Committee of the Board Education in estimating for the 1924 get the amount necessary for the keep and repair of school buildings uld use the customary business policy appropriating for depreciation a percentage of the cost of the buildings," s the letter which then expresses the e that the committee insist on the appropriation.

ERICAN MONEY IN CANADA

owth in Investments a Feature of Post-War Period.

he Bankers Trust Company of New k, after an exhaustive canvas, retly estimated that the United States invested in Canada $2,500,000,000. the middle of 1922, Sir Lomer Gouin the Federal legislature put the ount of America's investment in the minion at nearly $2,000,000,000. The rease in this short period is pointed by the Canadian Pacific Railway as strative of the manner in which ited States funds are pouring into nada.

"In 1922," continues the railway, anadian bond sales in the United tes amounted to well over $261,000,- or $37,000,000 in excess of the preus highest figure, reached in 1920. ding to this investments of a general ure, other than those represented in ale of bonds, and it is easy to acnt for $300,000,000 in the twelve nths which would bring the total of erican funds invested in Canada well hin sight of the $2,500,000,000 esated by the Bankers Trust.

"The increasing ascendency of Amern funds in Canadian development has n an outstanding feature of the postr era. That this movement has by means reached its zenith is indicated the fact that the sale of Canadian ds in the United States in the early nths of 1923 had been substantially ater than in 1922, the record year. 1915, the United States is estimated have had $750,000,000 of Canadian intments.

United States money is entering into ry phase of Canadian economic deopment. Of the total of American ney invested in Canada, $1,200,000,000 stimated to be in bonds and the rest farms, mortgages, small businesses, ustrial enterprises, banking and vate loans.

The difficulty of computing Amern industrial investment has since the r been increased by the growth of the vement to establish branch plants of erican industries in Canada, which, anced by capital from the United tes, operate to all intents and pures as Canadian industries. It is d that there were more than 200 nch factories opened up by American cerns in 1919, and a greater number 1920 and 1921. The past year was an eptional one in this regard, and convative estimates place the number of nch plants operating in Canada now more than 1,000.

It is expected this year that the vole of American investment in Canada reach that established by British ds. At the last computation, about middle of last year, British investnt was estimated to be $2,500,000,000 inst the United States' $2,000,000,000. e huge American investment last year ded to equalize this and the movent this year will probably definitely g the two together."

DEFY BLUE LAW REGIME.

People of Ludington, Mich., Ignore Prosecutor and Act as Usual.

LUDINGTON, Mich., July 29.—Persons in Ludington who desired motored, played golf, attending moving picture theatres and danced today, regardless of the statement of Prosecutor Virgil A. Fitch that he would make Mason County, of which this is the county seat, respect Sunday blue laws which have been left for years on the statute books of Michigan without thought of enforcement.

No attempt was made by police officers here to stop any of the Sunday amusements to which the city is accustomed.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The atmospheric pressure was relatively low Sunday night over practically the entire country, but no well defined barometric depression was in evidence. The pressure continued high over the Atlantic Ocean.

Since Saturday night showers and thunderstorms have occurred over most of the Atlantic slope, in the northern and central Plains States, in proportions of the Canadian Northwest and over a few scattered areas elsewhere. The temperature was higher Sunday over most of the country between the Mississippi River and the Atlantic Coast, as well as in the middle and southern Rocky Mountain region, and it has fallen in North Dakota and surrounding areas.

The outlook is for generally partly cloudy weather throughout the States of the Washington forecast district during the next two days, with local thunder showers probable over the southern portions of the East Gulf and South Atlantic States and in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake regions. Temperature changes will be unimportant as a rule. However, somewhat warmer weather will prevail Monday in Southern New England.

An Invitation:—
You are cordially invited to visit the new Cruising Cunarder
FRANCONIA
Friday, August 3rd
From 2 to 5 o'clock

The FRANCONIA has been selected by the Travel Department of the American Express for its next Cruise Around the World—sailing from New York November 15th, returning March 27th. Built especially for long distance cruising, safe and speedy, the FRANCONIA is the last word in modern ship construction—in appointments for ease and comfort a luxurious club, a floating palace of recreation. For 133 days she will be the home of the party now booking, for her 30,000 mile Cruise.

Our first reception on the Franconia—July 6th, was such a delightful success, that we are urged to give others, considering a World Cruise, an opportunity to visit this wonderful new Cunarder.

For card of admission—write or call Cunard office, 25 Broadway, or any office of the American Express Company

MEET AFTER 35 YEARS; BECOME LAW PARTNERS

Edward Clifford and E. F. Colliday, Republican Officials, Had Played Marbles in Illinois.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Thirty-five years ago Edward Clifford and Edward F. Colliday played marbles in the yard of the little brick schoolhouse in Virginia, Cass County, Ill. They grew up and went their separate ways, Mr. Clifford finally becoming Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mr. Colliday Republican National Committeeman for the District of Columbia.

A year or so ago Albert D. Lasker, Chairman of the Shipping Board, and Fred W. Upham, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, "introduced" the two men, who had not met since boyhood.

"Yes," said Mr. Clifford, "I know him. He lived on Main Street, Virginia, Cass County, Ill. We went to the brick schoolhouse and we shot marbles in the yard together."

The general trend of the remarks at the meeting was that "we ought to see more of each other," and today a new law shingle was put out here, reading "Colliday, Clifford & Pettus."

The other member of the firm is B. B. Pettus of Georgia.

ASK VETERANS TO WEAR UNIFORMS AS PICKETS

BROCKTON, Mass., July 29.—Former service men among the striking shoe workers of this city will be urged to appear on the picket line in war uniform tomorrow morning. The General Committee of the union announced tonight that it had adopted a suggestion to this effect made at a "free speech" mass meeting today by John Leavitt of New York, State President of the World War Veterans.

The meeting, attended by about 1,500 persons, was held on the circus grounds, because of the refusal of the Mayor to issue a permit for a mass meeting on any of the public playgrounds. Representatives of the Shoe Workers' Union and of the American Civil Liberties Union were the speakers. Leavitt appeared in uniform, as did Emil E. Holmes of Mineapolis, National Secretary of the World War Veterans. The later in his address referred to General Pershing as a "traitor." Other speakers were Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans of Brookline, Robert Morss Lovett, Acting Chairman of the American Civil Liberties Union; John S. Codman of Boston and John S. Dacey, one of the strike leaders.

Members of the police force in plain clothes and a few Federal agents attended the meeting. There was no disorder.

The strike, which had its origin in a movement to break the union, has been in progress for three months. It is estimated that about 1,000 workers are still out. Manufacturers assert that their plants are adequately manned and that shoe shipments last week were higher than for any week since the strike began.

PRESS RIGHT TO UNIONIZE.

Chicago Garment Workers' Counsel Assails Contract Forbidding It.

CHICAGO, July 29.—A rule requiring prospective employes to sign an agreement that they will not join a labor union or talk with a union representative in effect deprives the job-seeker of a constitutional right, according to an answer filed in Federal Court yesterday by attorneys for the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

The answer was in reply to a temporary injunction granted July 15 by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter, restraining the union from soliciting or talking with employes of the Mitchell Brothers Company, makers of women's apparel. The company secured the injunction by maintaining that their employes signed an agreement not to join a labor union when they went to work and that the union organizers were in effect asking the employes to break a contract.

The answer declared the agreement was obtained from employes often when they were financially embarrassed and asserted no court had ever denied the right of employes to organize in a law-abiding labor organization. Judge Adam C. Cliffe set Friday for arguments.

HERE ON BUYING MISSION

Death Comes Few Minutes After Arrival at Hotel—Well Known in New York.

Adolph Nachman, 63 years old, owner of a large specialty store in Montgomery, Ala., and a familiar figure to New York merchants for some years, died of heart attack yesterday morning in his room in the Hotel Collingwood, 45 West Thirty-fifth Street.

Mr. Nachman had been doing his own buying in New York for forty years, usually making about four trips a year. For twenty-five years he had made the Collingwood his New York home. He arrived there from the South with his wife shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

As soon as they had settled themselves in their rooms Mrs. Nachman said she would send a telegram to the family in Montgomery. Mr. Nachman had been troubled with his heart and she thought they would be anxious to get word of his safe arrival. Just before she descended, Mrs. Nachman said, her husband apparently was in excellent spirits and had been making plans for an interesting stay in New York.

A few minutes later, when she returned from the lobby, Mrs. Nachman found her husband lying on the couch. She spoke to him, but there was no answer. She crossed the room and shook him, thinking he had dropped off to sleep, and noticed for the first time that his face was distorted in pain. Realizing what she knew must be the trouble, she called Dr. Townsend, house physician. He pronounced Mr. Nachman dead.

F. J. Shepard Jr. to Leave Hospital.

Finley J. Shepard Jr., 12 years old, adopted son of Mrs. Shepard, formerly Miss Helen M. Gould, will leave Roosevelt Hospital, where he was operated on for appendicitis ten days ago, tomorrow. He will return to his home in Roxbury, N. Y., where Mrs. Shepard is spending the summer.

Doctors at the hospital said that the boy was convalescing rapidly. He was brought to the hospital from Roxbury and the operation was performed by Dr. John S. Erdmann of 60 West 52d Street.
